Ford calls Reagan 'babe in the woods'

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — President Ford said Saturday that Ronald Reagan would be "a babe in the woods" in dealing with Congress if the former California governor were elected president.

Before paying homage to a Democratic predecessor, Harry S. Truman, in Missouri, Ford told the editorial board of the Omaha World-Herald how the Senate failed to override his veto of a child care bill last week.

Ford said his personal knowledge of congressmen and senators, and "their faith and trust in me," enabled him to win a three-vote victory.

"Reagan just couldn't do that," the newspaper quoted him as saying. "He's just a babe in the woods."

Ford said he would not seledt Reagan as a vice presidential candidate because Reagan has said he wouldn't want the post.

"Nelson Rockefeller has taken himself out" and "the field is pretty wide open after that," Ford told the editors.

Later, in his speech at Independence, Ford attacked Reagan indirectly, declaring that America's foreign policy "should not be demagogued, damaged or derailed" in election-year debate because the country's enemies are watching and listening.

As thousands jammed a public square in Truman's hometown, Ford took part with Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Stuart Symington of Missouri in the unveiling of the full-length statute of the 33rd president, a vervent Democrat.

In Independence, Ford made no direct mention of Reagan, who leads Ford in the committed delegate count for the Republican national convention 366 to 292.

But the President alluded to Reagan's strong attacks on administration foreign policy.

"It is not too much to expect of a mature 200-year-old nation that its free political debate be conducted responsibly and rationally in the sensitive areas of national security and our relations with other countries," the President said.

And he quoted Truman: "I have never felt that popularity and glamor are fundamentals on which the chief executive of the government should operate ... A man who is influenced by the polls or is afraid to make decisions which may make him unpopular is not a man to represent the welfare of the country."

Ford stopped off in Missouri, which has no primary, after two days in Nebraska, where he sought his native state's 25 convention delegate votes next Tuesday. Ford has made no appearances in West Virginia, which has 28 Republican delegate seats at stake next Tuesday.

Neither Nebraska nor West Virginia permits crossover voting. Ford's spokesmen blamed Democratic voting in some of his last four primary losses.

Former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia was in Nebraska at the same time as Ford, telling a breakfast meeting in Omaha he has begun accumulating names of possible vice-presidential running mates. But Carter said he won't "cast out" names until the Democratic convention in New York.

He said he wants a vice president "who would be best if something happened to me." He also said his vice president should be compatible on basic philosophies and issues. A lesser factor he said, is balancing the ticket geographically and with his own experience.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who is trying to stop Carter, spoke to a labor meeting in Washington as he tried to pick up steam for the nearby Maryland primary May. 18.

And Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., who is making a stand against Carter in Michigan's May 18 primary, accused Carter of "trying to be all things to all people" during a day of handshaking and interviews at several Detroit-area shopping centers.

New tremors hit Italy, death toll rises to 740

GEMONA, Italy (AP) — Fresh tremors rolled through northeast Italy Saturday as thousands of rescue workers sifted through the rubble of fallen buildings with bulldozers and bare hands in search of earthquake victims. The official death toll rose to 740.

Authorities in Venice reported that some art works suffered damage in Thursday's quake 62 miles away. Culture Minister Mario Pedini termed the condition of castles, palaces, churches and art works in the Udine area, northeast of Venice, "most worrisome."

Rescue workers continued pulling the dead and the living from the ruins of dozens of towns and villages.

A government relief official said 717 persons were now known dead, but reports continued to come in of bodies being found under the debris and injured persons dying in hospitals. An estimated 2,000 were injured.

A total of 39 aftershocks were recorded, but the latest ones were light and caused no damage except to already cracked buildings.

Premier Aldo Moro flew to Udine and met with mayors of stricken towns to discuss relief measures. The government announced that all workers who lost their jobs in the quake would be paid up to 90 per cent of their wages out of the national unemployment fund.

Bishop Alfredo Battisti of Udine authorized parish priests in his diocese to sell church jewels and other valuables to raise funds. Art works were not for sale, however.

At Maiano, soldiers found the town's "grandfather," 84-year-old Valentino Morassi, after 38 hours under his collapsed house.

Driver flees accident scene

A Matthews woman received minor injuries in a two-car accident Saturday evening at the intersection of Ruth and South West streets.

Evelyn Mae Huls, 51, was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital with knee injuries and was expected to be released following treatment.

The driver of the other car, described as being in his late teens or early 20s, fled the scene of the accident, police said. Also in the car were another man and a woman.

The accident occurred when the Huls car turned north onto South West Street from Ruth Street and struck the rear of the other car westbound on Ruth. Police said the other driver did not stop at the stop sign.

Police said the car was a 1964 or 1965 off-white Chevrolet and will have extensive damage to the left rear side with the tail light knocked off.

Stoddard group wants permanent health center

BLOOMFIELD--R. B. Woods of Bernie outlined plans today for the establishment of a permanent health center in Stoddard County. Woods is heading a group of citizens seeking to get the proposal on a special election ballot early this summer.

Woods said petitions requesting a special election have been circulating throughout Stoddard County for the past few weeks. Deadline for getting the vouchers to the County Court is Monday and Woods said that over 900 persons have signed the request.

"This indicates to me that the people in our county want to see a permanent health facility established," Woods stated. "We have had access to a number of services provided by a temporary unit for almost 18 months now. Apparently, the people feel these services are worthwhile and would like to see them continued on a permanent basis."

The State Department of Health, in cooperation with the Stoddard County Court, set up a temporary facility in November 1974. The unit was originally provided to demonstrate health care programs on the local level.

Through the implementation of active clinics and on-going programs, the center has proven to be instrumental in promoting sound health education as well as providing treatment, under physician's orders, for many in the area.

Current programs under way at the facility include blood pressure clinics, immunizations, a family planning clinic, the WIC (Women, Infants and Children) nutritional program, home visits, tuberculin skin tests, counseling , Veneral Diseases conferences and a number of other special services dealing with preventive medicine.

Primary purpose of a county health unit, according to Woods, is to provide a means of keeping people "out of the hospital by teaching patient or family members to be self-sufficient.

"Skilled nursing care is available to provide treatment and assist with follow-up procedures in the home," said Woods. He stessed the fact that qualified physicians make initial diagnostic determinations and supervise patient treatment.

He said, "Nursing personnel are responsible for maintaining accurate patient records and carrying out doctor's orders as they provide a vital link between patient and physician." They may conduct preliminary screening tests, thus saving a physician numerous man-hours while assuring patients of thorough, complete health profiles. Members of the health care staff also seek out other agencies that can assist patients with specific problems related to their illnesses.

During the month of April, the temporary facility conducted

Garrison released on bond

KENNETT, Mo (AP)-Dr. Norman A. Garrison Jr. was released on $25,000 bond Friday, after surrendering to Missouri authorities to face a murder charge in the death of his former wife.

The 34-year-old Corinth, Miss., physician went before Dunklin County Magistrate Judge Leon McAnally Friday and flew back to Mississippi after posting bond. A preliminary hearing on the murder charge was tentatively set May 24.

Garrison is charged with the Sept. 8, 1974, beating and shooting death of Lee Ann Garrison, his former wife. Her body was found in the bedroom of her home.

Garrison Thursday gave up his two-year fight against extradition. Dunklin County Sheriff Raymond Scott flew to Mississippi to return him to Missouri

His surrender came after the Mississippi Supreme Court and a federal district court rejected arguments seeking to block extradition.

Attorney John Farese said Garrison decided to surrender because of what Farese termed new evidence that would result in acquittal if Garrison should go to trial. Farese refused to discuss the nature of the evidence.

Vandals, thieves hit

BLOOMFIELD--Two break-ins and an act of vandalism were reported to the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department Friday and Saturday.

The Flamingo Cafe, located south of Advance on Highway 25, was broken into sometime Thursday night.

Some change and potato chips were taken and vending machines were broken into.

Entry was by breaking out the glass in a back door.

The Floyd Davis home of Painton was also broken into Thursday night, but nothing was reported missing.

Entry was by cutting a screen.

Lumsford told police the headlights and some other glass were broken and that part of the body was damaged.

Thursday night the department arrested two Blloomfield men in drug related charges, but they have since been released on bond.

Arrested were Timothy Holden, 18, for possession of a controlled substance and Mark Matney, 23, for selling a controlled substance.

The arrests came about 9 p.m. Thursday when a deputy and a highway patrol trooper stopped a car for a moving violation.

$749 taken from office

Someone took $749 from a desk drawer in an office at Ashley Outlet Store, 114 E. Front St., police said Saturday.

The theft apparently occurred sometime between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday.

Police were still investigating the theft Saturday night.

Routine check leads to chase and arrest

DEXTER--A routine check of a car stopped Friday afternoon led to a chase, a wreck and the apprehension of a runaway teenage girl from Indiana.

The excitement started about 3 p.m. Friday when police officer Ken Tippen of Dexter stopped a car driven by Matthews Allen Thomas, 20, of Ossian, Ind.

Tippen ran the license through a routine traffic check, which revealed the car had been stolen about two weeks earlier in Indiana. Thomas took off in the car. Police gave chase.

Thomas wrecked the car a few minutes later on Highway 25, and fled on foot.

Police searched the area about 15 minutes and caught him a in a wheatfield, lying in a mud puddle.

In the car with Thomas was a 14-year-old girl, a runaway from Indiana.

She was kept at the jail until here parents came for her Saturday afternoon.

Ford calls Reagan 'babe in the woods'

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — President Ford said Saturday that Ronald Reagan would be "a babe in the woods" in dealing with Congress if the former California governor were elected president.

Before paying homage to a Democratic predecessor, Harry S. Truman, in Missouri, Ford told the editorial board of the Omaha World-Herald how the Senate failed to override his veto of a child care bill last week.

Ford said his personal knowledge of congressmen and senators, and "their faith and trust in me," enabled him to win a three-vote victory.

Later, in his speech at Independence, Ford attacked Reagan indirectly, declaring that America's foreign policy "should not be demagogued, damaged or derailed" in election-year debate because the country's enemies are watching and listening.

As thousands jammed a public square in Truman's hometown, Ford took part with Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Stuart Symington of Missouri in the unveiling of the full-length statute of the 33rd president, a vervent Democrat.

In Independence, Ford made no direct mention of Reagan, who leads Ford in the committed delegate count for the Republican national convention 366 to 292.

But the President alluded to Reagan's strong attacks on administration foreign policy.

Driver flees accident scene

A Matthews woman received minor injuries in a two-car accident Saturday evening at the intersection of Ruth and South West streets.

Evelyn Mae Huls, 51, was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital with knee injuries and was expected to be released following treatment.

The driver of the other car, described as being in his late teens or early 20s, fled the scene of the accident, police said. Also in the car were another man and a woman.

The accident occurred when the Huls car turned north onto South West Street from Ruth Street and struck the rear of the other car westbound on Ruth. Police said the other driver did not stop at the stop sign.

Police said the car was a 1964 or 1965 off-white Chevrolet and will have extensive damage to the left rear side with the tail light knocked off.

Police asked anyone knowing of the car to call the police station.

The Floyd Davis home of Painton was also broken into Thursday night, but nothing was reported missing.

Entry was by cutting a screen.

Lumsford told police the headlights and some other glass were broken and that part of the body was damaged.

Thursday night the department arrested two Blloomfield men in drug related charges, but they have since been released on bond.

Arrested were Timothy Holden, 18, for possession of a controlled substance and Mark Matney, 23, for selling a controlled substance.

The arrests came about 9 p.m. Thursday when a deputy and a highway patrol trooper stopped a car for a moving violation.

$749 taken from office

Someone took $749 from a desk drawer in an office at Ashley Outlet Store, 114 E. Front St., police said Saturday.

The theft apparently occurred sometime between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday.

Police were still investigating the theft Saturday night.

5 hurt, 2 seriously

Two persons were seriously injured and three others received minor injuries in four area traffic accidents Friday and Saturday, the highway patrol said.

One motorist was seriously injured at 5:30 p.m. Friday on Highway 162, five miles north of Hornersville, in a one-vehicle accident.

The accident occurred when a westbound pickup truck driven by Ronald McNew, 25, of Clarkton went out of control on a curve, ran off the road and overturned.

McNew received serious injuries, was taken to Anderson Clinic at Gideon, and was later transferred to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

One person received serious injuries and another received minor injries in a one-car accident at 12:30 a.m. Saturday on an unmarked county road, two miles south of Friedham.

The accident occurred when a southbound car driven by Deanna Malahy, 25, of Cape Girardau ran off the road at a high rate of speed and struck a tree.

The driver received minor injuries and a pasenger in the car, Roxanna Huckstep, 25, of Cape Girardeau received serious injuries.

Both were taken to St. Francis Hospital at Cape Girardeau.

One person received minor injuries in a two-vehicle accident at 12:15 p.m. Friday, 1.5 miles north of Vanduser, on an unmarked gravel road.

The accident occurred when an unidentified vehicle backed from private drive into the path of a southbound pickup truck, driven by Paul McAnelly, 53, of Vanduser. The truck skidded and overturned.

McAnelly received minor injuries and was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

One person received minor injuries in a two-vehicle accident at 10:45 p.m. Friday on Highway 51 in Zalma.

The accident occurred when the brakes of a church bus, driven by Jackie Strickland, 21, of Gipsy, failed and, unable to stop, pulled into the path of a southbound pickup truck driven by David Wayne Shell, 18, of Sturdivant.

Shell received minor injuries and was taken to Dexter Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Jessie Vint

Jesse Vint is a dangerous character in "Bobbie Jo and the Outlaw."

He plays a rhinestone cowboy who would almost as soon slit your throat as not. Yet he shows a warm and humorous side which rounds him out. He is fast becoming one of the most charming partly bad guys of the screen.

Jesse was the taller of the two brothers among the stars of American International's "Macon County Line," a highly successful film that further forwarded a career that had already embraced 25 television starring roles.

Old gold camp is setting for film

One of the most fascinating towns in United States history, Central City, Colorado, is the backdrop for 20th Century-Fox's new comedy-western, "THE DUCHESS AND THE DIRTWATER FOX," starring George Segal and Goldie Hawn

Surprisingly, the once-fabulous gold camp, now exquisitely restored to its former glory, was never used as a movie location site until producer-director Melvin Frank decided to utilize it late in 1975.

Located less than a one-hour drive from Denver, Central City's origins go back to the late 1850's. The restless nation, still excited by the 1849 gold rush, was suffering a major depression in 1857. Rumors of gold in what is now Colorado gave weight to Horace Greeley's "Go West, Young Man" advice.

On May 6, 1859, a penniless Georgian named John H. Gregory discovered gold in a remote mountain wilderness soon to become Central City. No one knows what happened to Gregory, but his find put Colorado on the map and gave birth to the exhilarating "Pikes Peak or bust" rush.

In 1873 and 1874, disastrous fires destroyed most of the original frame buildings. Riding the crest of fabulous wealth, citizens constructed up-to-date brick structures that today make Central City a perfect period piece of the 1870's.

Among the remaining landmarks is the Belvidere Theatre, said to be the oldest theatre still in use in the Rocky Mountain region.

During the filming of "Rattlers" dozens of live venomous rattlesnakes were used. "Rattlers", a realist thriller set in the California Mojave Desert holds a cast headed by Sam Chew, who plays a snake expert and his photo-journalist companion, played by Elisabeth Chauvet.

Bulldogs are 12-5 after busy weekend

By DALE FORBIS

The Sikeston Bulldogs don't have any respect for the way things oughta be. District playoff games are supposed to be close, tense, hard-fought and down to the wire. But, such was not the case in Friday's important encounter with the Poplar Bluff Mules. Following up their 10-2 demolition of Perryville with an even more impressive 12-0 runaway over the Mules, the 1976 Sikeston Bulldogs will fight it out for the district title next Monday.

With Dale Deal doing most of the early blasting, Sikeston marked up a run in the first and a pair in the second. Deal doubled off the rightfield to open the game, then scored. His two-run triple deep to center scored both second-inning runs, but in the third everyone go in the act.

Poplar Bluff hurler Ricky Lansford wasn't exactly befuddling anyone during the first two innings. In the third it all came apart for coach Jim King's righthander. Jackson doubled off the fence and David Shell scored him with his second straight RBI hit, this one a sharp double to left. Bill Hampton reached on an error, moving Shell to third, and Dewayne Barnett was intentionally walked. Gary Silverthorn, battling a slump, came out of it with the first of two hits, a run-scoring single between short and third.

A sacks-filled pass to Garry Griffin netted a run, Deal reached on a fielder's choice, then Jeff Limbaugh cleared the bases with a double off reliever Jeff Jones. With his bases filled dilemma solved, Jones promptly created another one. Two walks gave Ricky Taylor an opportunity for a two-run double and the Bulldogs had an eight-run frame. The game, to all intents and purposes, was over.

N.P. McDaniel, the Sikeston coach, saw an opportunity to save his ace lefthander and did so by replacing him with Juaken Dumas. Dumas hurled the final two innings, allowing no hits and three walks, retaining Taylor's shutout win. The game was ended after five due to the ten-run rule.

The 12 runs represented a seasonal high in scoring production for the streaking Sikeston team. It was their seventh win in a row, raising the Sikeston mark to 11-4. It also earned them a shot at Jackson in the district championship game next Monday afternoon at Sikeston.

Both teams have earned their chance at the top spot by overwhelming victories, Sikeston by a combined 22-2 margin over Perryville and Poplar Bluff, and Jackson by a combined 29-2 margin over Charleston and Fredricktown. It is clear that both combatants are heartless and haughty, unaware of the pressure and dignity usually associated with such affairs.

Both will probably show some respect on Monday.

A smiling David Shell received a congratulatory hand shake and pat on the rump from a teammate after the Sikeston Bulldogs had defeated the Poplar Bluff Mules 12-0 in the semifinals of the District Six Class AA Tournament at Poplar Bluff. Shell knocked in two runs in the game with a double and single in three times at bat. The Bulldogs will play Jackson in the finals Monday afternoon at VFW Stadium against the Jackson Indians.

Split Saturday twinbill with Fox of Arnold

By DALE FORBIS

Gary Hoelzer knew he couldn't get any worse. So he had to be better. Hoelzer is the third hurler for the Fox Warriors, a team with a one-man pitching staff. He was touched for five runs in the first inning of Saturday's opening game between Fox and Sikeston and was a victim of senior Juaken Dumas' strong three-hitter, 5-0. In the nightcap of the doubleheader Hoelzer was much better. He relieved starter Jim Luntzer in the fifth inning and held the Bulldogs scoreless on two hits to save Luntzer's 4-2 win and give the defending state 2-A champions a split. The loss broke Sikeston's winning streak at eight games.

When the Warriors loaded the bases off Dumas in the first inning of the first game and failed to score they knew they were going to have trouble. After five Sikeston runs in the bottom of the inning, that feeling was substantiated. Nearly everything that Hoelzer offered the Bulldog batters ripped. The first five batters singled and the first eight batters reached. Dumas, meanwhile, found his groove and held Fox to just three hits, all in the first three innings.

Larry Jackson started the second game for Sikeston, but was removed after three innings because of the district championship game on Monday. If coach N.P. McDaniel is forced to go to the bullpen against Jackson's Indians, Larry Jackson will be that bullpen.

When the hard-throwing junior left Sikeston led 2-1. His replacement, Glen Alexander, was effective. He allowed only four hits in four innings with a walk, but wild-pitched the tying run home in the fifth. A two-out single by Ken Leach handed Alexander the tough defeat.

Central wins conference track meet

Cape Central athletes won seven of seventeen events Friday afternoon as the Tigers took first place in the SEMO Conference Northern Division track meet at Public School Stadium.

Central scored in every event but the 880-yard relay as they racked up 80½ team points to beat out the Poplar Bluff Mules by twelve. Charleston was third, Jackson fourth, Kennett fifth, and Sikeston and Perryville tied for sixth.

Johnson was the individual star for the Tigers, winning both the long jump and the triple jump.

Steve Wright, Kennett's stellar distance man, won both the mile and two mile runs to distinguish himself as one of the meet's only other two athletes to win more than one event. Tracy Edington of Poplar Bluff also had a sensational afternoon, winning the high hurdles and the high jump, taking second in the low hurdles and fourth in the long jump.

Niswonger of Cape Central established a new conference record in the pole vault, clearing the 13'7½" mark to win that event.

The lone bright spots for Sikeston were a third place finish in the 880-yard run by Kevin Goetz, a fifth place performance by Fred Gilliland in the shot put and a fifth in the 440-yard run by Billy Busby.

Gubin, Fallert & Toole win district tennis

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Cape Central's Vince Fallert and Adrian Toole teamed to defeat Chuck Medelberg and Chris Matthews, 6-1 and 6-3 in the semi-finals and then defeated Greg Jones and Mark Rhodes of Poplar Bluff in the finals to take first place in the doubles in the District tennis matches held here Saturday morning. The tournament singles favorite, Steve Gubin, of Caruthersville defeated Rob Hale of Cape Central. in the semi-final and then had to beat his teammate, Bob Spencer to take first place.

Sikeston's Chuck Medelberg and Chris Matthews never got untracked in the semi-final as Fallert and Toole jumped on them early. After looking very lifeless in the first set the two Bulldogs put a little spark in the second set but never could competely get into their game.

Jeff Robey had been Medelberg's partner all year until illness set in to take him out of action.

Bob Spencer of Caruthersville was too sharp for Steve Dupont in the semi-finals defeating the Bulldog 6-3,6-3. Dupont then played Hale in the consolation bracket and l ost again 6-1,6-2.

Medelberg and Matthews took third place in the tourney by whipping Pat Edwards and Charles Treasure of Kennett 6-2,6-3.

All the players that participated in the finals of the District will qualify for the State Tournament to be held at the University of Missouri in Columbia Friday and Saturday, May 21-22. First round action will start at 10:00 a.m. Friday and will continue through the quarterfinals. The semifinal matches will start at 10:00 a.m. Saturday. The Third place and finals will start at 1:30 p.m.

Dr. J and Nets topple Nuggets

The incredible Erving, who dazzled the Nuggets with a variety of twisting, turning, spinning shots, scored 10 straight New York points in spearheading a 16-6 spree in the third quarter that carried the Nets from a 65-63 deficit to a 79-71 advantage they never relinquished.

He opened the burst with a driving one-hand stuff shot, tying the score. He followed with a spinning one-hander and made a free throw after being fouled for a 68-65 lead.

After Thompson jammed in a field goal for Denver, Erving and Issel each connected on two free throws. Erving then made another foul before Thompson tied the score at 71-71 with a jumper.

Then Erving and Taylor, who had shot only 20 per cent from the field in the first three games, each scored four points and the Nets were suddenly ahead, 79-71.

They built that lead to 19 points, 116-97, with less than three minutes remaining in the game, before the Nuggets put on a belated, futile rally.

The Nets, playing virtually error-free basketball and led by Williamson's 18 points, took a 61-57 halftime lead. During that time New York lost the ball only twice—a remarkably low figure—while Denver tossed it away on 11 occasions.

After New York's Kim Hughes opened the game's scoring with a layup, the Nuggets reeled off 10 consecutive points in less than 1½ minutes and stayed in front until the Nets put together seven points in a row early in the second quarter for a 45-42 advantage.

Sports in Brief

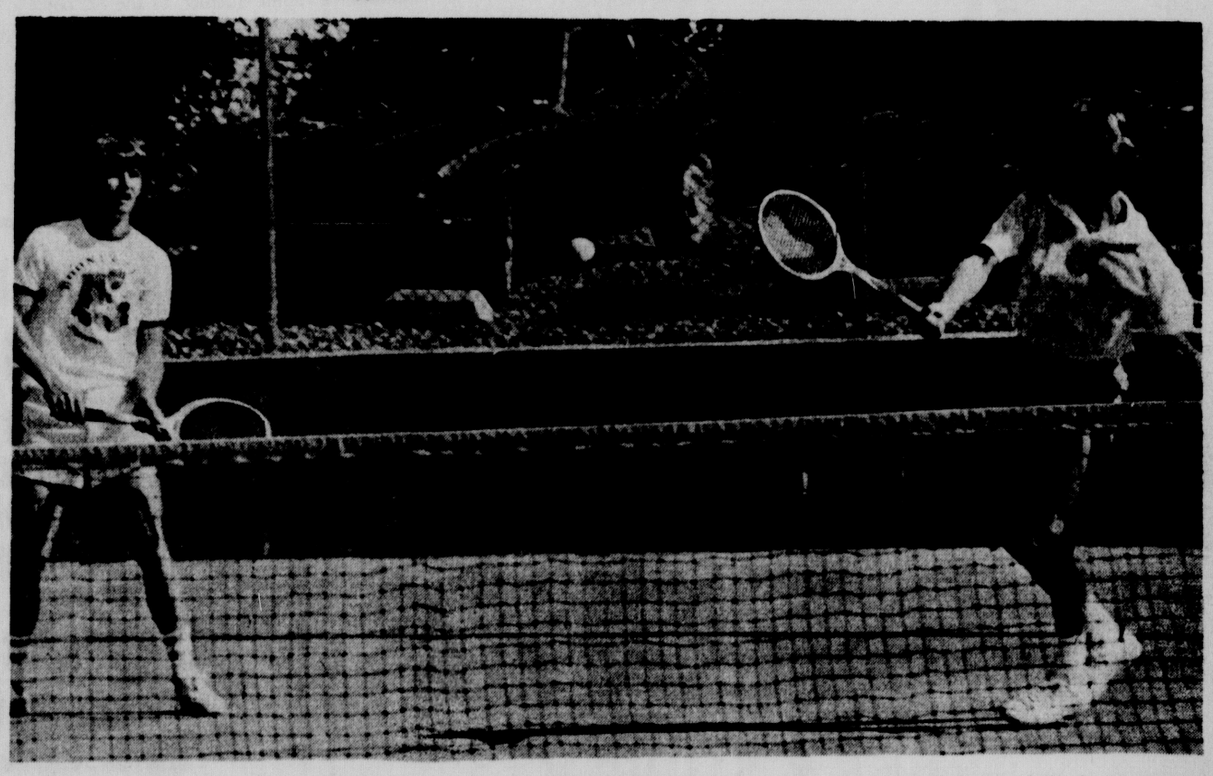
Gene Swick of Toledo led the nation's major college football players in yards per game with 246 in 1975.

Donnie Reece of Southern California returned 26 punts for 409 yards, a 15.7 per game average, in 1975.

Ohio State led the major colleges in football scoring last season with 374 points in 11 games, a 34 point-per-game average.

Alabama had the best football defense against scoring last season, allowing only 66 points in 11 games.

The 1977 U.S. Open golf championship will be played June 16-19 at the Southern Hills Country Club in Tulsa, Okla.



Chris Matthews of Sikeston High School hits a forehand against his opponents in the doubles matches in the District Tennis Tournament at Cape Girardeau Saturday Morning. Chuck Medelberg, left, is watching the action. The two Bulldogs were defeated in the semifinals then then won third place in the tournament.

Bulldogs are 12-5 after busy weekend

By DALE FORBIS

The Sikeston Bulldogs don't have any respect for the way things oughta be. District playoff games are supposed to be close, tense, hard-fought and down to the wire. But, such was not the case in Friday's important encounter with the Poplar Bluff Mules. Following up their 10-2 demolition of Perryville with an even more impressive 12-0 runaway over the Mules, the 1976 Sikeston Bulldogs will fight it out for the district title next Monday.

With Dale Deal doing most of the early blasting, Sikeston marked up a run in the first and a pair in the second. Deal doubled off the rightfield to open the game, then scored. His two-run triple deep to center scored both second-inning runs, but in the third everyone go in the act.

Poplar Bluff hurler Ricky Lansford wasn't exactly befuddling anyone during the first two innings. In the third it all came apart for coach Jim King's righthander. Jackson doubled off the fence and David Shell scored him with his second straight RBI hit, this one a sharp double to left. Bill Hampton reached on an error, moving Shell to third, and Dewayne Barnett was intentionally walked. Gary Silverthorn, battling a slump, came out of it with the first of two hits, a run-scoring single between short and third.

A sacks-filled pass to Garry Griffin netted a run, Deal reached on a fielder's choice, then Jeff Limbaugh cleared the bases with a double off reliever Jeff Jones. With his bases filled dilemma solved, Jones promptly created another one. Two walks gave Ricky Taylor an opportunity for a two-run double and the Bulldogs had an eight-run frame. The game, to all intents and purposes, was over.

N.P. McDaniel, the Sikeston coach, saw an opportunity to save his ace lefthander and did so by replacing him with Juaken Dumas. Dumas hurled the final two innings, allowing no hits and three walks, retaining Taylor's shutout win. The game was ended after five due to the ten-run rule.

The 12 runs represented a seasonal high in scoring production for the streaking Sikeston team. It was their seventh win in a row, raising the Sikeston mark to 11-4. It also earned them a shot at Jackson in the district championship game next Monday afternoon at Sikeston.

Both teams have earned their chance at the top spot by overwhelming victories, Sikeston by a combined 22-2 margin over Perryville and Poplar Bluff, and Jackson by a combined 29-2 margin over Charleston and Fredricktown. It is clear that both combatants are heartless and haughty, unaware of the pressure and dignity usually associated with such affairs.

Both will probably show some respect on Monday.

Split Saturday twinbill with Fox of Arnold

By DALE FORBIS

Gary Hoelzer knew he couldn't get any worse. So he had to be better. Hoelzer is the third hurler for the Fox Warriors, a team with a one-man pitching staff. He was touched for five runs in the first inning of Saturday's opening game between Fox and Sikeston and was a victim of senior Juaken Dumas' strong three-hitter, 5-0. In the nightcap of the doubleheader Hoelzer was much better. He relieved starter Jim Luntzer in the fifth inning and held the Bulldogs scoreless on two hits to save Luntzer's 4-2 win and give the defending state 2-A champions a split. The loss broke Sikeston's winning streak at eight games.

When the Warriors loaded the bases off Dumas in the first inning of the first game and failed to score they knew they were going to have trouble. After five Sikeston runs in the bottom of the inning, that feeling was substantiated. Nearly everything that Hoelzer offered the Bulldog batters ripped. The first five batters singled and the first eight batters reached. Dumas, meanwhile, found his groove and held Fox to just three hits, all in the first three innings.

Larry Jackson started the second game for Sikeston, but was removed after three innings because of the district championship game on Monday. If coach N.P. McDaniel is forced to go to the bullpen against Jackson's Indians, Larry Jackson will be that bullpen.

When the hard-throwing junior left Sikeston led 2-1. His replacement, Glen Alexander, was effective. He allowed only four hits in four innings with a walk, but wild-pitched the tying run home in the fifth. A two-out single by Ken Leach handed Alexander the tough defeat.

Gubin, Fallert & Toole win district tennis

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Cape Central's Vince Fallert and Adrian Toole teamed to defeat Chuck Medelberg and Chris Matthews, 6-1 and 6-3 in the semi-finals and then defeated Greg Jones and Mark Rhodes of Poplar Bluff in the finals to take first place in the doubles in the District tennis matches held here Saturday morning. The tournament singles favorite, Steve Gubin, of Caruthersville defeated Rob Hale of Cape Central. in the semi-final and then had to beat his teammate, Bob Spencer to take first place.

Sikeston's Chuck Medelberg and Chris Matthews never got untracked in the semi-final as Fallert and Toole jumped on them early. After looking very lifeless in the first set the two Bulldogs put a little spark in the second set but never could competely get into their game.

Jeff Robey had been Medelberg's partner all year until illness set in to take him out of action.

Bob Spencer of Caruthersville was too sharp for Steve Dupont in the semi-finals defeating the Bulldog 6-3,6-3. Dupont then played Hale in the consolation bracket and l ost again 6-1,6-2.

Medelberg and Matthews took third place in the tourney by whipping Pat Edwards and Charles Treasure of Kennett 6-2,6-3.

All the players that participated in the finals of the District will qualify for the State Tournament to be held at the University of Missouri in Columbia Friday and Saturday, May 21-22. First round action will start at 10:00 a.m. Friday and will continue through the quarterfinals. The semifinal matches will start at 10:00 a.m. Saturday. The Third place and finals will start at 1:30 p.m.

Sports in Brief

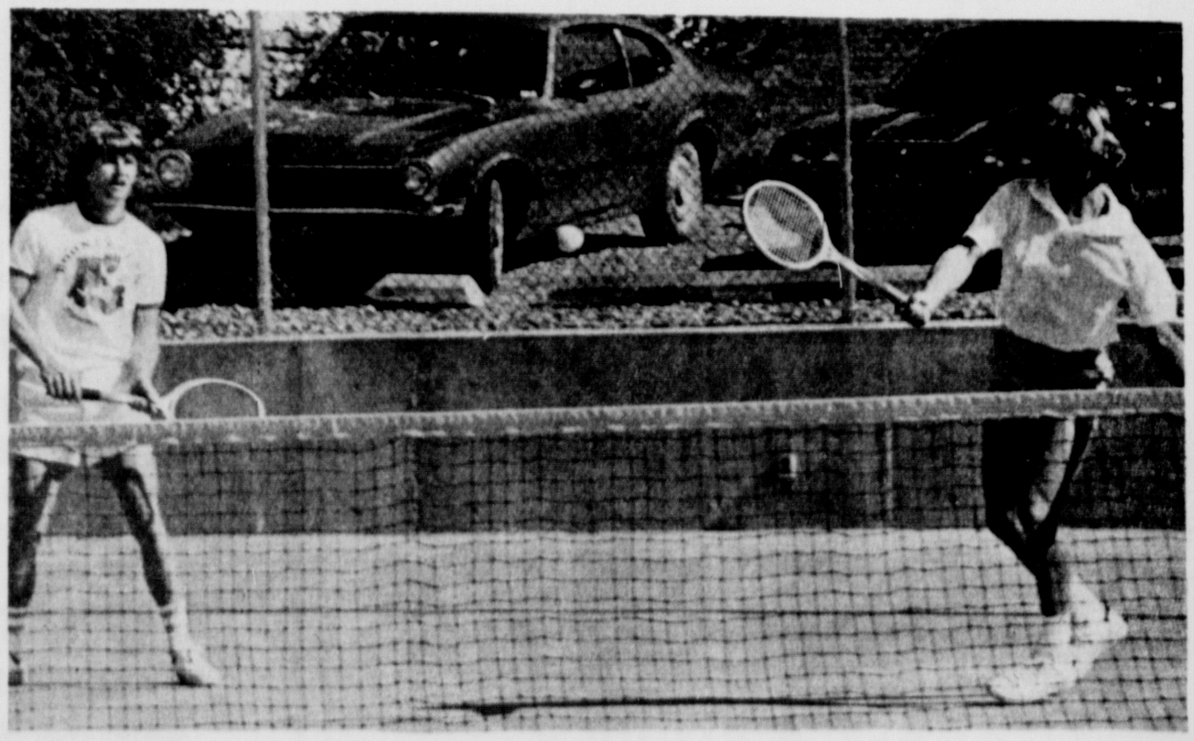
Gene Swick of Toledo led the nation's major college football players in yards per game with 246 in 1975.

Donnie Reece of Southern California returned 26 punts for 409 yards, a 15.7 per game average, in 1975.

Ohio State led the major colleges in football scoring last season with 374 points in 11 games, a 34 point-per-game average.

Alabama had the best football defense against scoring last season, allowing only 66 points in 11 games.

The 1977 U.S. Open golf championship will be played June 16-19 at the Southern Hills Country Club in Tulsa, Okla.



Chris Matthews of Sikeston High School hits a forehand against his opponents in the doubles matches in the District Tennis Tournament at Cape Girardeau Saturday Morning. Chuck Medelberg, left, is watching the action. The two Bulldogs were defeated in the semifinals then then won third place in the tournament.

Dawn Hurley advances to state girls track meet next week

FARMINGTON — Diminutive freshman Dawn Hurley has become the first girl in Sikeston High School history to qualify for the state girls' track meet after finishing second in the 100-yard dash Friday in the Class AA District meet Friday at Farmington High School.

The 5-2 ninth grader ran her best race of the season, a 11.9 clocking in the finals, to place second behind Lisa Brochette of Jackson, who was timed at 11.7. Although the race was run into a stiff breeze, Miss Hurley beat her previous best time of twleve seconds flat.

Dawn was one of several area girls qualifying for the state meet, which will be held next Saturday at Lebanon. Lynn Hollis of Cape Central won both the high jump and the 440-yard run to qualify in two events. Beverly Slaughter of Central won the long jump and Nancy Kennedy of the Tigers took second in the 880. Central's 880-medley relay team finished first, also qualifying.

Carla Duncan and Judy Reeves of Charleston will represent the Bluejays at Lebanon. Miss Duncan won the discus, while Miss Reeves placed second in the 80-yard low hurdles.

Lisa Brochette of Jackson, who won the 100-yard dash, also took the 220 to qualify for that event. The Indians, who took first place in the team standings, also had the winning 880 and 440-yard relay teams. Individuals qualifying for Jackson were Adrian Amelon, who was first in the mile, Cheryl McCain, who grabbed second in the discus, and Kathy Wilcoxen, second in the high jump.

East Prairie wins AA district meet

Coach Ed Nichols' East Prairie Eagle track team swept the District AA meet here Saturday with a total of 160 points. ISC was the second place finisher with 122½. Portageville came in third with 86. Valle had 80. Notre Dame scored 52½ and New Madrid finished last with 20.

Illmo-Scott City and East Prairie completely dominated the meet. The Eagles finished first in seven of the events and the Rams took five firsts.

All-purpose man, Steve Hanschen took three individual first. The four-sport athlete from Scott City dashed 100 yards in 10.1, ran the 220 in 23 seconds and tied for the long jump with a leap of 21'2". Hanschen will now don a baseball uniform Monday and try to lead the Rams to the district baseball championship.

The State Track Meet will be held in Rolla Friday and Saturday, May 14-15. The first two place finishers will qualify for the meet.

Jackson belts Fredericktown

JACKSON — Coach Jerry Suedekum's JHS Indians ended the Fredericktown Blackcat's dream of a state championship here Friday afternoon with a convincing 12-2 victory in the semi-finals of the District Six Class AA tournament.

The Blackcats had upset number one seeded Cape Central in the first game at home and had hopes of doing the same against the strong Jackson team but found Clay VanGilder a little too much and collected only four hits off the big hard throwing righthander. The Indians, on the other hand, had little trouble against Don Paulk, who gave up 10 hits while taking the loss. VanGilder pitched only five of the six innings and was relieved by Dennis Turner, who worked the last frame. VanGilder is expected to face the Sikeston Bulldogs at Sikeston Monday afternoon in the finals of the District tournament.

Jackson wasted no time jumping out in front as the Indians lost the coin toss and had to settle for the visiting team position and batted first although the game was played at Jackson. A walk and stolen base was followed by a single by Brent Beussink to put a runner on third base. A ground out forced the run home for a 1-0-1 lead.

Paulk held the Indians scoreless in the second inning and tied the game with a single run in the bottom of the frame. A base hit started the inning and two consecutive stolen bases put the runner on third where he was able to come home on a fielders choice.

The Blackcat hurler was unable to silence the big Indians clubs and Jackson plated two more runs in the top of the third inning to regain the lead in the important battle. The leadoff batter walked and a sacrifice bunt was mishandled putting two runners on base. Another walk was followed by singles by Beussink and Rick Law to produce the runs.

The Indians put the game out of reach in the top of the fourth inning with five runs. Paulk had departed in the second inning and John Stevens came in to run into the Indian attack. Wildness was his downfall as a basehit was followed by three straight walks after two outs were made. Beussink knocked in two runs and Joe Bullinger singled in two after one was walked in.

Fredericktown finally put two hits together in the fourth inning to score a run.

Jackson was given a run in the fifth inning as they tallied without the aid of a basehit.

The final three runs of the game scored on a three-run homer by Dennis Turner in the top of the sixth to end the game.

Bernie plasters Braves

An error started the trouble for the Braves and was followed by RBI singles by Bob Carson and Steve Ward to give the Mules a 2-0 lead which they never relinquished.

Israel Johnson started and lost the game while giving up seven hits in five innings. The Braves gave the little lefthander no support on defense as coach Ronnie Cookson's nine committed a total of four errors.

A walk, two hits and two miscues allowed three more runs to score in the top of the third innings. The Mules added two in the fourth and three more in the fifth.

Bernie faces the East Prairie Eagles Monday at East Prairie in the semi-finals of the District 11 Class A tournament.

Redbirds even series

ST. LOUIS--Vic Harris doubled with the bases loaded inning to score two runs and Willie Crawford tripled to bring home another as the St. Louis Cardinals blasted Houston lefthander Mike Cosgrove for five runs in the fifth and beat the Astros 5-1 at Busch Stadium Saturday night.

Lynn McGlothen struck out one and walked four as he scattered nine hits and evened his record at 3-3.

Rookie Keith Hernandez walked to start the fireworks in the fifth and went to second on Don Kessinger's single. After McGlothen fanned attempting to sacrifice, Bake McBride walked to load the bases. Harris then drilled a shot past third baseman Enos Cabell into the eft field corner to score two and put the Cardinals ahead. After McBride scored on a wild pitch, Crawford tripled against the right centerfield wall to score Harris and knock out Cosgrove, whose record dipped to 1-1. Ted Simmons greeted reliever Jose Sosa with a shot up the middle to score the fifth run of the inning before Sosa got the final two outs.

Houston scored their one run int the top of the sixth. Bob Watson doubled with one out, then had to hold at second when catcher Cliff Johnson singled through Kessinger's glove into short left. Greg Gross's sharp single to center loaded the bases, and Watson scored on an infield out.

McGlothen struggled in the ninth but hung on to finish the game. Luis Melendez, who replaced McBride in centerfield in the sixth, made a fine running catch to end the game in the ninth.

Ted Simmons, who had a pair of hits, hit the aball solidly on two other occasions. His smash in the first inning was turned into a double play, and Wilbur Howard robbed the Cardinal catcher of a safety with a big play in the seventh.

A crowd of 17,366 watched the Cardinals up their record to 12-13 and pull to within one game of the .500 mark. John Denny will go against Larry Dierker in the rubber game of the series today at 1:15. Houston had won the opener 3-1 Friday night.

East Prairie wins AA district meet

Coach Ed Nichols' East Prairie Eagle track team swept the District AA meet here Saturday with a total of 160 points. ISC was the second place finisher with 122½. Portageville came in third with 86. Valle had 80. Notre Dame scored 52½ and New Madrid finished last with 20.

Illmo-Scott City and East Prairie completely dominated the meet. The Eagles finished first in seven of the events and the Rams took five firsts.

All-purpose man, Steve Hanschen took three individual first. The four-sport athlete from Scott City dashed 100 yards in 10.1, ran the 220 in 23 seconds and tied for the long jump with a leap of 21'2". Hanschen will now don a baseball uniform Monday and try to lead the Rams to the district baseball championship.

The State Track Meet will be held in Rolla Friday and Saturday, May 14-15. The first two place finishers will qualify for the meet.

Jackson belts Fredericktown

JACKSON — Coach Jerry Suedekum's JHS Indians ended the Fredericktown Blackcat's dream of a state championship here Friday afternoon with a convincing 12-2 victory in the semi-finals of the District Six Class AA tournament.

The Blackcats had upset number one seeded Cape Central in the first game at home and had hopes of doing the same against the strong Jackson team but found Clay VanGilder a little too much and collected only four hits off the big hard throwing righthander. The Indians, on the other hand, had little trouble against Don Paulk, who gave up 10 hits while taking the loss. VanGilder pitched only five of the six innings and was relieved by Dennis Turner, who worked the last frame. VanGilder is expected to face the Sikeston Bulldogs at Sikeston Monday afternoon in the finals of the District tournament.

Jackson wasted no time jumping out in front as the Indians lost the coin toss and had to settle for the visiting team position and batted first although the game was played at Jackson. A walk and stolen base was followed by a single by Brent Beussink to put a runner on third base. A ground out forced the run home for a 1-0-1 lead.

Paulk held the Indians scoreless in the second inning and tied the game with a single run in the bottom of the frame. A base hit started the inning and two consecutive stolen bases put the runner on third where he was able to come home on a fielders choice.

The Blackcat hurler was unable to silence the big Indians clubs and Jackson plated two more runs in the top of the third inning to regain the lead in the important battle. The leadoff batter walked and a sacrifice bunt was mishandled putting two runners on base. Another walk was followed by singles by Beussink and Rick Law to produce the runs.

The Indians put the game out of reach in the top of the fourth inning with five runs. Paulk had departed in the second inning and John Stevens came in to run into the Indian attack. Wildness was his downfall as a basehit was followed by three straight walks after two outs were made. Beussink knocked in two runs and Joe Bullinger singled in two after one was walked in.

Fredericktown finally put two hits together in the fourth inning to score a run.

Jackson was given a run in the fifth inning as they tallied without the aid of a basehit.

The final three runs of the game scored on a three-run homer by Dennis Turner in the top of the sixth to end the game.

Bernie plasters Braves

An error started the trouble for the Braves and was followed by RBI singles by Bob Carson and Steve Ward to give the Mules a 2-0 lead which they never relinquished.

Israel Johnson started and lost the game while giving up seven hits in five innings. The Braves gave the little lefthander no support on defense as coach Ronnie Cookson's nine committed a total of four errors.

A walk, two hits and two miscues allowed three more runs to score in the top of the third innings. The Mules added two in the fourth and three more in the fifth.

Bernie faces the East Prairie Eagles Monday at East Prairie in the semi-finals of the District 11 Class A tournament.

Redbirds even series

ST. LOUIS--Vic Harris doubled with the bases loaded inning to score two runs and Willie Crawford tripled to bring home another as the St. Louis Cardinals blasted Houston lefthander Mike Cosgrove for five runs in the fifth and beat the Astros 5-1 at Busch Stadium Saturday night.

Lynn McGlothen struck out one and walked four as he scattered nine hits and evened his record at 3-3.

Rookie Keith Hernandez walked to start the fireworks in the fifth and went to second on Don Kessinger's single. After McGlothen fanned attempting to sacrifice, Bake McBride walked to load the bases. Harris then drilled a shot past third baseman Enos Cabell into the eft field corner to score two and put the Cardinals ahead. After McBride scored on a wild pitch, Crawford tripled against the right centerfield wall to score Harris and knock out Cosgrove, whose record dipped to 1-1. Ted Simmons greeted reliever Jose Sosa with a shot up the middle to score the fifth run of the inning before Sosa got the final two outs.

Houston scored their one run int the top of the sixth. Bob Watson doubled with one out, then had to hold at second when catcher Cliff Johnson singled through Kessinger's glove into short left. Greg Gross's sharp single to center loaded the bases, and Watson scored on an infield out.

McGlothen struggled in the ninth but hung on to finish the game. Luis Melendez, who replaced McBride in centerfield in the sixth, made a fine running catch to end the game in the ninth.

Ted Simmons, who had a pair of hits, hit the aball solidly on two other occasions. His smash in the first inning was turned into a double play, and Wilbur Howard robbed the Cardinal catcher of a safety with a big play in the seventh.

A crowd of 17,366 watched the Cardinals up their record to 12-13 and pull to within one game of the .500 mark. John Denny will go against Larry Dierker in the rubber game of the series today at 1:15. Houston had won the opener 3-1 Friday night.

BOOK REVIEWS

THE MANDARIN CYPHER. By Adam Hall. Doubleday. 226 Pages. $7.95.

Quiller's back, and the Red Chinese have got him. But just for a little while.

For anyone who has followed the violent adventures of the redoubtable British secret agent knows that nobody, not anybody, holds on to Quiller for long when he doesn't want to be held. Which figures for a guy so hard that he considers gun-carrying vulgar, preferring to kill with his hands instead.

Quiller's latest caper, written by Adam Hall in a breathless sort of "charge-the-enemy" style, deals with the disappearance of an English scientist while fishing in the waters off Hong Kong. Quiller thinks his investigation of whether the man really did die will be a routine one. This, of course, is not to be.

No sooner does he debark and make contact with the local agent, than the enemy tries to do him in. First by putting poison in his toothpaste — a sophomoric ploy that Quiller spots right off — then by playing rough, twice.

National 4-H Council Opens New Chapter in 4-H History

CHICAGO—A new chapter in 4-H history will open when the National 4-H Council goes into operation on or about July 1.

A nonprofit educational corporation, the Council will unify functions of the National 4-H Foundation, Washington, D.C., and the National 4-H Service Committee, Chicago. The two organizations for many years have represented 4-H nationally on behalf of the private sector.

The new Council is expected to strengthen the private sector's role as an effective partner in the overall 4-H program conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Private resources enrich 4-H

Funds from business, industry and foundations channeled through the Service Committee and the Foundation have supplemented public support of 4-H by making possible such extras as educational materials, citizenship-leadership training courses, international travel and youth exchange programs, operation and expansion of National 4-H Center, and awards that recognize the achievements of 4-H'ers in a broad range of projects.

Some private-sector donors have lent their support to 4-H through the Service Committee for more than half a century. Among them are International Harvester Company, donor of awards in the 4-H agricultural program; Montgomery Ward & Co., consumer education program; Wilson & Co., Inc., sheep program; Armour & Company, general support; The Santa Fe Railway System and Gulf Central Pipeline Company, A Santa Fe Industries Company, educational awards and scholarships; Chicago & North Western Transportation Company, college scholarships; and The Milwaukee Road, grain marketing-transportation scholarships.

The new National 4-H Council is expected to strengthen the role of the private sector as an effective partner in the 4-H program conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service. At the Council's charter board meeting in February, E. Dean Vaughan, left, assistant administrator, 4-H—youth, Extension Service, USDA, and Omer G. Voss, right, chairman and president of the Council's board of trustees and executive vice president, International Harvester Company, review articles of incorporation. The Council will unify functions of the National 4-H Foundation, Washington, D.C., and the National 4-H Service Committee, Chicago.

Donors provide incentives

Donors supporting 4-H for more than 30 years include Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp., food preservation program; Westinghouse Electric Corporation, electric energy; Coats & Clark Inc., clothing; The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, automotive; Amoco Foundation, Inc., petroleum power; and General Motors, safety program. These donors are among about 30 that offer a full schedule of awards to 4-H members: medals of honor at the county level, expense-paid trips to National 4-H Congress for state winners, and national college scholarships.

Other long-term support of 4-H has come from Alpha Gamma Rho Educational Foundation, agricultural scholarship; The Conrad Hilton Hotel, Report to the Nation; Burlington Northern Inc., educational awards; Allis-Chalmers Corporation, Agricultural Equipment Division, general support; and Elgin Watch Company, awards to winners of special 4-H events.

Hundreds of other private-sector donors have been partners in the 4-H program through the years. Private resources channeled through the new Council are expected to help the Extension Service reach its goal of involving more young people in 4-H by the close of the 1970s.

National 4-H Council Opens New Chapter in 4-H History

CHICAGO—A new chapter in 4-H history will open when the National 4-H Council goes into operation on or about July 1.

A nonprofit educational corporation, the Council will unify functions of the National 4-H Foundation, Washington, D.C., and the National 4-H Service Committee, Chicago. The two organizations for many years have represented 4-H nationally on behalf of the private sector.

The new Council is expected to strengthen the private sector's role as an effective partner in the overall 4-H program conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Private resources enrich 4-H

Funds from business, industry and foundations channeled through the Service Committee and the Foundation have supplemented public support of 4-H by making possible such extras as educational materials, citizenship-leadership training courses, international travel and youth exchange programs, operation and expansion of National 4-H Center, and awards that recognize the achievements of 4-H'ers in a broad range of projects.

Some private-sector donors have lent their support to 4-H through the Service Committee for more than half a century. Among them are International Harvester Company, donor of awards in the 4-H agricultural program; Montgomery Ward & Co., consumer education program; Wilson & Co., Inc., sheep program; Armour & Company, general support; The Santa Fe Railway System and Gulf Central Pipeline Company, A Santa Fe Industries Company, educational awards and scholarships; Chicago & North Western Transportation Company, college scholarships; and The Milwaukee Road, grain marketing-transportation scholarships.

The new National 4-H Council is expected to strengthen the role of the private sector as an effective partner in the 4-H program conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service. At the Council's charter board meeting in February, E. Dean Vaughan, left, assistant administrator, 4-H—youth, Extension Service, USDA, and Omer G. Voss, right, chairman and president of the Council's board of trustees and executive vice president, International Harvester Company, review articles of incorporation. The Council will unify functions of the National 4-H Foundation, Washington, D.C., and the National 4-H Service Committee, Chicago.

Donors provide incentives

Donors supporting 4-H for more than 30 years include Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp., food preservation program; Westinghouse Electric Corporation, electric energy; Coats & Clark Inc., clothing; The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, automotive; Amoco Foundation, Inc., petroleum power; and General Motors, safety program. These donors are among about 30 that offer a full schedule of awards to 4-H members: medals of honor at the county level, expense-paid trips to National 4-H Congress for state winners, and national college scholarships.

Other long-term support of 4-H has come from Alpha Gamma Rho Educational Foundation, agricultural scholarship; The Conrad Hilton Hotel, Report to the Nation; Burlington Northern Inc., educational awards; Allis-Chalmers Corporation, Agricultural Equipment Division, general support; and Elgin Watch Company, awards to winners of special 4-H events.

Hundreds of other private-sector donors have been partners in the 4-H program through the years. Private resources channeled through the new Council are expected to help the Extension Service reach its goal of involving more young people in 4-H by the close of the 1970s.

Symington awarded

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Praising what she called a "long and productive career in public service," Mrs. Betty Ford, the first lady, presented to Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo. Saturday the third annual Harry S. Truman Public Service Award.

The presentation kicked off day-long activities in honor of the former president from Missouri, who died in 1972.

About 1,000 persons attended the late morning cremonies in front of Truman Library. They included Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., Rep. James Symington, Rep. William J. Randall, and Rep. Richard Bolling, all Missouri Democrats, and Gov. Christopher S. Bond, the first Republican governor of Missouri in almost three decades.

President Ford was due later for dedication of a statute of Truman, visit Truman's widow at her home and place a wreath on the former president's grave at the library.

the following activities around Stoddard County: 122 blood pressure checks, 72 immunizations, two health education programs (lecture and slide presentations), two in-service training programs, eight tuberculin tests, two VD conferences, one family planning clinic (with five new patients and several return visitors) and the WIC nutritional program. Over 30 persons stopped by the Bloomfield office to inquire about available services while many others phoned the facility seeking information.

Woods said, "One of the biggest problems we've encountered is the attitude that such a facility is for low-income individuals. This is not at all true. The health center is open to anyone in Stoddard County; there are no economical restrictions. Any child is eligible for immunizations. Any person may have his blood pressure checked. These services are for the people of our country in total," concluded Woods.

The temporary facility is currently located in Blomfield, but the demonstration period will be up the latter part of this year. In accordance with initial provisions of the program, Stoddard County residents must make a decision before that time to either keep the facility or get rid of it.

If the voters elect to establish permanent health center money must be appopiated by a mill tax and a board of five trustees must be elected. The trustees would be responsible for the location of the facility as well as establishing guidelines for operation. According to Woods, the tax rate could never extend beyond the established rate of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

If the proposal fails, however, the temporary facility will be removed. "And that," said Woods, "would be that. The establishment of the temporary facility was really a last-ditch effort to secure a permanent health care unit. The tax rate is a small price to pay for the assurance of good, wholesome health care. I urge every resident of Stoddard County to do his utmost to see that the proposal is approved."

In 1803, the United States bought the Louisiana Territory from France.

Records fall as SeMo wins meet

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Southeast Missouri State won the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association outdoor track and field team championship Saturday with 76 points.

Six conference records were tied and broken, and 10 stadium records tied and broken in the two-day meet held at Lincoln University.

There were four double winners, Kenneth Harris of Lincoln, Dan Dwyer of Southwest Missouri, Darrell Hilkerbauer of Southeast Missouri, and Richard Wilson, Southeast Missouri.

Harris set a stadium record of 49 feet, 2 inches in the triple jump and a conference record of 24 feet, 10 inches in the long jump. Dwyer won the three-mile run in a conference and stadium record time of 13:49.0, and a new event, the six-mile run.

Hilkerbaumer won the 120 high hurdles and set a conference and stadium record of 52.4 seconds in the 440 intermediate hurdles, and Wilson won the 100 dash in 9.6 and set a conference record time of 21.0 seconds in the 220, which also tied the stadium record.

Saturday highlights:

—Howie Orndoff, Southwest Missouri, set conference and stadium records of 8:50.1 in the 3,000-meter steeplechase.

—Southeast Missouri tied both records in the 440 relay at 41.5.

—John Wellerding of Northwest Missouri set conference and stadium records of 4:06.1 in the mile.

—Dan Futrell of Northeast Missouri set a stadium record of 1:53.0 in the 880.

—Greg Hayes of Northwest Missouri and Rick Patterson of Northeast Missouri both cleared the pole vault at 15 feet, a stadium record, and Hayes was declared the winner on fewer misses.

Runner-up

Teresa Bowles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Bowles of New Madrid received a runner-up award of $50 in the elementary music category at the state level of the Bicentennial contests sponsored by the Missouri American Revolution Bicentennial Commission. The winners of the 10 Congressional District contests were eligible to compete in the state contests April 24 at Lincoln University in Jefferson City. Gov. Christopher S. Bond presented the awrds in the Capitol Rotunda.

Clerk for 38 years

Mrs. Pauline Allen, New Madrid City Clerk for 38 years, who retired May 3, was paid tribute and presented a watch by Mayor Jim Cravens Thursday night at an appreciation dinner in her honor at the New Madrid Country Club. Approximately 70 persons attended, including city officials and employes, former Mayors Tom Furg Hunter and Robert Riley, former alderman and retired city employes with whom she worked during the years. SeMo sweeps MIAA baseball championship

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) — Home runs by Bill Criscione and Ralph Kuehn and shutout pitching by Dave Jorn and Trae Hastings helped Southeast Missouri State clinch the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association baseball championship here Saturday as SEMO swept a doubleheader from Northwest Missouri State 4-0 and 1-0.

The first game, highlighted by Criscione's two-run homer in the fourth inning and Kuehn's blast in the sixth, was all SEMO needed to take the title. Jorn allowed only two hits in the game.

Two walks and two throwing errors gave Southeast Missouri the only run they needed in the second game as Hastings kept Northwest Missouri scoreless.

In other MIAA action Saturday, Northeast Missouri State took the team golf championship at Bonne Terre, shooting a total of 788, four strokes in front of second-place University of Missouri-Rolla. Lincoln University took third and Southwest Missouri State came in fourth.

Brian Boudria of Lincoln took medalist honors.

New appointments

Harlan is named to maintenance post

WICKLIFFE, Ky.--The promotion of Ronald Harlan to the position of area maintenance supervisor at Westvaco Corporation's pulp and paper mill at Wickliffe has been announced by R. V. DePucchio, plant engineer.

In his new position, Harlan will have responsibility for the planning, programming and execution of all maintenance projects in the general pulping area oat the mill, including the woodyard, the pulp mill and the pulp dryer.

Harlan has been associated with Westvaco at Wickliffe since June 1970 when he joined the mill's engineering organization as a project engineer. He was promoted to senior project engineer in December 1972.

Prior to joining Westvaco, Harlan was employed for seven years by the Beloit Corp., starting in 1964 as a staff engineer in their paper machine division. Later, as a field erector for Beloit, he participated in the startup of one of Mead Corporation's new paper machines at their Kingsport, Tenn. mill and also in the startup of a newsprint machine at a paper mill in Sweden.

Ronald Harlan

Harlan is a native of Gray Ridge, Mo., and earned his bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering at University of Missouri-Rolla.

He and his wife live at 131 Autumn Drive, Sikeston, with their two sons, Craig and Christopher.

Poelker will extend official welcome to the conferees, followed by opening remarks by Richard J. Pfleging,president of the Missouri Bankers Association and Bank of St. Ann.

Following business sessions and election of MBA officers for 1976-77, the first general session will conclude with an address by Bill Monroe, Washington editor for the NBC Television network, on "Beyond '76, America's Best Century".

The evening entertainment will include a riverboat party aboard the steamer Admiral.

Speakers at the second general sesion the morning of May 18 will include Dr. Clifford M. Hardin, vice chairman, Ralston Purina Co., St. Louis, and Harry V. Keefe, president of the securities investment firm of Keefe, Bruyette & Woods, New York City.

Bond will be the featured speaker at the noon luncheon.

New MBA officers will be elected May 17 and formally installed at the closing business session May 18. Nominees include: Charles K. Richmond, executive vice president, American National Bank of St. Joseph, for MBA president; Mills H. Anderson, president Bank of Carthagae, vice president; and Pat Lea, president, First National Bank of Sikeston, treasurer.

The afternoon speaker May 18 will be Dr. Cylvia A. Sorkin, economist and business consultant.

The 1976 convention will conclude with the president's banquet the evening of May 18.

Politics-money are stock market 'ifs'

By CROCKETT SCOTT

Politics and the money supply are the big ifs for the stock market, both near and long term.

Regardless of who eventually is elected president, the investment community believes that the majority of the electorate favors a more conservative, more hand-off approach to business and industry by the federal government.

Investment bankers concede that this thesis may be wishful thinking in part, but they cite recent events as supporting their view.

The departure of presidential candidates Birch Bayh and Fred Harris some weeks ago was an indication, they note. The poor showing in the primaries of Congressman Udall was another.

More recently, the decision of Hubert Humphrey not to become an active candidate lends support to this viewpoint.

Candidate Jimmy Carter, along with President Ford and the aspiring Ronald Regan, are keenly attuned to the shifting preferences of the electorate, notes the investment community.

Both Carter and (now inactive candidate) Henry Jackson have sought appeal from conservative bastions as well liberal, the investment community reminds constantly changing the rhetoric much as department store buyers of high fashion apparel attempt to keep on top of the ever changing whims of milady's wants for her wardrobe.

Witness President Ford's continuing movement tothe right amidst the relentless pounding of Reagan; and Carter's recent semantic stumble in his effort to hold onto conservative segments of the electorate, while simultaneously going after the liberal vote.

But after the election, what? In its report of April 26, Argus Research Reports observes that "the real economy is obviously flourishing as a result of earlier moderation of monetary policies and from the consequent disinflation.

"Retail sales jumped 2.8 per cent in March, and consumer prices rose at a mere 2.9 per cent rate in the first quarter. Continued strength in durable goods orders ---up 4 per cent in February and 6.5 per cent in March --points to a strong second quarter, as businesses gear up to meet those orders."

"To say that continued moderation in the growth of the money would be desirable is not to say that is necessarily very likely to happen," adds Argus Research. "Arthur Burns may be replaced by a more 'accomodative' chairman, and even the present board's control of the monetary aggregates has been known to dissolve during periods of rising interest rates.

"As hefty Treasury borrowings increasingly clash with rising private credit demands, interest rates will tend to rise (although continued progress on the inflation front would tend to moderate the rise, at least in nominal terms.)

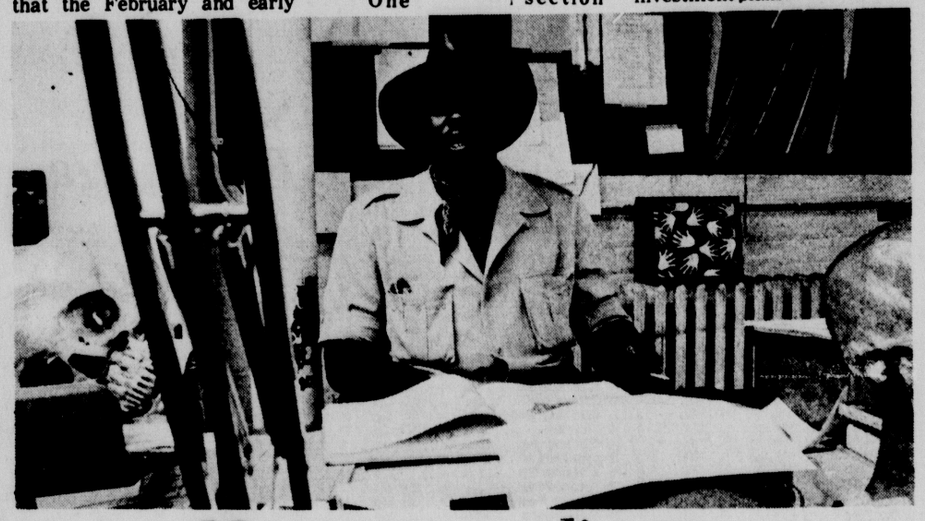
"Rising interest rates will prod the Fed into expanding bank reserves, if past history is any guide, but rising interest rates may also delay the effect on 1 (money in circulation plus demand deposits) by providing even greater initial incentives to hold liquid assets in interest-bearing form.

"The Fed's money growth targets may help restrain the process, but the Fed's policy of frequently shifting the base on which these growth rates are calculated still provides little assurance of long-term stability in money growth."

Less doubtful about future prospects is Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. In a recent bulletin the bank commented: "Month in and month out, business analysts have been plying variations on the theme: everything's coming up roses. At the risk of prolonging sameness-- but in the interest of telling it as it is--it must be said that the February and early March readings had a distinctly roseate cast."

The bank is encouraged particularly by rising industrial production, consumer spending and housing starts.

"One section marring the outlook" noted Morgan Guaranty, "is business capital outlays. But even there, the prospects appear more positive than is suggested by the government's latest survey on investment plans."



Museum coordinator

Jerry L. Banks, a former Sikeston resident, is now coordinator of the Anatomy Museum at the University of Illinois medical school in Chicago. He has created a mobile museum of 900 specimens, which he displays at Illinois colleges and universities.

Banks named to Who's Who

Jerry L. Banks, a former resident of Sikeston, has been chosen as one of 10,000 Black Americans included in the inaugural issue of "Who's Who Among Black Americans."

Banks was raised by his grandparents, the late Kellar Harris and Alice Harris, who lives at 233 Luther St. He is the nephew of Alonzo Harris, 108 Thompson, and Mrs. Louella Tucker, 308 Westgate.

Banks is coordinator of the Anatomy Meseum at the University of Illinois medical school in Chicago. He created a mobile museum of 900 specimens, which he displays at Illinois colleges and universities.

He also teaches restorative art, or preparing the deceased for burial, at a local mortuary science school.

A 1961 graduate of Sikeston Senior High, Banks received a degree in arts and science from Lincoln University in Jefferson City. He received a master's degree in medical art from the University of Illinois in 1972 and also attended the Worsham Mortuary School.

He recently collaborated with Dr. Alexander Lane, coordinator of anatomy at Triton College in Illinois, to publish a book, "Functional Human Anatomy- the Regional Approach." Banks illustrated the book.

Banks is married and he and his wife Olivia have two children, Choi, 8, and Jerry, 2.

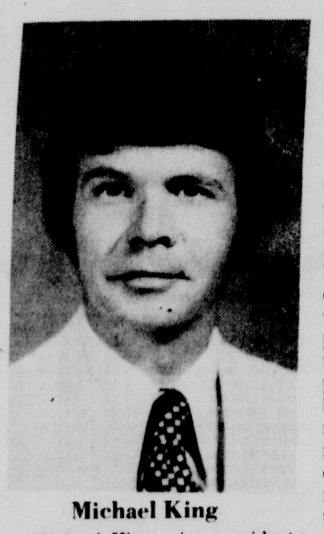
Attends home marketing session



Michael King

Michael King, vice president of Elliott-Newton Real Estate & Insurance, 411 N. Kingshighway, recently was among the more than 1,000 persons who attended the annual convention of the Homes for Living Network.

The Homes for Living Network, with headquarters at St. Louis, is a national marketing network of over 1,300 cooperating Realtor offices providing numerous services to the American home buying and selling public. The more than 10,000 brokers and sales associates serving over 8,000 communities in all 50 states and Puerto Rico accounted for more than $4 billion in residential sales in 1975.

Throughout the four-day convention more than 50 hours of sessions were held on all aspects of real estate. Special topics included working with builders and selling condominiums, a three-hour workshop on advertising and public relations, the introduction of a referral procedures manual (to be used by Homes for Living Network members as a guide in assisting families relocating to a new city), creative financing, retaining earnings and techniques and approaches to be a million dollar sales producer.

Another special session was devoted to better industry relations. The basis for this session was how a national marketing network of Realtors can better assist the needs of industry in transferring its employes.

Concluding the convention was the sixth annual awards banquet, where the Homes for Living Network Realtor of the Year and Sales Associates of the Year Awards were presented.

'Coke adds life to...'

Coca-Cola announces new theme

A totally new advertising campaign for Coca-Cola, positioning the brand as the soft drink for all occasions, will be introduced in the Sikeston area Tuesday, Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of Sikeston has announced.

Themed, "Coke Adds Life to...," the new campaign succeeds the popular and successful "It's The Real Thing" campaign and its recent "Look Up, America" executions.

"During the 1960's, there were few consumers who didn't know that 'Things Go Better With Coke.' For almost eight years, consumers have been reminded that Coke is 'The Real Thing,' as it always will be," Ronald B. Jones, vice president and general manager of the local bottling firm, said.

"Now, with the fresh 'Coke Adds Life to...' campaign, we will be able to reach consumers in a new way and to generate excitement in the soft drink business in Sikeston," he added.

The new campaign will be introduced with a simultaneous buy-out of all commercial time on three major television networks. From 9 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, all commercial time on the network stations will carry advertising for Coca-Cola.

Based on the most extensive consumer and communication research ever undertaken by The Coca-Cola company in support of an advertising campaign, "Coke Adds Life to..." positions Coca-Cola as the soft drink for all occasions and as a "youthful" brand.

"While virtually all of the market for Coca-Cola is comprised of the young and young-at-heart, this new campaign will build even greater loyalty for Coke among consumers in the 13 to 24 age group--the group that accounts for higher per capitas of soft drink consumption than any other," Jones said.

"Coke Adds Life to..." also is designed to enhance the friendly, warm and personal image of Coca-Cola.

Opening the campaign in television, commercials feature everyday places where young people gather. Commercial spots include "Filling Station" and "Fast Foods," both in 30- and 60-second versions. Additionally, a special commercial tying directly to the Bicentennial year shows how "Coke Adds Life to..." a Fourth of July parade in 30-, 60- and 90-second lengths.

Ford proclaims May 9-15 as 'Small Business Week'

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Ford has signed a proclamation designating the week of May 9 as Small Business Week, and ask all Americans to join him in supporting an expanding small business community.

The President said, "Small businesses are the cornerstone of the American economy. They stand as a symbol of American character and spirit. The traits of individual initiative, self-reliance and creativity we prize so highly, as exemplified by our small business men and women, have always been the indispensable characteristics of a free and dynamic people."

SBBA Administrator Mitchell P. Kobelinski said that a week-long salute to the nation's small businesses would be held during May 10-13 at the Hyatt Regency Washington, New Jersey Avenue at "D" Street, N.W., with national leaders in education, finance and industry participating.

The President, in his proclamation, pointed out that small businesses "...have provided us with a vast array of goods and services that enable us to enjoy a standard of living unequalled in the world. The nearly 10 million small businesses throughout the United States provide 58 per cent of our business employment and a livelihood for millions of Americans. More important, small business continues to provide the avenue by which so many have made the American dream of a better life for themselves and their families a reality."

McDonald searches for All-American High School Band

From somewhere in this state, two high school musicians are headed for New York City, Pasadena, Calif., and the title of "All-American."

The search is on for the top 102 high school musicians--two from each state and the District of Columbia--who will comprise the 1976 McDonald's All-American High School Band.

Sponsored each year by McDonald's restaurants, the McDonald's All-American High School Band in 1976 will mark its 10th anniversary by increasing its ranks to more than 1,000 alumni.

High school band directors in all 50 states and the District of Columbia have been invited to nominate their two best musicians before the June 30 deadline. Paul Lavalle, the band's director, and members of the McDonald's All-American High School Band Advisory Board will make the final selections.

Members of the advisory board include Dr. William Foster, director of bands at Florida A&M university, Tallahassee, Fla.; George A. Christopher, New York State Music Association; Dr. Bernard Baggs, Fairleigh-Dickinson University, Rutherford, N.J.; Emery L. Fears, director of bands, Norfolk State College at Norfolk, Va.; Robert F. O'Brien, honorary life president, National Catholic Bandmasters Association; and Robert B. Vezzetti, Brownsville High School, Tex.

Under the direction of Lavalle, who is a former director of Radio City Music Hall and director of the Band of America, the McDonald's All-American High School Band will play in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York City and the Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena, Calif. Each appearance will be televised nationally on the NBC and CBS networks.

"The band whose pants don't match"--so called because the musicians wear their own high school band uniforms topped off with special McDonald's All-American High School Band overlays and hats--also performs in an outdoor concert at famed Rockefeller Center in New York and parades through Disneyland during the California trip.

Each band member will have an opportunity to audition for one of two Paul Lavalle scholarships awarded annually by the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston. The scholarships include full tuition, board and room at the conservatory.

McDonald believes the purpose of the band is to single out America's outstanding high school musicians and honor them in much the same way all-star teams salute athletes.

"Traditionally, all -American recognition has applied to athletics," said Lavalle. "However, we believe that high school musicians deserve recognition just as much as athletes do. Because of this, the McDonald's All-American High School Band was created, establishing an all-star 'team' for musical all-Americans."

Politics-money are stock market 'ifs'

By CROCKETT SCOTT

Politics and the money supply are the big ifs for the stock market, both near and long term.

Regardless of who eventually is elected president, the investment community believes that the majority of the electorate favors a more conservative, more hand-off approach to business and industry by the federal government.

Investment bankers concede that this thesis may be wishful thinking in part, but they cite recent events as supporting their view.

The departure of presidential candidates Birch Bayh and Fred Harris some weeks ago was an indication, they note. The poor showing in the primaries of Congressman Udall was another.

More recently, the decision of Hubert Humphrey not to become an active candidate lends support to this viewpoint.

Candidate Jimmy Carter, along with President Ford and the aspiring Ronald Regan, are keenly attuned to the shifting preferences of the electorate, notes the investment community.

Both Carter and (now inactive candidate) Henry Jackson have sought appeal from conservative bastions as well liberal, the investment community reminds constantly changing the rhetoric much as department store buyers of high fashion apparel attempt to keep on top of the ever changing whims of milady's wants for her wardrobe.

Witness President Ford's continuing movement tothe right amidst the relentless pounding of Reagan; and Carter's recent semantic stumble in his effort to hold onto conservative segments of the electorate, while simultaneously going after the liberal vote.

But after the election, what? In its report of April 26, Argus Research Reports observes that "the real economy is obviously flourishing as a result of earlier moderation of monetary policies and from the consequent disinflation.

"Retail sales jumped 2.8 per cent in March, and consumer prices rose at a mere 2.9 per cent rate in the first quarter. Continued strength in durable goods orders ---up 4 per cent in February and 6.5 per cent in March --points to a strong second quarter, as businesses gear up to meet those orders."

"To say that continued moderation in the growth of the money would be desirable is not to say that is necessarily very likely to happen," adds Argus Research. "Arthur Burns may be replaced by a more 'accomodative' chairman, and even the present board's control of the monetary aggregates has been known to dissolve during periods of rising interest rates.

"As hefty Treasury borrowings increasingly clash with rising private credit demands, interest rates will tend to rise (although continued progress on the inflation front would tend to moderate the rise, at least in nominal terms.)

"Rising interest rates will prod the Fed into expanding bank reserves, if past history is any guide, but rising interest rates may also delay the effect on 1 (money in circulation plus demand deposits) by providing even greater initial incentives to hold liquid assets in interest-bearing form.

"The Fed's money growth targets may help restrain the process, but the Fed's policy of frequently shifting the base on which these growth rates are calculated still provides little assurance of long-term stability in money growth."

Less doubtful about future prospects is Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. In a recent bulletin the bank commented: "Month in and month out, business analysts have been plying variations on the theme: everything's coming up roses. At the risk of prolonging sameness-- but in the interest of telling it as it is--it must be said that the February and early March readings had a distinctly roseate cast."

The bank is encouraged particularly by rising industrial production, consumer spending and housing starts.

"One section marring the outlook" noted Morgan Guaranty, "is business capital outlays. But even there, the prospects appear more positive than is suggested by the government's latest survey on investment plans."

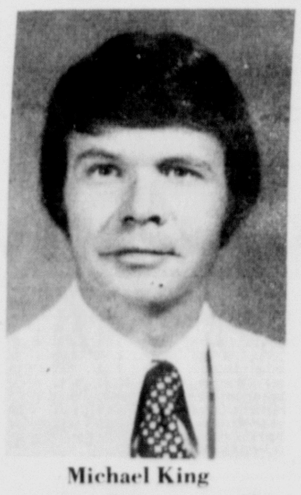
Attends home marketing session



Michael King

Michael King, vice president of Elliott-Newton Real Estate & Insurance, 411 N. Kingshighway, recently was among the more than 1,000 persons who attended the annual convention of the Homes for Living Network.

The Homes for Living Network, with headquarters at St. Louis, is a national marketing network of over 1,300 cooperating Realtor offices providing numerous services to the American home buying and selling public. The more than 10,000 brokers and sales associates serving over 8,000 communities in all 50 states and Puerto Rico accounted for more than $4 billion in residential sales in 1975.

Throughout the four-day convention more than 50 hours of sessions were held on all aspects of real estate. Special topics included working with builders and selling condominiums, a three-hour workshop on advertising and public relations, the introduction of a referral procedures manual (to be used by Homes for Living Network members as a guide in assisting families relocating to a new city), creative financing, retaining earnings and techniques and approaches to be a million dollar sales producer.

Another special session was devoted to better industry relations. The basis for this session was how a national marketing network of Realtors can better assist the needs of industry in transferring its employes.

Concluding the convention was the sixth annual awards banquet, where the Homes for Living Network Realtor of the Year and Sales Associates of the Year Awards were presented.

McDonald searches for All-American High School Band

From somewhere in this state, two high school musicians are headed for New York City, Pasadena, Calif., and the title of "All-American."

The search is on for the top 102 high school musicians--two from each state and the District of Columbia--who will comprise the 1976 McDonald's All-American High School Band.

"The band whose pants don't match"--so called because the musicians wear their own high school band uniforms topped off with special McDonald's All-American High School Band overlays and hats--also performs in an outdoor concert at famed Rockefeller Center in New York and parades through Disneyland during the California trip.

Each band member will have an opportunity to audition for one of two Paul Lavalle scholarships awarded annually by the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston. The scholarships include full tuition, board and room at the conservatory.

McDonald believes the purpose of the band is to single out America's outstanding high school musicians and honor them in much the same way all-star teams salute athletes.

"Traditionally, all -American recognition has applied to athletics," said Lavalle. "However, we believe that high school musicians deserve recognition just as much as athletes do. Because of this, the McDonald's All-American High School Band was created, establishing an all-star 'team' for musical all-Americans."

The pastor speaks: The Family!

The only institution Jesus did not challenge was the family. He rocked religion when he drove the money changers from the Temple. He shook political foundations when he looked Pilate in the eye. He influenced economic systems when he said it is better to give than to get.

But he did not undermine the family. Jesus understood it to be rooted in creation itself. From the beginning of creation, God created male and female. A man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife in one flesh.

Today the family is under savage attack from all sides. Some are arguing that, as an institution, it is no longer viable. Many are simply letting it fall apart. William Gladstone once wrote, "The homes of the people are the soul of the nation." If so, our nation is in trouble.

Maybe the answer for our torn family fabric is to reestablish our homes as ilittle worshiping congregations. The New Testament church began in the living rooms of the faithful. It is esexciting to think tof your own home as a church, your own family as a congregation. Mealtime is holy communion. Prayers are the community gathered for worship. Guests are sojourners invited in.

No matter how large you family is-even if it a family of one- it is a church.

Many families want Jesus as their Savior; few want him to be their Lord, Lots of people want the fruits of the Spirit; few people want to surrender to the authority of the Spirit.

The other day I visited a family of modest means who had great joy in their home. The father and mother love the church, each other and their children. The children received straight forward discipline plus lots of love. I was not surprised to see a slogan on the wall which read. "Christ is the Head of this Home." The plaque was like a shop flying its color.

In recent years, I have counseled a great number of married people. Some have been helped, some have not. Some got out of one problem only to drift into a new one later on. But the marriages that still glow after a decade or so are the husbands and wives who have accepted the authority of Jesus Christ. They still write to me and express gratitude to God for their marriages.

They are the ones who have solved the authority problem and call out with "as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

"There are three things that remain—faith, hope, and love—and the greatest of these is love." (1 Corinthians 13:13, TLB)

PRAYER: Our Father, thank You for the love that keeps mothers and daughters -all persons-together. In the spirit of Christ. Amen.

News firms protest rate hike

NEW YORK AP-News wire services have asked the Federal Communications Commission to suspend proposed new telephone line rates that will cost them an added 60 per cent.

The new rates, scheduled to take effect May 19, are what American Telephone '& Telegraph Co. charges for private lines- wires and microwave beams similar to those used for home telephones-and are in addition to any other rate increases granted the phone company.

The new rates will not raise the costs to the news services and some of the other private line customers immediately, however, because of a court order in another rate case.

The news services use these private lines to transmit international, national and regional news to newspapers and television and radio stations.

They carry news items from across the country, Washington and a hundred foreign countries, eports.

Private lines are also leased by about 20,000 business firms, which would pay an extra $10.5 million a year, or about 3 per cent. However rates for many of these customers would decline if they operate ony in more densely populated areas.

AT&T's annual revenue from all users of its private lines is newnow about $314 million.

Currently, The Associated Press, United Press International, Commodity News Service, Dow Jones & Co. Inc. and Reuters Ltd. pay about $15 million a year combined to ATT&T for private lines. The new rates will raise that by about $8.5 million a year.

The request filed Wednesday with the FCC by several of the news services and the American Newspaper Publishers Association asks the FCC to block the new rates until it can give them detailed study.

In asking for a hearing, the news services argue that AT&T has not filed data to justify the new rates.

Under the new rates, the cost of a long-distance private line between two big cities will be lower. But the cost of a line outside large metropolitan areas, in small communities whre the majority of those served by the news services are located, will be substatially higher, particularly where the distance between points on the circuit is short.

The AP alone uses a network of 75,000 miles of wire and microwave connections to provide news to 1,250 newspapers and 3.5000 radio and television stations. The cost of these lines to The AP is now about $4.3 million a year. It would rise by approximately $2 million a year under the new rates, an increase of about 45 per cent.

The additional cost to United Press International is estimated at $2.2 million annually, or 48 per cent higher. The extra cost to Dow Jones, which provides financial news, is estimated at $1.4 million annually, a 75 per cent increase.

The news services say the new rates will hinder the disemination of news by drastically increasing the costs of providing it to remote areas. The AP has found, for instance, that there are more than 2,000 broadcast stations in towns without daily newspapers. Most are beyond the signal of big city stations.

The independence of the United States is commemorated by the salute to the Union — one gun for each state — fired at noon on July 4 at all military posts with suitable artillery.

News firms protest rate hike

NEW YORK AP-News wire services have asked the Federal Communications Commission to suspend proposed new telephone line rates that will cost them an added 60 per cent.

The new rates, scheduled to take effect May 19, are what American Telephone '& Telegraph Co. charges for private lines- wires and microwave beams similar to those used for home telephones-and are in addition to any other rate increases granted the phone company.

The new rates will not raise the costs to the news services and some of the other private line customers immediately, however, because of a court order in another rate case.

The news services use these private lines to transmit international, national and regional news to newspapers and television and radio stations.

They carry news items from across the country, Washington and a hundred foreign countries, eports.

Private lines are also leased by about 20,000 business firms, which would pay an extra $10.5 million a year, or about 3 per cent. However rates for many of these customers would decline if they operate ony in more densely populated areas.

AT&T's annual revenue from all users of its private lines is newnow about $314 million.

Currently, The Associated Press, United Press International, Commodity News Service, Dow Jones & Co. Inc. and Reuters Ltd. pay about $15 million a year combined to ATT&T for private lines. The new rates will raise that by about $8.5 million a year.

The request filed Wednesday with the FCC by several of the news services and the American Newspaper Publishers Association asks the FCC to block the new rates until it can give them detailed study.

In asking for a hearing, the news services argue that AT&T has not filed data to justify the new rates.

Under the new rates, the cost of a long-distance private line between two big cities will be lower. But the cost of a line outside large metropolitan areas, in small communities whre the majority of those served by the news services are located, will be substatially higher, particularly where the distance between points on the circuit is short.

The AP alone uses a network of 75,000 miles of wire and microwave connections to provide news to 1,250 newspapers and 3.5000 radio and television stations. The cost of these lines to The AP is now about $4.3 million a year. It would rise by approximately $2 million a year under the new rates, an increase of about 45 per cent.

The additional cost to United Press International is estimated at $2.2 million annually, or 48 per cent higher. The extra cost to Dow Jones, which provides financial news, is estimated at $1.4 million annually, a 75 per cent increase.

The news services say the new rates will hinder the disemination of news by drastically increasing the costs of providing it to remote areas. The AP has found, for instance, that there are more than 2,000 broadcast stations in towns without daily newspapers. Most are beyond the signal of big city stations.

The independence of the United States is commemorated by the salute to the Union — one gun for each state — fired at noon on July 4 at all military posts with suitable artillery.

MOTHER'S DAY—1976

Although the date of Mother's Day — the second Sunday in May — was fixed by Congress in 1914, it is not a "legal" or "official" public holiday. Still, it is celebrated not only in every State in the Union, but in many foreign countries as well — and with good reason. What other person in our lives deserves more honor and recognition than our mothers? If it had not been for a mother's love and lots of TLC, many of us would not be alive today. And while we may have many other blessings in life, and many wonderful things by the two's or three's or dozens, we have only one mother.

It was mother who fed, nursed and bathed us when we were tiny; it was mother who kept us warm, for in the cold we would surely have perished; it was mother who tended our fears and tears; it was at mother's knee that we first learned to talk, and it was from mother's lips that we learned our first childhood prayers.

Whatever else in the whole world can compare to a mother's love? Gentle as a dove in one moment, she can be as fierce as a tiger at the slightest threat or danger to her child. The stories of a mother's devotion are as old as history.

In this bicentennial year while men may justly boast the great accomplishments of our land, it is universally recognized and recorded in the pages of history that had it not been for the bravery, courage, determination and fortitude of wives and mothers at every stage in the birth, growth and development of our Republic, we would never have reached the heights we occupy today.

Among all of the holidays and special occasions we celebrate throughout the year, Mother's Day is unique, because mothers are unique.

BABY'S BATH WATER

By Howard Flieger

It is time to consider where the cries of outrage over things done in the name of intelligence may be leading.

Evidence of past wrongdoing by the Central Intelligence Agency and the Federal Bureau of Investigation has sent the political pendulum on a wide swing. It is popular now to treat intelligence— the uglier word is "spying" — as a nasty business offensive to all decent people, and to stamp it out.

But is anybody naive enough to think there is no person or no organization within our borders trying to destroy the United States? Is it wise to strip away all means for standing guard against those who would do us in?

That is the trend.

No thoughtful American wants a return to the nightmare of "McCarthyism," a period when innuendo was all it took to ruin dozens of innocent men and women and smear hundreds of others.

Still, it is possible to go too far in the othe direction. Take a look at just a few of the signs along the way:

The Subversive Activities Control Board, which kept check on underground activities, [illegible] me time ago.

The House of Representatives voted more than a year ago to abolish its Committee on Internal Security and its persistent, controversial search for un-American activities.

The Senate Subcommittee on Internal Security has been hobbled by budget cuts.

The FBI's field of surveillance is narrowed by new guidelines.

Across the country, there has been a steady dismantling of intelligence records once maintained by police departments.

For example—

Baltimore no longer keeps intelligence files on so-called "activist" groups.

Eighty per cent of the New York City Police Department's data on "public security matters" have been thrown out.

Los Angeles junked nearly two million files it had on potential terrorists.

The Texas Department of Public Safety has abolished all intelligence files that were based on noncriminal investigations.

Granted, police dossiers of htis nature have been misused in the past. Too often, innocents have been daubed with the brush of subversion when they didn't deserve it.

That is inexcusable. But in the turn against surveillance, in the revulsion at internal intelligence of any sort, there is a danger of throwing the baby out with the bath water. It will be difficult, to say the least, to maintain vigilance against the enemies of America if there are no records of who they may be.

Along a different path, but headed in the same direction, are proposals in Congress and several States intended to safeguard the "right of privacy" of those with criminal pasts by destroying their records.

The intent is laudable: to rehabilitate ex-criminals and safeguard those falsely accused. But, carried to its logical conclusion, the end result would be much more sweeping than that. This is the way the New York Daily News has put it:

"If a man were arrested for raping a child, and he had a history of two previous rape convictions, law enforcement officials would be allowed to release details of the new crime and arrest, but would be prohibited from releasing details of the rapist's earlier convictions. Further, if the same man later applied for a job as a security guard at a private nursery school , there is no way that the school administration could obtain the man's criminal history."

Expunging of criminal records and the pressure against keeping tabs on potential subversives are two unrelated things, but they add up to a common danger:

Carried too far, protecting the privacy of a few can imperil the safety of all. -- U.S. News & World Report

THE MARBLE CUP...
By Albert Karsch

Tourist season in Missouri, our native and favorite state, will soon be getting into full swing with the closing of schools for the summer throughout the nation.

But again, the Missouri Tourism Commission in its annual tourist guide, "Seven Ways to Get Away in Missouri," incorrectly puts St. Francois county, and the counties south of St. Francois county, down through Dunklin county in the Missouri Bootheel, into "Big Springs Region."

Missouri's newest state park of 8,500 acres to be known as St. Joe State Park will be in St. Francois county. It will be the second largest in Missouri, second only to Lake of the Ozarks State Park. It is estimated half a million persons will visit our county annually when the land donated by St. Joe Minerals Corporation, upon its cessation of lead mining in the county, is fully developed. Now, more than ever, to continue the name of "Big Springs Region" for St. Francois county and its neighboring counties is both unfair and incorrect.

It's time to have James L. Pasley, director of the Commission, understand that St. Francois and its neighbors want back into their former "Old Settlement Playgrounds" or else a new name to be chosen for the three vacationlands that are now combined under the objectionable name of "Big Springs Region." The three areas used to be known as "Old Settlement Playgrounds," "The Delta Area," and "Big Springs Country."

In fairness to Mr. Pasley, we point out the name "Big Springs Region" was given to the three combined areas before he became director. He has answered our letters and newspaper articles the past two years, but nothing has been done to change the name, which centers the attractions of what were three former vacationlands on a comparatively small spot around Big Spring, just south of Van Buren. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been and are being spent in that area to pull vacationing families to Big Spring with its maximum flow of 846 million gallons of water each day and to Big Spring Park, the Current River Float Camp, Hawes Camp, Buffalo Camp and the Ozarks National Scenic Riverways on the Current River.

Most of the counties labeled "Big Springs Region" have nothing at all in common with Big Spring! When vacationists speak of Big Spring or Big Springs Region are they thinking of Farmington, which had the first Protestant Sunday school west of the Mississippi? Do they think of Ste. Genevieve, the oldest permanent settlement west of the Mississippi, or of Fredericktown, Perryville, Cape Girardeau, Sikeston, New Madrid, Kennett, Caruthersville, and Hornersville? Or do they think, instead, of Big Spring itself and of Blue Spring near Ellington, of Round Spring at Round Spring State Park, of Welch Springs near Akers, of Greer Spring near Greer, and of Alley Spring and Alley Spring Park?

The tourism commission consists of nine members— two members of the Senate of different political parties appointed by the president pro tem of the Senate; two members of the House of Representatives of different political parties appointed by the speaker of the House; five other persons appointed by the Governor, which may include, but are not limited to persons engaged in tourist-oriented operations. No more than three of the five appointed by the Governor can be of the same political party.

Who are the men serving the Missouri Division of Tourism? Where do they live? Consult pages 346-348 of the Missouri Official Manual, State of Missouri, 1975-76. Now take a quarter and center it over Cassville, population 1,910, just north of the Arkansas border in Southwest Missouri. Draw a heavy circle around your coin with a black tip pen. Your circle will designate the hometown of Sen. Emory Melton (R), chairman of the Missouri Tourism Committee.

Draw a similar circle around Willard, population 1,018, just northwest of Springfield and you will have marked the home city of Lee McLean, Jr., also a member of the Commission. Both Melton and McLean live in the "Ozark Playground Region" of Southwest Missouri. Go eastward to Cabool, population 1,848, and place a circle there to show the residence of Rep. Earl L. Sponsler (D), commission vice-chairman. Now draw a fourth circle around Clinton, population 7,504, southwest of Kansas City, to show the home of Sen. William J. Cason (D) of Ironton, who represents our 20th senatorial district, in seeking approval of $102,358 by the Senate Appropriations Committee to protect St. Joe State Park from vandalism and theft as ST. Joe Minerals Corporation left property with an estimated value of $250,000 to $500,000 on the site. We solicit Cason's aid and Dinger's help, too,in getting a name change for the Big Springs Region. Supporting Cason and Dinger in getting approval of Federal funds needed for the new park in St. Francois county are County Representative Ron Bockenkamp (D) of Bonne Terre and Richard Rabbitt(D) of St. Louis, Speaker of the House of Representatives.)

Draw a fifth circle around Kansas City, Mo., to outline the residential area of both Rep. Harold Lowenstein (R) and Herbert Valentine, Jr., as the Kansas City area has two men on the Commission. Now draw circles around Marysville, population 9,970, in Northwest Missouri and around Shelbyville, population 601, in Northeast Missouri. Maryville is the home of Leigh Wilson—Shelbyville is the home of William R. Hewitt, both members of the Commission. Draw fa final circle around Manchester, population 5,031, the home of Larry Cochran, ninth member of the Commission. Having finished your circles, locate Van Buren and draw a heavy black arrow pointing to Big Spring in Carter county.

Hold up your 1976 Missouri map now and let the circles and the arrow reveal the hometowns of the Commission members and the location of Big Spring. You will notice Cabool, the hometown of Rep. Sponsler, is just barely inside the western border of our region. It is located between all of the springs we mentioned earlier and the Ozark Playgrounds Region. You will be aware, too, from the 1976 Tourist Guide that the name of the Ozarks Playground Region does not unfairly pinpoint Silver Dollar City or Table Rock Lake or any particular attraction in our adjoining region. Why couldn't our part of the state have retained its former Old Settlement Playgrounds designation or have been given an equally general name when the former 15 vacationlands were reduced to seven?

Director Pasley receives a salary of $20,254. Jack Plympton, assistant director, also of Jefferson City, a salary of $16,752. Nineteen other persons on the Commission's staff receive from $4,884 (tourist information clerk) to $12,588 for the chief photographer and $13,848 for the well spent in attracting vacationists and visitors to Missouri. And this year's Guide will compare favorably with or surpass any other state guide in the country, thanks to Director Pasley, and Ralph W. Walker, photographers, and R. C. Holmes, art and layout, and Steven Kappler and Dean Brooks writers, and to others who assisted them.

But it's time for county and state representatives in our area, mayors, recreation directors, newspaper editors, business and professional men and women and individual residents of Southeast Missouri to take part in declaring that "Big Springs Region" is an inappropriate name if the are is to include St. Francois county with its new St. Joe State Park and the counties south of St. Francois to the Missouri Bootheel.

Those who want to take a stand with us for the third consecutive year in renouncing the name of "Big Springs Region" for the three areas that were combined in recent years, can write to James L. Pasley, Director of the Missouri Division of Tourism, P. O. Box 1055, Jefferson City, Mo., 65101 or to his home address, 1719 Green Meadow, Jefferson City, Mo.

FBI AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

The Fourth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution states that "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated..."

On at least 238 occasions between 1942 and 1966, however, the Federal Bureau of Investigation took it upon itself to amend that amendment to read, "...unless the FBI decides otherwise."

The Bureau has admitted to making that many illegal searches if not seizures of the papers and effects of 14 "domestic subversive targets" in that period—what it calls "black bag" jobs, after the kits of burglar tools carried by its agents. Between 1960 and 1966, 92 of these break-ins, or about one every three weeks, were made without benefit of court-issued warrants against the New York City headquarters of the Socialist Workers Party.

The disclosure has come as the result of a long-running suit brought by the party against the government. Previously, the Justice Department had denied that the party had ever been the target of burglaries by federal agents.

FBI director Clarence Kelley has now assured Americans that the FBI stopped this kind of monkey business in the late 1960s and says he doesn't know of any more such instances "lurking in the background." But as one spokesman for the Socialist Workers Party has pointed out, there is now way of knowing if this is true. No agent or official of the FBI, or no official of the New York police, which apparently co-operated with the feds, has ever been brought to account for this illegal activity.

So far as is known, the FBI was never able to find any evidence in the files of the Socialist Workers Party that it posed any threat to the security of the United States. What it did find and photograph, along with other harmless documents and correspondence, were the names of contributors to the party.

What kind of chilling effect this revelation will have on the free exercise of political rights by people who have supported this or other unpopular socialist-oriented splinter groups is impossible to say.

But it should certainly send a shiver—of disgust if not of fear—down the spine of every American who believes that the Constitution is supposed to mean what it says.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
U.S. Aiding Chilean Junta
with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON— In defiance of both Congress and the United Nations, the Ford Administration has gone behind the barn to bolster the military dictatorship of Chile.

The UN, following up our own reports of repression and torture inside Chile, has condemned the junta for violating human rights. And only last week, the respected Inter-American Human Rights Commission denounced the junta for its torture tactics.

Congress reacted by imposing a $90 million limit on economic aid for Chile this fiscal year. It was the intent of Congress, clearly, that the aid should go directly to needy people. Other nations have also refused to extend credit to the beleaguered dictatorship.

Nevertheless, the Administration has shaken loose hidden money to bail out the junta. Here are the hush-hush developments:

-- The Overseas Private Investment Corporation, a quasi-official U.S. institution, has quietly agreed to begin insuring companies that invest in CHile. The State Department, according to our sources, twisted OPIC arms. This should stimulate a flood of investment capital into the country.

-- Both the State and Treasury departments have also encouraged 14 U.S. and Canadian banks to loan the military dictatorship $100 million to $125 million. The loan is needed to pay off short-term obligations to other countries. Britain and Italy have refused to reschedule Chilean debt payments because of the regime's human rights violations. New York's First National City Bank will put up most of the money for the junta, with the financial support of the Bank of America, several New York banks and two Canadaian banks.

-- U.S. advisers have also brought pressure upon the Inter-American Development Bank's President Antonio Ortiz Mena, who has promised that the bank will loan up to $125 million to Chile. The first $20 million already has been approved.

-- The State Department gave Chile a $55 million housing guarantee that a House subcommittee believes exceeded the $90 million congressional ceiling. "The Administration clearly has sought to evade the spirit, if not the letter, of the congressional aid ceilings to Chile," declared Chairman Don Fraser, D.-Calif.

We have been chronicling the Chilean saga since we reported on March 21, 1972, that the Central Intelligence Agency and International Telephone and Telegraph were conspiring together to undermine the Chilean economy. Their objective was to oust President Salvador Allende, an elected Marxist, from power.

The CIA at first denied participating in economic sabotage against the Allende regime but, three years later, was forced to confess our story was true after the Senat Intelligence Committee published the proof.

The former Nixon Administration, meanwhile, phased out economic aid to the Allende regime on the grounds that the Chilean economy was unstable. Under Allende, the inflation rate shot up from 22 per cent in 1971 to 163 per cent in 1972, with a 4.4 per cent unemployment rate. Since the military junta seized power, the inflation rate has soared to a stratospheric 340 per cent, with a 16.6 per cent unemployment rate.

We have taken pains to point out, by the way, that the military rulers have oppressed not only the Marxists but the Christian Democrats.

Footnote: A spokesman for First National City Bank confirmed that the bank was sudying the Chilean loan. A Bank of America spokesman refused to comment on our story. At the State Department, a spokesman acknowledged only that discussions had been held with OPIC. A Treasury official said the department was careful not to tell banks who should get loans but acknowledged: "They may have been encouraged by what our desk people tell them."

OPERATION MUDHEN: The Central Intelligence Agency, in violation of the law, kept us under physical, photographic and elecvtronic surveillance in 1972. Twenty men were assigned full tim to the project, which was known inside the agency as "Project Mudhen."

Nevertheless, we continued to jolt the CIA with a series of stories right out of their files. We reported, for example, that corrupt government officials around the world profited from heroin sales to the U.S. Our story touched off a renewed investigation, since the information had come from classified CIA documents.

The cloak-and-dagger crowd, accroding to documents intended for their eyes only, suspected a federal narcotics employe had leaked the story. CIA Deputy Director Edward Proctor urged Richard Helms, then the CIA director, to speak with federal narcotics chief John Ingersoll.

"Offer technical assistance in determining who is responsible for passing the classified material to Jack Anderson," Proctor urged. Inside the CIA, "technical assistance" is a polite way of referring to bugging devices, lie detectors and even break-ins.

Proctor now assures us that he had in mind only lie detectors in this case, not the naughtier forms of "technical assistance." Of course any CIA assistance in a domestic investigation is a vbiolation of law. So no matter how it is interpreted, Proctor proposed a crime.

Footnote: Reached in Paris, Ingersoll said he couldn't recall any offer from Helms. But if Helms had suggested wiretapping agents, growled Ingersoll, "I would have thrown him out of my office."

A WELFARE CASE

WASHINGTON— "Please sit down Mr. er, er Mr. Tompkins."

"Yes, ma'am."

"Now, Mr. Tompkins, I am the social worker assigned to your case. Have you ever applied for welfare before?"

"No, ma'am, and I never thought I'd ever see the day when I would."

"Well, let's review your case. It says here that you were a congressman for four terms, a governor for two terms, and a senator for one term."

"Yes, ma'am, I have references here that indicate everyone thought I did a good job."

"I see. Please don't cry, Mr. Tompkins, I'm here to help you."

"I'm sorry, it's just that...well, it's not easy for me to one day a presidentail candidate and the next day to be asking for welfare.

"You were a presidential candidate?"

"Yes, ma'am. I was until last week. Here is some of my campaign literature. You see here it says 'Tompkins for President' -- and that's a picture of my wife and my family, and that's me holding up my fingers in a 'V for Victory' sign."

"You have a nice family, Mr. Tompkins. I hope you don't think I'm prying, but I do have to have this information for my records. What happened between the time you ran for President and today when you came here?"

"It didn't happen all at once. I started out with a fairly good-size campaign fund; maybe $500,000. Then we went into New Hampshire and spent half of it. I didn't do too well in New Hampshire so my campaign manager said we'd have to make an all-out effort in Florida.

"He assured me we could afford it because we would be getting funds from the government to match what we raised. We blew a pot of money on TV commercials in Florida and ran fourth. I was highly encouraged because I had predicted I would come in fifth; so coming in fourth could be interpreted as a victory.

"Unfortunately, we found it harder and harder to raise funds and the government wasn't coming through with the money it promised us. We had the choice of going into Wisconsin or New York. The motels in Wisconsin were cheaper so we decided to campaign there. I came in sixth which made fools out of ABC, NBC and CBS, who all predicted I would come in eighth.

"But despite the optimism in my camp, money was still the main problem. I borrowed on my life insurance to campaign in North Carolina, and my wife sold all her jewelry so I could hold a rally in South Bend, Ind. The polls indicated I was getting delegates in New Mexico and there was talk I might even sweep Newport, R.I.

"Just as I was picking up momentum we had to close all our campaign headquarters and sell our furniture to pay the printer. But I knew if I could have one big victtory in a Northern industrial state the money would start rolling in again.

"I decided I would do or die in Pennsylvania. I sold my car and bought a 30-second radio spot in Philadelphia. Then I mortgaged the house for three one-minute TV spots in Pittsburgh. My wife sold her hair so we could take out an advertisement in a Harrisburg newspaper. And I hocked my son's guitar for billboard space in Scranton.

"But it wasn't enough. We came in 10th and the media started to write I wouldn't make it. I guess they were right because here I am applying for welfare."

"Mr. Tompkins, your case is very interesting, but I would like to ask you what made you think you could run for President in the first place?"

"When I was a little boy my father told me anyone in the United States could run for President of the United States."

"Did he tell you how much money you would need to run in the primaries?"

"No, ma'am. He didn't say anything about money."

"Well, your father was a very foolish man to encourage you to run for an office that costs millions of dollars."

"Yes, ma'am."

MOTHER'S DAY—1976

Although the date of Mother's Day — the second Sunday in May — was fixed by Congress in 1914, it is not a "legal" or "official" public holiday. Still, it is celebrated not only in every State in the Union, but in many foreign countries as well — and with good reason. What other person in our lives deserves more honor and recognition than our mothers? If it had not been for a mother's love and lots of TLC, many of us would not be alive today. And while we may have many other blessings in life, and many wonderful things by the two's or three's or dozens, we have only one mother.

It was mother who fed, nursed and bathed us when we were tiny; it was mother who kept us warm, for in the cold we would surely have perished; it was mother who tended our fears and tears; it was at mother's knee that we first learned to talk, and it was from mother's lips that we learned our first childhood prayers.

Whatever else in the whole world can compare to a mother's love? Gentle as a dove in one moment, she can be as fierce as a tiger at the slightest threat or danger to her child. The stories of a mother's devotion are as old as history.

In this bicentennial year while men may justly boast the great accomplishments of our land, it is universally recognized and recorded in the pages of history that had it not been for the bravery, courage, determination and fortitude of wives and mothers at every stage in the birth, growth and development of our Republic, we would never have reached the heights we occupy today.

Among all of the holidays and special occasions we celebrate throughout the year, Mother's Day is unique, because mothers are unique.

BABY'S BATH WATER

By Howard Flieger

It is time to consider where the cries of outrage over things done in the name of intelligence may be leading.

Evidence of past wrongdoing by the Central Intelligence Agency and the Federal Bureau of Investigation has sent the political pendulum on a wide swing. It is popular now to treat intelligence— the uglier word is "spying" — as a nasty business offensive to all decent people, and to stamp it out.

But is anybody naive enough to think there is no person or no organization within our borders trying to destroy the United States? Is it wise to strip away all means for standing guard against those who would do us in?

That is the trend.

No thoughtful American wants a return to the nightmare of "McCarthyism," a period when innuendo was all it took to ruin dozens of innocent men and women and smear hundreds of others.

Still, it is possible to go too far in the othe direction. Take a look at just a few of the signs along the way:

The Subversive Activities Control Board, which kept check on underground activities, [illegible] ne time ago.

The House of Representatives voted more than a year ago to abolish its Committee on Internal Security and its persistent, controversial search for un-American activities.

The Senate Subcommittee on Internal Security has been hobbled by budget cuts.

The FBI's field of surveillance is narrowed by new guidelines.

Across the country, there has been a steady dismantling of intelligence records once maintained by police departments.

For example—

Baltimore no longer keeps intelligence files on so-called "activist" groups.

Eighty per cent of the New York City Police Department's data on "public security matters" have been thrown out.

Los Angeles junked nearly two million files it had on potential terrorists.

The Texas Department of Public Safety has abolished all intelligence files that were based on noncriminal investigations.

Granted, police dossiers of htis nature have been misused in the past. Too often, innocents have been daubed with the brush of subversion when they didn't deserve it.

That is inexcusable. But in the turn against surveillance, in the revulsion at internal intelligence of any sort, there is a danger of throwing the baby out with the bath water. It will be difficult, to say the least, to maintain vigilance against the enemies of America if there are no records of who they may be.

Along a different path, but headed in the same direction, are proposals in Congress and several States intended to safeguard the "right of privacy" of those with criminal pasts by destroying their records.

The intent is laudable: to rehabilitate ex-criminals and safeguard those falsely accused. But, carried to its logical conclusion, the end result would be much more sweeping than that. This is the way the New York Daily News has put it:

"If a man were arrested for raping a child, and he had a history of two previous rape convictions, law enforcement officials would be allowed to release details of the new crime and arrest, but would be prohibited from releasing details of the rapist's earlier convictions. Further, if the same man later applied for a job as a security guard at a private nursery school , there is no way that the school administration could obtain the man's criminal history."

Expunging of criminal records and the pressure against keeping tabs on potential subversives are two unrelated things, but they add up to a common danger:

Carried too far, protecting the privacy of a few can imperil the safety of all. -- U.S. News & World Report

THE MARBLE CUP...

By Albert Karsch

Tourist season in Missouri, our native and favorite state, will soon be getting into full swing with the closing of schools for the summer throughout the nation.

But again, the Missouri Tourism Commission in its annual tourist guide, "Seven Ways to Get Away in Missouri," incorrectly puts St. Francois county, and the counties south of St. Francois county, down through Dunklin county in the Missouri Bootheel, into "Big Springs Region."

Missouri's newest state park of 8,500 acres to be known as St. Joe State Park will be in St. Francois county. It will be the second largest in Missouri, second only to Lake of the Ozarks State Park. It is estimated half a million persons will visit our county annually when the land donated by St. Joe Minerals Corporation, upon its cessation of lead mining in the county, is fully developed. Now, more than ever, to continue the name of "Big Springs Region" for St. Francois county and its neighboring counties is both unfair and incorrect.

It's time to have James L. Pasley, director of the Commission, understand that St. Francois and its neighbors want back into their former "Old Settlement Playgrounds" or else a new name to be chosen for the three vacationlands that are now combined under the objectionable name of "Big Springs Region." The three areas used to be known as "Old Settlement Playgrounds," "The Delta Area," and "Big Springs Country."

In fairness to Mr. Pasley, we point out the name "Big Springs Region" was given to the three combined areas before he became director. He has answered our letters and newspaper articles the past two years, but nothing has been done to change the name, which centers the attractions of what were three former vacationlands on a comparatively small spot around Big Spring, just south of Van Buren. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been and are being spent in that area to pull vacationing families to Big Spring with its maximum flow of 846 million gallons of water each day and to Big Spring Park, the Current River Float Camp, Hawes Camp, Buffalo Camp and the Ozarks National Scenic Riverways on the Current River.

Most of the counties labeled "Big Springs Region" have nothing at all in common with Big Spring! When vacationists speak of Big Spring or Big Springs Region are they thinking of Farmington, which had the first Protestant Sunday school west of the Mississippi? Do they think of Ste. Genevieve, the oldest permanent settlement west of the Mississippi, or of Fredericktown, Perryville, Cape Girardeau, Sikeston, New Madrid, Kennett, Caruthersville, and Hornersville? Or do they think, instead, of Big Spring itself and of Blue Spring near Ellington, of Round Spring at Round Spring State Park, of Welch Springs near Akers, of Greer Spring near Greer, and of Alley Spring and Alley Spring Park?

The tourism commission consists of nine members— two members of the Senate of different political parties appointed by the president pro tem of the Senate; two members of the House of Representatives of different political parties appointed by the speaker of the House; five other persons appointed by the Governor, which may include, but are not limited to persons engaged in tourist-oriented operations. No more than three of the five appointed by the Governor can be of the same political party.

Who are the men serving the Missouri Division of Tourism? Where do they live? Consult pages 346-348 of the Missouri Official Manual, State of Missouri, 1975-76. Now take a quarter and center it over Cassville, population 1,910, just north of the Arkansas border in Southwest Missouri. Draw a heavy circle around your coin with a black tip pen. Your circle will designate the hometown of Sen. Emory Melton (R), chairman of the Missouri Tourism Committee.

Draw a similar circle around Willard, population 1,018, just northwest of Springfield and you will have marked the home city of Lee McLean, Jr., also a member of the Commission. Both Melton and McLean live in the "Ozark Playground Region", of Southwest Missouri. Go eastward to Cabool, population 1,848, and place a circle there to show the residence of Rep. Earl L. Sponsler (D), commission vice-chairman. Now draw a fourth circle around Clinton, population 7,504, southwest of Kansas City, to show the home of Sen. William J. Cason (D) of Ironton, who represents our 20th senatorial district, in seeking approval of $102,358 by the Senate Appropriations Committee to protect St. Joe State Park from vandalism and theft as ST. Joe Minerals Corporation left property with an estimated value of $250,000 to $500,000 on the site. We solicit Cason's aid and Dinger's help, too,in getting a name change for the Big Springs Region. Supporting Cason and Dinger in getting approval of Federal funds needed for the new park in St. Francois county are County Representative Ron Bockenkamp (D) of Bonne Terre and Richard Rabbitt(D) of St. Louis, Speaker of the House of Representatives.)

Draw a fifth circle around Kansas City, Mo., to outline the residential area of both Rep. Harold Lowenstein (R) and Herbert Valentine, Jr., as the Kansas City area has two men on the Commission. Now draw circles around Marysville, population 9,970, in Northwest Missouri and around Shelbyville, population 601, in Northeast Missouri. Maryville is the home of Leigh Wilson—Shelbyville is the home of William R. Hewitt, both members of the Commission. Draw fa final circle around Manchester, population 5,031, the home of Larry Cochran, ninth member of the Commission. Having finished your circles, locate Van Buren and draw a heavy black arrow pointing to Big Spring in Carter county.

Hold up your 1976 Missouri map now and let the circles and the arrow reveal the hometowns of the Commission members and the location of Big Spring. You will notice Cabool, the hometown of Rep. Sponsler, is just barely inside the western border of our region. It is located between all of the springs we mentioned earlier and the Ozark Playgrounds Region. You will be aware, too, from the 1976 Tourist Guide that the name of the Ozarks Playground Region does not unfairly pinpoint Silver Dollar City or Table Rock Lake or any particular attraction in our adjoining region. Why couldn't our part of the state have retained its former Old Settlement Playgrounds designation or have been given an equally general name when the former 15 vacationlands were reduced to seven?

Director Pasley receives a salary of $20,254. Jack Plympton, assistant director, also of Jefferson City, a salary of $16,752. Nineteen other persons on the Commission's staff receive from $4,884 (tourist information clerk) to $12,588 for the chief photographer and $13,848 for the well spent in attracting vacationists and visitors to Missouri. And this year's Guide will compare favorably with or surpass any other state guide in the country, thanks to Director Pasley, and Ralph W. Walker, photographers, and R. C. Holmes, art and layout, and Steven Kappler and Dean Brooks writers, and to others who assisted them.

But it's time for county and state representatives in our area, mayors, recreation directors, newspaper editors, business and professional men and women and individual residents of Southeast Missouri to take part in declaring that "Big Springs Region" is an inappropriate name if the are is to include St. Francois county with its new St. Joe State Park and the counties south of St. Francois to the Missouri Bootheel.

Those who want to take a stand with us for the third consecutive year in renouncing the name of "Big Springs Region" for the three areas that were combined in recent years, can write to James L. Pasley, Director of the Missouri Division of Tourism, P. O. Box 1055, Jefferson City, Mo., 65101 or to his home address, 1719 Green Meadow, Jefferson City, Mo.

FBI AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

The Fourth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution states that "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated..."

On at least 238 occasions between 1942 and 1966, however, the Federal Bureau of Investigation took it upon itself to amend that amendment to read, "...unless the FBI decides otherwise."

The Bureau has admitted to making that many illegal searches if not seizures of the papers and effects of 14 "domestic subversive targets" in that period—what it calls "black bag" jobs, after the kits of burglar tools carried by its agents. Between 1960 and 1966, 92 of these break-ins, or about one every three weeks, were made without benefit of court-issued warrants against the New York City headquarters of the Socialist Workers Party.

The disclosure has come as the result of a long-running suit brought by the party against the government. Previously, the Justice Department had denied that the party had ever been the target of burglaries by federal agents.

FBI director Clarence Kelley has now assured Americans that the FBI stopped this kind of monkey business in the late 1960s and says he doesn't know of any more such instances "lurking in the background." But as one spokesman for the Socialist Workers Party has pointed out, there is now way of knowing if this is true. No agent or official of the FBI, or no official of the New York police, which apparently co-operated with the feds, has ever been brought to account for this illegal activity.

So far as is known, the FBI was never able to find any evidence in the files of the Socialist Workers Party that it posed any threat to the security of the United States. What it did find and photograph, along with other harmless documents and correspondence, were the names of contributors to the party.

What kind of chilling effect this revelation will have on the free exercise of political rights by people who have supported this or other unpopular socialist-oriented splinter groups is impossible to say.

But it should certainly send a shiver—of disgust if not of fear—down the spine of every American who believes that the Constitution is supposed to mean what it says.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
U.S. Aiding Chilean Junta with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON— In defiance of both Congress and the United Nations, the Ford Administration has gone behind the barn to bolster the military dictatorship of Chile.

The UN, following up our own reports of repression and torture inside Chile, has condemned the junta for violating human rights. And only last week, the respected Inter-American Human Rights Commission denounced the junta for its torture tactics.

Congress reacted by imposing a $90 million limit on economic aid for Chile this fiscal year. It was the intent of Congress, clearly, that the aid should go directly to needy people. Other nations have also refused to extend credit to the beleaguered dictatorship.

Nevertheless, the Administration has shaken loose hidden money to bail out the junta. Here are the hush-hush developments:

-- The Overseas Private Investment Corporation, a quasi-official U.S. institution, has quietly agreed to begin insuring companies that invest in CHile. The State Department, according to our sources, twisted OPIC arms. This should stimulate a flood of investment capital into the country.

-- Both the State and Treasury departments have also encouraged 14 U.S. and Canadian banks to loan the military dictatorship $100 million to $125 million. The loan is needed to pay off short-term obligations to other countries. Britain and Italy have refused to reschedule Chilean debt payments because of the regime's human rights violations. New York's First National City Bank will put up most of the money for the junta, with the financial support of the Bank of America, several New York banks and two Canadaian banks.

-- U.S. advisers have also brought pressure upon the Inter-American Development Bank's President Antonio Ortiz Mena, who has promised that the bank will loan up to $125 million to Chile. The first $20 million already has been approved.

-- The State Department gave Chile a $55 million housing guarantee that a House subcommittee believes exceeded the $90 million congressional ceiling. "The Administration clearly has sought to evade the spirit, if not the letter, of the congressional aid ceilings to Chile," declared Chairman Don Fraser, D.-Calif.

We have been chronicling the Chilean saga since we reported on March 21, 1972, that the Central Intelligence Agency and International Telephone and Telegraph were conspiring together to undermine the Chilean economy. Their objective was to oust President Salvador Allende, an elected Marxist, from power.

The CIA at first denied participating in economic sabotage against the Allende regime but, three years later, was forced to confess our story was true after the Senat Intelligence Committee published the proof.

The former Nixon Administration, meanwhile, phased out economic aid to the Allende regime on the grounds that the Chilean economy was unstable. Under Allende, the inflation rate shot up from 22 per cent in 1971 to 163 per cent in 1972, with a 4.4 per cent unemployment rate. Since the military junta seized power, the inflation rate has soared to a stratospheric 340 per cent, with a 16.6 per cent unemployment rate.

We have taken pains to point out, by the way, that the military rulers have oppressed not only the Marxists but the Christian Democrats.

Footnote: A spokesman for First National City Bank confirmed that the bank was sudying the Chilean loan. A Bank of America spokesman refused to comment on our story. At the State Department, a spokesman acknowledged only that discussions had been held with OPIC. A Treasury official said the department was careful not to tell banks who should get loans but acknowledged: "They may have been encouraged by what our desk people tell them."

OPERATION MUDHEN: The Central Intelligence Agency, in violation of the law, kept us under physical, photographic and elecvtronic surveillance in 1972. Twenty men were assigned full tim to the project, which was known inside the agency as "Project Mudhen."

Nevertheless, we continued to jolt the CIA with a series of stories right out of their files. We reported, for example, that corrupt government officials around the world profited from heroin sales to the U.S. Our story touched off a renewed investigation, since the information had come from classified CIA documents.

The cloak-and-dagger crowd, accroding to documents intended for their eyes only, suspected a federal narcotics employe had leaked the story. CIA Deputy Director Edward Proctor urged Richard Helms, then the CIA director, to speak with federal narcotics chief John Ingersoll.

"Offer technical assistance in determining who is responsible for passing the classified material to Jack Anderson," Proctor urged. Inside the CIA, "technical assistance" is a polite way of referring to bugging devices, lie detectors and even break-ins.

Proctor now assures us that he had in mind only lie detectors in this case, not the naughtier forms of "technical assistance." Of course any CIA assistance in a domestic investigation is a vbiolation of law. So no matter how it is interpreted, Proctor proposed a crime.

Footnote: Reached in Paris, Ingersoll said he couldn't recall any offer from Helms. But if Helms had suggested wiretapping agents, growled Ingersoll, "I would have thrown him out of my office."

A WELFARE CASE

WASHINGTON— "Please sit down Mr. er, er Mr. Tompkins."

"Yes, ma'am."

"Now, Mr. Tompkins, I am the social worker assigned to your case. Have you ever applied for welfare before?"

"No, ma'am, and I never thought I'd ever see the day when I would."

"Well, let's review your case. It says here that you were a congressman for four terms, a governor for two terms, and a senator for one term."

"Yes, ma'am, I have references here that indicate everyone thought I did a good job."

"I see. Please don't cry, Mr. Tompkins, I'm here to help you."

"I'm sorry, it's just that...well, it's not easy for me to one day a presidentail candidate and the next day to be asking for welfare.

"You were a presidential candidate?"

"Yes, ma'am. I was until last week. Here is some of my campaign literature. You see here it says 'Tompkins for President' -- and that's a picture of my wife and my family, and that's me holding up my fingers in a 'V for Victory' sign."

"You have a nice family, Mr. Tompkins. I hope you don't think I'm prying, but I do have to have this information for my records. What happened between the time you ran for President and today when you came here?"

"It didn't happen all at once. I started out with a fairly good-size campaign fund; maybe $500,000. Then we went into New Hampshire and spent half of it. I didn't do too well in New Hampshire so my campaign manager said we'd have to make an all-out effort in Florida.

"He assured me we could afford it because we would be getting funds from the government to match what we raised. We blew a pot of money on TV commercials in Florida and ran fourth. I was highly encouraged because I had predicted I would come in fifth; so coming in fourth could be interpreted as a victory.

"Unfortunately, we found it harder and harder to raise funds and the government wasn't coming through with the money it promised us. We had the choice of going into Wisconsin or New York. The motels in Wisconsin were cheaper so we decided to campaign there. I came in sixth which made fools out of ABC, NBC and CBS, who all predicted I would come in eighth.

"But despite the optimism in my camp, money was still the main problem. I borrowed on my life insurance to campaign in North Carolina, and my wife sold all her jewelry so I could hold a rally in South Bend, Ind. The polls indicated I was getting delegates in New Mexico and there was talk I might even sweep Newport, R.I.

"Just as I was picking up momentum we had to close all our campaign headquarters and sell our furniture to pay the printer. But I knew if I could have one big victtory in a Northern industrial state the money would start rolling in again.

"I decided I would do or die in Pennsylvania. I sold my car and bought a 30-second radio spot in Philadelphia. Then I mortgaged the house for three one-minute TV spots in Pittsburgh. My wife sold her hair so we could take out an advertisement in a Harrisburg newspaper. And I hocked my son's guitar for billboard space in Scranton.

"But it wasn't enough. We came in 10th and the media started to write I wouldn't make it. I guess they were right because here I am applying for welfare."

"Mr. Tompkins, your case is very interesting, but I would like to ask you what made you think you could run for President in the first place?"

"When I was a little boy my father told me anyone in the United States could run for President of the United States."

"Did he tell you how much money you would need to run in the primaries?"

"No, ma'am. He didn't say anything about money."

"Well, your father was a very foolish man to encourage you to run for an office that costs millions of dollars."

"Yes, ma'am."

"You're the twelfth presidential candidate to come in this week and apply for welfare, and I don't mind telling you that you people are becoming a burden to our department. How can I be sure if I give you a welfare check you won't use it to enter the primary in California?"

"Don't worry, ma'am. I'll never touch a primary again. That stuff can ruin a man for life."

Are your soybeans starving?

By JOHN D. GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist

BENTON — The first step in planning a fertilizer and limestone program for soybeans is a properly taken up-to-date soil sample on every field. Results of this test will give you the present nutrient level of the soil. Recommendations will be made to correct any nutrient deficiencies.

Soybeans are heavy users of plant food. A yield of 50 bushels per acre will remove 160 pounds of Nitrogen, 40 pounds of P2O5, and 70 pounds of K2O. Soybeans are harder on the ground than any other row crop grown in Southeast Missouri. Not only do they remove a large amount of nutrients but they are also very susceptible to many diseases.

In general, the number one fertility problem limiting yield is low pH or acid soils. A pH or 6.0 to 6.5 must be maintained for proper N fixation and utilization of phosphate and potash. Limestone should be the first building practice to be considered in increasing soybean yields.

Limestone applied at recommended rates has increased soybean yields an average of 11 bushels per acre in Southeast Missouri. This has been shown in many research and demonstration plots. With beans at $5 per bushel, this represents about $4 for each $1 invested in lime. Don't expect 40 to 50 bushels per acre on soils with pH below 5.5.

Limestone can be applied anytime a truck can get over the ground. Response will be greatest on low pH soils. Lime should be applied 6 to 12 months prior to planting and mixed well in the soil. If this can't be done, apply lime when possible.

Soybeans need a lot of nitrogen but researchers have not been able to consistently increase yields with applications of Nitrogen. Why they do not respond to N is not fully known at this time. Additional research is being conducted by several states.

Soybeans are a legume and can fix approximately 70 per cent of their N from the air provided they are well inoculated and micro-organisms are working for you. This means you must maintain a pH of 6.0 to 6.5. As the pH goes down, N fixation goes down and beans turn yellow and are deficient.

Some growers feel that 10 to 12 pounds of nitrogen in the seedbed helps. In theory, this sounds good since it should promote more rapid growth and aid in weed suppression. However, it hasn't generally produced higher yields.

Most of the soils in Southeast Missouri are well supplied with phosphorous at the present time. The soybean plant is a very efficient feeder and can utilize residual fertilizer from previous crops. But "sooner or later" the build-up will run out. The preceding crop must be well fertilized in order to have plant food left over for beans.

The yield increase from applied phosphate on medium to low testing soils will be much lower than for lime or potash. You can expect an increase of 4 to 5 bushels per acre from an application of 30 to 60 pounds of phosphate on soils testing below 150 pounds of P2O5. The increase may not be realized the first year of application, but yields will increase as the soil becomes more fertile.

Potash is required in large amounts by soybeans, and all soils that test medium or lower should be fertilized with 30 to 120 pounds of K2O per acre. When soils are limed, increased amounts of potash are used because larger yields are produced.

Next to limestone, potassium is the most deficient plant nutrient in Southeast Missouri soils. Many experiments and demonstrations have been conducted on different soil types. Yields have been increased an average of 7 bushels per acre with an application of 60 pounds of potash. Potash deficiency limits yields on thousands of acres every year and it is easy and economical to correct.

Molybdenum is the only micronutrient soybeans have responded to in Southeast Missouri. It should be applied at the rate of 0.2 to 0.5 ounces per acre on soils with pH 6.0 or below. It can be obtained in combination with a fungicide and applied with the seed as a hopper box treatment.

In summary--

(1) Soil test every 3 to 4 years. Follow recommendations.

(2) If pH is 5.5 or below, apply limestone before fertilizer.

(3) Nitrogen is not needed if properly inoculated and pH is 6.0 to 6.5.

(4) An annual application of 30 to 60 pounds of phosphate and 30 to 120 pounds of potash is required if soil is medium or lower in these nutrients. An 0-1-2 or 0-1-3 ration is generally the best to apply for Southeast Missouri soils, an 0-1-1 ratio is satisfactory for some soils. Two hundred pounds per acre of grades such as 0-15-30, 0-18-36, 0-14-42, 0-26-26, etc. will meet the above ratios. It is sometimes necessary to apply straight materials such as 0-46-0 or 0-0-60. A small amount of N in the above grades is sometimes helpful for early growth.

(5) Apply molybdenum in combination with a fungicide and-or an inoculant if pH is below 6.0.

Current price and demand should encourage every soybean farmer in Southeast Missouri to follow the best production practices they know in 1976. A good fertilization program is just one of these important practices. Don't let your soybeans starve for food when there is plenty available.

Memphis firms indicted by Grand Jury

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Cook Industries Inc. of Memphis and Mississippi River Grain Elevator Inc. were indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday on criminal charges relating to grain exports.

Cook was charged with 37 criminal counts relating to operations at its Bayside Elevator near Reserve, La. Mississippi River Grain Elevator was named in 11 counts.

The indictments were returned just two days after Continental Grain Corp. of New York paid a $500,000 fine after pleading no contest to other charges growing out of the grain scandals at export docks.

The grand jury charged that from mid-1970 to February 1975, Cook officials cnspired to steal grain from ships being loaded at Bayside.

The executive vice president of Mississippi River Grain Elevator, Giovanni Rametta, is accused of devising a similar conspiracy in September 1968 at that company's Myrtle Grove, La., elevator.

Federal officials have said Rametta has left the country and is believed to be in Italy.

The companies allegedly "shortweighed" the ships — loaded less grain than shown in inspection ad weight certificates.

The shortweighing was accomplished by manually bypassing the scales during the loadings — along with periodic adjustments to Cook's grain inventory records to account for the excess grain, the indictment charges.

The grand jury also charged that the Cook's records were falsified to show the receipt of fictitious bargeloads of grain and said that false grain inspection and weight certificates were prepared for grain which was never received at the elevator.

The indictment describes 23 specific acts that allegedly began with a meeting of three Cook officers at Memphis in the summer of 1970.

The indictment claims that instructions were given at the meeting to shortweigh ships loading grain at the elevator by as much as 1.5 per cent if the ships were going to Mediterranean, Mideast and Southeast Asia ports.

Later in 1970, instructions were allegedly given to Bayside Elevator personnel to increase to 3 per cent the shortweighing of vessels going to Pakistan, India and other countries without their own weighing facilities.

Between Dec. 30, 1971, and Feb. 1, 1975, the indictment charges, false grain inspection and weight certificates were prepared to show the fictitious receipt of 18 bargeloads of corn, meat and soybeans — in an attempt to account for more than 854,000 bushels of grain that had accumulated in the elevator from the shortweighing of vessels bound for foreign ports.

Agronomist lists recommended practices for soybean growers

By THOMAS A. BROWN JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD — Getting a good stand of soybeans from the first planting will be tremendously important this season. The following are recommended practices that will help to insure good stands of healthy soybean plants.

Practice crop rotation. Soybean diseases live from one season to the next on crop residues in the soil. Unless beans are rotated with other crops, the disease infestation continues to build up and yield losses continue to increase. In addition to disease control benefits, crop rotation also assists in soybean cyst nematode and weed control and facilitates the highest possible returns from fertilizers applied.

Plant good seed of adapted varieties which have resistance to disease problems known to exist in specific fields. Many soybean varieties adapted to this area have resistance to phytophthora root rot which is important where beans are to be planted in poorly drained fields, especially on heavy clay (gumbo) type soils.

Plant seed in a warm soil. Planting in a cold soil results in poor stands and disease infestations which affect beans throughout the growing season. Throughout May is a good time to plant beans in this area with May 15 being about the optimum planting date, according to results of research conducted in the area.

Plant treated seed especially if seed is of poor quality. A fungicidal seed treatment helps to prevent soybean seed decay and increase seed germination. Fungicides suggested for this purpose include Captan, Thiram, Captan + Thiram, Terrachlor, Chloranil, and Chloraneb.

Use a soil fungicide. When used in addition to the seed treatment, a soil fungicide will provide added protection to seedling bean plants against soil-borne disease organisms. The best method is to apply an in-furrow treatment which is made by applying fungicide granules in the planter furrow during the planting operation. Fungicides suggested for this purpose include Captan and Demosan.

In case the in-furrow granular treatment cannot be used, a "planter box" application of soil fungicide will provide better protection than the seed treatment alone.

This treatment is made by mixing the fungicide dust with the seed in the planter box at planting. Fungicides recommended for this purpose include Terrachlor Super X, Captan + Terrachlor, Captan + Maneb, Captan, Chloranil, Maneb and Zineb. Some of these fungicides may be found in mixtures with Molybdenum.

Molybdenum is a minor plant food element which can be expected to increase soybean yields only if applied to acid soils with a pH test below 6.0.

Fungicides suggested for seed and soil treatments are sold under a variety of brand names, but the fungicide or fungicides involved in each can be found on the container label.

Additional information along this line including fungicide rates of application may be obtained from your County University of Missouri Extension Center.

Medical Bills

While Americans are spending more on personal health care, they are getting increasing help in paying their bills. Medical spending leaped from $10.4 billion in 1950 to $103.2 billion in 1975. But between 1966 and 1975, the individual's share of the bill declined from a half to a third, The Conference Board notes. Taking up the slack were private insurance, which covered 25 per cent of total medical expenditures last year, and public funds, which accounted for 40 per cent.

Are your soybeans starving?

By JOHN D. GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist

BENTON — The first step in planning a fertilizer and limestone program for soybeans is a properly taken up-to-date soil sample on every field. Results of this test will give you the present nutrient level of the soil. Recommendations will be made to correct any nutrient deficiencies.

Soybeans are heavy users of plant food. A yield of 50 bushels per acre will remove 160 pounds of Nitrogen, 40 pounds of P2O5, and 70 pounds of K2O. Soybeans are harder on the ground than any other row crop grown in Southeast Missouri. Not only do they remove a large amount of nutrients but they are also very susceptible to many diseases.

In general, the number one fertility problem limiting yield is low pH or acid soils. A pH or 6.0 to 6.5 must be maintained for proper N fixation and utilization of phosphate and potash. Limestone should be the first building practice to be considered in increasing soybean yields.

Limestone applied at recommended rates has increased soybean yields an average of 11 bushels per acre in Southeast Missouri. This has been shown in many research and demonstration plots. With beans at $5 per bushel, this represents about $4 for each $1 invested in lime. Don't expect 40 to 50 bushels per acre on soils with pH below 5.5.

Limestone can be applied anytime a truck can get over the ground. Response will be greatest on low pH soils. Lime should be applied 6 to 12 months prior to planting and mixed well in the soil. If this can't be done, apply lime when possible.

Soybeans need a lot of nitrogen but researchers have not been able to consistently increase yields with applications of Nitrogen. Why they do not respond to N is not fully known at this time. Additional research is being conducted by several states.

Soybeans are a legume and can fix approximately 70 per cent of their N from the air provided they are well inoculated and micro-organisms are working for you. This means you must maintain a pH of 6.0 to 6.5. As the pH goes down, N fixation goes down and beans turn yellow and are deficient.

Some growers feel that 10 to 12 pounds of nitrogen in the seedbed helps. In theory, this sounds good since it should promote more rapid growth and aid in weed suppression. However, it hasn't generally produced higher yields.

Most of the soils in Southeast Missouri are well supplied with phosphorous at the present time. The soybean plant is a very efficient feeder and can utilize residual fertilizer from previous crops. But "sooner or later" the build-up will run out. The preceding crop must be well fertilized in order to have plant food left over for beans.

The yield increase from applied phosphate on medium to low testing soils will be much lower than for lime or potash. You can expect an increase of 4 to 5 bushels per acre from an application of 30 to 60 pounds of phosphate on soils testing below 150 pounds of P2O5. The increase may not be realized the first year of application, but yields will increase as the soil becomes more fertile.

Potash is required in large amounts by soybeans, and all soils that test medium or lower should be fertilized with 30 to 120 pounds of K2O per acre. When soils are limed, increased amounts of potash are used because larger yields are produced.

Next to limestone, potassium is the most deficient plant nutrient in Southeast Missouri soils. Many experiments and demonstrations have been conducted on different soil types. Yields have been increased an average of 7 bushels per acre with an application of 60 pounds of potash. Potash deficiency limits yields on thousands of acres every year and it is easy and economical to correct.

Molybdenum is the only micronutrient soybeans have responded to in Southeast Missouri. It should be applied at the rate of 0.2 to 0.5 ounces per acre on soils with pH 6.0 or below. It can be obtained in combination with a fungicide and applied with the seed as a hopper box treatment.

In summary--

(1) Soil test every 3 to 4 years. Follow recommendations.

(2) If pH is 5.5 or below, apply limestone before fertilizer.

(3) Nitrogen is not needed if properly inoculated and pH is 6.0 to 6.5.

(4) An annual application of 30 to 60 pounds of phosphate and 30 to 120 pounds of potash is required if soil is medium or lower in these nutrients. An 0-1-2 or 0-1-3 ration is generally the best to apply for Southeast Missouri soils, an 0-1-1 ratio is satisfactory for some soils. Two hundred pounds per acre of grades such as 0-15-30, 0-18-36, 0-14-42, 0-26-26, etc. will meet the above ratios. It is sometimes necessary to apply straight materials such as 0-46-0 or 0-0-60. A small amount of N in the above grades is sometimes helpful for early growth.

(5) Apply molybdenum in combination with a fungicide and-or an inoculant if pH is below 6.0.

Current price and demand should encourage every soybean farmer in Southeast Missouri to follow the best production practices they know in 1976. A good fertilization program is just one of these important practices. Don't let your soybeans starve for food when there is plenty available.

The first practical air conditioner to control temperature and humidity was installed in a Brooklyn printing plant in 1902. Air conditioners are now used in hen houses to boost egg production, barns, where hogs fatten faster and cows give more milk, and sugar refineries, to keep granules from lumping together.

Agencies seek to eliminate confusion

BENTON--Please don't confuse me us! Many people around Scott County don't know the difference between the Scott Soil and Water Conservation District and the Soil Conservation Service.

If you don't already know, here it what each of us do:

The Scott Soil and Water Conservation District was organized under state law and voted into Scott County by the landowners of the county.

The board of supervisors consist of four farmers elected by county landowners and one ex-officio member who is a member of the University of Missouri Extension Service staff. All supervisors wserve without pay.

The board of supervisors set the work priorities and determine the district program. They must perform all administrative duties for the district business.

The soil district provides the finances for secretarial help, flags, contest awards, annual meetings, special equipment needs, stationery and postage for district correspondence.

The soil district board of supervisors hires all district employes and sets their employment policies.

The Soil and Water Conservation District in Scott County is financed by donations from individuals and allocations from the County Court and the State Soil Districts Commission.

The Soil Conservation Service was organized by Congress under the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The Scott Soil and Water District board signed a memorandum of understanding requesting the assistance of the Soil Conservation Service in Scott County.

The Soil Conservation Service personnel are hired by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and are civil service employes.

4-H Days are scheduled

5-H'ers headed for a tour of the Soviet Union, via Silver Dollar City, are the Salute to America Bicentennial Singers. The performing group of 38 youngsters, ages 8-18, shown here with Mayor Shad Heller, are to be a highlight of 4-H Days May 15-16 at Silver Dollar City. 4-H members, all of their families and their leaders will be offered much-reduced prices to enjoy the educational Early American crafts, as well as the fun features of the Ozark village. Posters and reservation forms are available by contacting Mike Zirbel, Silver Dollar City, Mo. 65616 telephone number 417-338-8206.

Memphis firm among sellers to USSR

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is trying to assess the current round of Soviet grain purchases in hopes of determining how much more U.S. wheat and corn Russia may buy this spring.

The spate of purchases the past week totaled more than 4.9 million metric tons by Tuesday night. Officials said they are now attempting to figure out how much more Russia may buy, particularly grain from existing U.S. supplies.

An additional sale of 625,000 tons was announced late Tuesday, including 300,000 tons of corn from last year's crop and 200,000 tons of corn and 125,000 tons of wheat from 1976 production. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

Although the department did not announce the seller, a spokesman said he understood it was Louis Dreyfus Corp., of New York.

About 4.3 million tons of grain was sold the Soviets last week by three other firms: Continental Grain Co., of New York, Cargill Inc., of Minneapolis and Cook Industries of Memphis.

The sale Tuesday boosted to 16.5 million tons the quantity of grain Russia has bought from 1975 U.S. crops. The administration last fall set a tentative limit of 17 million tons for sale to the Soviets from the 1975 harvests.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says he would welcome Russia buying more than 17 million tons and that current U.S. reserves are large enough to absorb further sales without undue effect on consumer food prices.

The 200,000 tons of corn and 125,000 of wheat from 1976 production is for delivery to Russia after Oct. 1, the department said. That involves grain covered by a five-year agreement calling for delivery of six million to eight million tons of wheat and corn annually. Russia can seek more than eight million tons a year but would have to talk further with U.S. officials, according to the agreement.

These latest sales raised to about 2.2 million tons the amount now sold to Russia under the five-year agreement or more than one-third of the minimum the Soviets have agreed to buy in the first year.

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Farmers have planted about one-third of this year's corn crop, far ahead of last year's planting pace of 13 per cent, according to the Agriculture Department.

By May 2, the department said Tuesday in a weekly weather review, "planting in every major state was well ahead" of last year's progress on the same date.

In the North Central states, corn planting was 31 per cent completed by May 2, against 5 per cent in 1975 and an average of 9 per cent, the report said. However, cool weather and wet soils slowed corn planting in Iowa.

Officials said the Indiana corn crop suffered some freeze damage but did not say to what extent.

Further precipitation helped the winter wheat crop in the Southern great plains for the second consecutive week, the report said. In Kansas, about 80 per cent of the wheat was at the "jointed" stage of development, compared with 60 per cent at this time last year.

Officials said that farmers have started planting soybeans and that byMay 2 about 5 per cent of the crop in Ohio was planted, about the same progress as last year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reflecting spring field work and planting, fertilizer sales "came to life" in March, says the Fertilizer Institute, an industry association.

Domestic shipments from fertilizer plants was up 27 per cent from March of last year, Edwin M. Wheeler, institute president, said Tuesday in a statement. Nitrogen, phosphate and potash products — the three basic ingredients — shared "fairly equally" in the increase, he said.

"Current nitrogen stocks are at a safety level for farmers in light of the nearly five-million-acre projected increase in corn this year," Wheeler said.

Agricultural Field day is canceled

There will be no Southeast Missouri agriculture field day in 1976, according to Joe Patke, of Perryville field day co-chairman and Southeast area University of Missouri Extension farm management specialist. The committee met at Oberle's Restaurant in Ste. Genevieve to discuss the possibilities of holding the well-known event again this year, Patke stated.

The field day program started in 1971 with a Dairy Forage Day on the Frank Milde farm near Jackson. Agri-business sponsors serving the Southeast area cooperated with the University of Missouri Extension agriculture specialists to plan and conduct this and a subsequent dairy forage day at Clem Schabbing's farm near Cape Girardeau. Approximately 200-300 attended each event.

In 1974, a "Hay Day" was held at the Ted Ballman farm of Perryville for all farmers in the area with over 900 present. This was followed by a "Tillage Day" in 1975 at Lorberg Farms of Gordonville with over 1,200 in attendance.

Patke said the reason for postponing the event this year was the competition with Bicentennial programs. "A 'Harvest Day' or similar field day next year would get more attention next year," he added.

The committee was also finding difficulty in locating a farm in the Ste. Genevieve area for the program. They voted to hold some type of agricultural field day in 1977.

SeMo weather outlook below normal

By LEONARD F. HAND
Agricultural
Meterorologist

PORTAGEVILLE--Guidance developed by the National Weather Service long-range boundaries of regions expected to observe below normal temperature averages and above median rainfall for May. A northerly flow is expected to penetrate the Mid-South with sufficient frequency to warrant prospects for cool weather.

Fronts associated with these spells should account for much of the shower activity. The amount of excess rainfall likely to collect will depend upon how fully Gulf moisture enters disturbances steered across the Mississippi Valley. The principal tracks of low pressure systems is well to the north of the Gulf region.

Secondary disturbances forming on cold fronts may draw on that moisture source at times. These are some of the developments for which we can watch in the daily extended outlooks.

Moisture has become a concern for many Bootheel farmers. Prospects for rain during April fell far short of promise. The total recorded in the gage at Portageville was only 1.35 inches. Higher totals were noted at other spots, but it is unlikely that the April normal of 4.52 inches was measured anywhere in the Bootheel. Agricultural station reports from Charleston showed a total of 1.5 inches.

Wheat showed moisture stresses in some areas by mid-April. Some farmers expressed concern that later showers may have allowed seed to germinate without providing enough water to let the moisture meet. Once roots are established, sufficient moisture should be present to sustain growth for several weeks. A good rain is definitely on the "want list" for many farmers.

The chilly spell that set in late in April put the brakes on seedling elongation. Prior to the 25th, the cotton emergence model was bringing seedlings from the bed to the surface in seven days. That involved hypothetical plantings made on the 13th, 15th and 17th. None of the plantings followed in the model since April 19 had broken ground by the morning of May.

I will be reporting on soil temperature trends as depicted by the cotton emergence index in my weather wire releases under the heading, Soil Temperature Outlook for the Missouri Bootheel, during the next three weeks.

The outlook for cooler than normal temperatures may also affect the choice of post-emergene herbicides. Chemicals that require daytime maximums in the mid-70s will be dependent upon a favorable period of mild weather. Data computed some years ago indicated that probalities for maximums of 75 degrees or warmer, in Mays with below normal temperature averages, did not exceed 90 percent until late in the month.

Winds have been more of a deterrent to orchard spray schedules than rain so far this season. Should rains be more abundant than usual in May, both winds and wetting may complicate spray schedules. This also applies to aeriel spraying for control of insects, should that be required. The daily extended outlooks can help operators select periods with least chance for drift.

Average weekly rainfall for May is 1.72 inches for the week ending May 2, 1.11 inches for the week ending May 9, 1.31 incheshes for the week ending May 16, 1.11 inches for the week ending May 23, and 0.66 inches for the week ending May 30, for a total of 5.91 inches.

Based upon previous work which considers both rate of fall and infiltration, this could mean the following intake for various soils, assuming they are sufficiently dry to accomodate additional water of these volumes:

Sandy 1.14 inches for week ending May 2, .73 inches for week ending May 9, .86 inches for week ending May 16, .73 inches for week ending May 23, .44 inches for week ending May 30, and total 3.90. inches.

Medium-.83 inch for week ending May 2, .53 inch for week ending May 9, .63 inch for week ending May 16, .53 inch for week ending May 23, .32 inch for week ending May 30, and 2.84 total.

Clay-.58 inch for week ending May 2, .38 inch for week ending May 9, .45 inch for week ending May 16, .38 inch for week ending May 16, .22 inch for week ending May 30, and 2.01 total.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel as a whold during May is 5.06 inches. Normals for individual cities are: Advance, 4.94; Caruthersville, 4.46; Dexter, 5.15; Morehouse, 5.11; Parma, 5.31; Sikeston, 5.14; Cape Girardeau, 4.96; Clearwater Dam, 5.02; Doniphan, 5.11; New Madrid, 5.43; Poplar Bluff, 5.44; and Wappapello Dam, 4.99.

Long history of record (through 1960) of rainfall totals for months of May with above normal rainfall show averages of 7.54 inches at Poplar Bluff, 7.81 at Sikeston and 7.78 at Caruthersville. Ranges of rainfall for those conditions are from 5.18 to 13.10 inches at Poplar Bluff, 5.20 to 13.34 inches at Sikeston and from 5.48 to 13.93 inches at Caruthersville.

Men have used artificial devices to keep cool for centuries. Ancient Egyptians soaked the walls of their homes with water, while Roman slaves brought down mountain snow to pack in the hollow outer walls of their masters' villas.

Dairy Day has tentative date for 1977

CAPE GIRARDEAU — "Let's do it again" was the unanimous opinion of the 1976 Southeast Missouri Dairy Day Committee. In a meeting at Howard Johnsons in Cape Girardeau, the committee of dairymen, agri-businessmen, and University of Missouri Extension specialists discussed the Dairy Day held last January and made a few preliminary plans for next year, according to Bob Montgomery of Perryville, committee chairman and Southeast area University of Missouri Extension dairy specialist.

A report was made to the committee on sponsors' evaluation of the event showing 94 per cent in favor of continuing the program. Committee members report that dairy farmers from the area reacted very favorably to the educational program. Approximately 360 attended.

Turning to plans for 1977, the committee set a tentative date of Jan. 25 for the second Southeast area Dairy Day. The program is again scheduled in the arena building in Cape Girardeau. All dairy farmers and wives will be invited.

Sponsors are being contacted for a commitment to the coming program. Exhibitors will have a choice of locating on the ground floor or upstairs. Luncheon tickets will be made available through the agri-business sponsors, Montgomery said. Interested agribusinesses who are not contacted are asked to call one of the committee members, Montgomery added.

Agencies seek to eliminate confusion

BENTON--Please don't confuse me us! Many people around Scott County don't know the difference between the Scott Soil and Water Conservation District and the Soil Conservation Service.

If you don't already know, here it what each of us do:

The Scott Soil and Water Conservation District was organized under state law and voted into Scott County by the landowners of the county.

The board of supervisors consist of four farmers elected by county landowners and one ex-officio member who is a member of the University of Missouri Extension Service staff. All supervisors wserve without pay.

The board of supervisors set the work priorities and determine the district program. They must perform all administrative duties for the district business.

The soil district provides the finances for secretarial help, flags, contest awards, annual meetings, special equipment needs, stationery and postage for district correspondence.

The soil district board of supervisors hires all district employes and sets their employment policies.

The Soil and Water Conservation District in Scott County is financed by donations from individuals and allocations from the County Court and the State Soil Districts Commission.

The Soil Conservation Service was organized by Congress under the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The Scott Soil and Water District board signed a memorandum of understanding requesting the assistance of the Soil Conservation Service in Scott County.

The Soil Conservation Service personnel are hired by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and are civil service employes.

4-H Days are scheduled

5-H'ers headed for a tour of the Soviet Union, via Silver Dollar City, are the Salute to America Bicentennial Singers. The performing group of 38 youngsters, ages 8-18, shown here with Mayor Shad Heller, are to be a highlight of 4-H Days May 15-16 at Silver Dollar City. 4-H members, all of their families and their leaders will be offered much-reduced prices to enjoy the educational Early American crafts, as well as the fun features of the Ozark village. Posters and reservation forms are available by contacting Mike Zirbel, Silver Dollar City, Mo. 65616 telephone number 417-338-8206.

Memphis firm among sellers to USSR

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is trying to assess the current round of Soviet grain purchases in hopes of determining how much more U.S. wheat and corn Russia may buy this spring.

The spate of purchases the past week totaled more than 4.9 million metric tons by Tuesday night. Officials said they are now attempting to figure out how much more Russia may buy, particularly grain from existing U.S. supplies.

An additional sale of 625,000 tons was announced late Tuesday, including 300,000 tons of corn from last year's crop and 200,000 tons of corn and 125,000 tons of wheat from 1976 production. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

Although the department did not announce the seller, a spokesman said he understood it was Louis Dreyfus Corp., of New York.

About 4.3 million tons of grain was sold the Soviets last week by three other firms: Continental Grain Co., of New York, Cargill Inc., of Minneapolis and Cook Industries of Memphis.

The sale Tuesday boosted to 16.5 million tons the quantity of grain Russia has bought from 1975 U.S. crops. The administration last fall set a tentative limit of 17 million tons for sale to the Soviets from the 1975 harvests.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says he would welcome Russia buying more than 17 million tons and that current U.S. reserves are large enough to absorb further sales without undue effect on consumer food prices.

The 200,000 tons of corn and 125,000 of wheat from 1976 production is for delivery to Russia after Oct. 1, the department said. That involves grain covered by a five-year agreement calling for delivery of six million to eight million tons of wheat and corn annually. Russia can seek more than eight million tons a year but would have to talk further with U.S. officials, according to the agreement.

These latest sales raised to amount now sold to Russia under the five-year agreement or more than one-third of the minimum the Soviets have agreed to buy in the first year.

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Farmers have planted about one-third of this year's corn crop, far ahead of last year's planting pace of 13 per cent, according to the Agriculture Department.

By May 2, the department said Tuesday in a weekly weather review, "planting in every major state was well ahead" of last year's progress on the same date.

In the North Central states, corn planting was 31 per cent completed by May 2, against 5 per cent in 1975 and an average of 9 per cent, the report said. However, cool weather and wet soils slowed corn planting in Iowa.

Officials said the Indiana corn crop suffered some freeze damage but did not say to what extent.

Further precipitation helped the winter wheat crop in the Southern great plains for the second consecutive week, the report said. In Kansas, about 80 per cent of the wheat was at the "jointed" stage of development, compared with 60 per cent at this time last year.

Officials said that farmers have started planting soybeans and that byMay 2 about 5 per cent of the crop in Ohio was planted, about the same progress as last year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reflecting spring field work and planting, fertilizer sales "came to life" in March, says the Fertilizer Institute, an industry association.

Domestic shipments from fertilizer plants was up 27 per cent from March of last year, Edwin M. Wheeler, institute president, said Tuesday in a statement. Nitrogen, phosphate and potash products — the three basic ingredients — shared "fairly equally" in the increase, he said.

"Current nitrogen stocks are at a safety level for farmers in light of the nearly five-million-acre projected increase in corn this year," Wheeler said.

Agricultural Field day is canceled

There will be no Southeast Missouri agriculture field day in 1976, according to Joe Patke, of Perryville field day co-chairman and Southeast area University of Missouri Extension farm management specialist. The committee met at Oberle's Restaurant in Ste. Genevieve to discuss the possibilities of holding the well-known event again this year, Patke stated.

The field day program started in 1971 with a Dairy Forage Day on the Frank Milde farm near Jackson. Agri-business sponsors serving the Southeast area cooperated with the University of Missouri Extension agriculture specialists to plan and conduct this and a subsequent dairy forage day at Clem Schabbing's farm near Cape Girardeau. Approximately 200-300 attended each event.

In 1974, a "Hay Day" was held at the Ted Ballman farm of Perryville for all farmers in the area with over 900 present. This was followed by a "Tillage Day" in 1975 at Lorberg Farms of Gordonville with over 1,200 in attendance.

Patke said the reason for postponing the event this year was the competition with Bicentennial programs. "A 'Harvest Day' or similar field day next year would get more attention next year," he added.

The committee was also finding difficulty in locating a farm in the Ste. Genevieve area for the program. They voted to hold some type of agricultural field day in 1977.

SeMo weather outlook below normal

By LEONARD F. HAND
Agricultural
Meterorologist

PORTAGEVILLE--Guidance developed by the National Weather Service long-range boundaries of regions expected to observe below normal temperature averages and above median rainfall for May. A northerly flow is expected to penetrate the Mid-South with sufficient frequency to warrant prospects for cool weather.

Fronts associated with these spells should account for much of the shower activity. The amount of excess rainfall likely to collect will depend upon how fully Gulf moisture enters disturbances steered across the Mississippi Valley. The principal tracks of low pressure systems is well to the north of the Gulf region.

Secondary disturbances forming on cold fronts may draw on that moisture source at times. These are some of the developments for which we can watch in the daily extended outlooks.

Moisture has become a concern for many Bootheel farmers. Prospects for rain during April fell far short of promise. The total recorded in the gage at Portageville was only 1.35 inches. Higher totals were noted at other spots, but it is unlikely that the April normal of 4.52 inches was measured anywhere in the Bootheel. Agricultural station reports from Charleston showed a total of 1.5 inches.

Wheat showed moisture stresses in some areas by mid-April. Some farmers expressed concern that later showers may have allowed seed to germinate without providing enough water to let the moisture meet. Once roots are established, sufficient moisture should be present to sustain growth for several weeks. A good rain is definitely on the "want list" for many farmers.

The chilly spell that set in late in April put the brakes on seedling elongation. Prior to the 25th, the cotton emergence model was bringing seedlings from the bed to the surface in seven days. That involved hypothetical plantings made on the 13th, 15th and 17th. None of the plantings followed in the model since April 19 had broken ground by the morning of May.

I will be reporting on soil temperature trends as depicted by the cotton emergence index in my weather wire releases under the heading, Soil Temperature Outlook for the Missouri Bootheel, during the next three weeks.

The outlook for cooler than normal temperatures may also affect the choice of post-emergene herbicides. Chemicals that require daytime maximums in the mid-70s will be dependent upon a favorable period of mild weather. Data computed some years ago indicated that probalities for maximums of 75 degrees or warmer, in Mays with below normal temperature averages, did not exceed 90 percent until late in the month.

Winds have been more of a deterrent to orchard spray schedules than rain so far this season. Should rains be more abundant than usual in May, both winds and wetting may complicate spray schedules. This also applies to aeriel spraying for control of insects, should that be required. The daily extended outlooks can help operators select periods with least chance for drift.

Average weekly rainfall for May is 1.72 inches for the week ending May 2, 1.11 inches for the week ending May 9, 1.31 incheshes for the week ending May 16, 1.11 inches for the week ending May 23, and 0.66 inches for the week ending May 30, for a total of 5.91 inches.

Based upon previous work which considers both rate of fall and infiltration, this could mean the following intake for various soils, assuming they are sufficiently dry to accomodate additional water of these volumes:

Sandy 1.14 inches for week ending May 2, .73 inches for week ending May 9, .86 inches for week ending May 16, .73 inches for week ending May 23, .44 inches for week ending May 30, and total 3.90. inches.

Medium-.83 inch for week ending May 2, .53 inch for week ending May 9, .63 inch for week ending May 16, .53 inch for week ending May 23, .32 inch for week ending May 30, and 2.84 total.

Clay-.58 inch for week ending May 2, .38 inch for week ending May 9, .45 inch for week ending May 16, .38 inch for week ending May 16, .22 inch for week ending May 30, and 2.01 total.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel as a whold during May is 5.06 inches. Normals for individual cities are: Advance, 4.94; Caruthersville, 4.46; Dexter, 5.15; Morehouse, 5.11; Parma, 5.31; Sikeston, 5.14; Cape Girardeau, 4.96; Clearwater Dam, 5.02; Doniphan, 5.11; New Madrid, 5.43; Poplar Bluff, 5.44; and Wappapello Dam, 4.99.

Nutsedge is a serious economic problem in nearly every major cotton growing county of the South. Those counties outlined with hash marks are the ones where the problem is most costly, according to a recent 3M Company survey of county extension agents. Nutsedge spreads in patches and fields and is a problem for many individual farms in the other counties.

Planting increase expected for corn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said Thursday that farmers intend to boost corn planting this spring by 6 per cent over a year ago, a step which could mean a bumper harvest this fall and a further easig of consumer food prices next year.

Surveys made April 1 showed that farmers will plant 82.7 million acres in corn for the 1976 harvest, compared with 77.9 million a year ago.

The 1975 corn harvest was a record of nearly 5.8 billion bushels, up 24 per cent from 1974, and has contributed to a recent slowdown in the food price spiral.

Officials have said that if farmers have good weather, another record corn crop could develop this year and thus add to a buildup in grain reserves.

As livestock feed, corn is the major U.S. crop for producing meat, poultry and dairy products. With 1975's bumper harvest, feed costs have eased enough so that farmers have stepped up livestock grain-feeding operations.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said also that the surveys indicated farmers are stepping up plantings of cotton and spring wheat other than durum. However, cutbacks from last year were indicated for durum wheat, soybeans and sorghum.

There were no estimates of 1976 production of the various crops, only how many acres farmers are expected to devote to them. The department will issue official crop production estimates later as the growing season develops.

Soil survey will aid in land use

A soil survey is a very valuable tool for people who are involved in making land use changes. Wheather you're a farmer planning for erosion control, a developer planning for a residential area or a construction engineer planning a super highway, you can do a better job if you know the soil types you're dealing with.

A soils survey is an inventory of the physcical properties of the soil to a depth of four to five feet. It is made by soil scientists who walk over the land. With the use of a probe they inventory the different properties of the soil. Some of the properties they look for are: color, texture, structure and erosion. They separate and draw the different soils on an serial photograph.

From the physical properues of the soils, the soil scientists determine the drainage properties, the available water holding capacity, the shrink-sweell potential, the yield capabilities and many other items of information. In fact soil survey information can be useful to anyone who uses land for any purpose.

Farmer can use it when planning drainage or erosion control practices, home builders ror home buyers can use it to determine whether the building foundation might crack or leak due to shrinking and swelling of the soil. The soil survey would also indicate whether an area might be prone to flooding. In fact the potential uses of the soil survey are almost unlimited.

Soil surveys can be one of our most valuable tools. Why not use them?

For more information concerning soil surveys, contact you local Soil Conservation Service office.

Nutsedge problem areas

Nutsedge is a serious economic problem in nearly every major cotton growing county of the South. Those counties outlined with hash marks are the ones where the problem is most costly, according to a recent 3M Company survey of county extension agents. Nutsedge spreads in patches and fields and is a problem for many individual farms in the other counties.

Planting increase expected for corn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said Thursday that farmers intend to boost corn planting this spring by 6 per cent over a year ago, a step which could mean a bumper harvest this fall and a further easig of consumer food prices next year.

Surveys made April 1 showed that farmers will plant 82.7 million acres in corn for the 1976 harvest, compared with 77.9 million a year ago.

The 1975 corn harvest was a record of nearly 5.8 billion bushels, up 24 per cent from 1974, and has contributed to a recent slowdown in the food price spiral.

Officials have said that if farmers have good weather, another record corn crop could develop this year and thus add to a buildup in grain reserves.

As livestock feed, corn is the major U.S. crop for producing meat, poultry and dairy products. With 1975's bumper harvest, feed costs have eased enough so that farmers have stepped up livestock grain-feeding operations.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said also that the surveys indicated farmers are stepping up plantings of cotton and spring wheat other than durum. However, cutbacks from last year were indicated for durum wheat, soybeans and sorghum.

There were no estimates of 1976 production of the various crops, only how many acres farmers are expected to devote to them. The department will issue official crop production estimates later as the growing season develops.

Soil survey will aid in land use

A soil survey is a very valuable tool for people who are involved in making land use changes. Wheather you're a farmer planning for erosion control, a developer planning for a residential area or a construction engineer planning a super highway, you can do a better job if you know the soil types you're dealing with.

A soils survey is an inventory of the physcical properties of the soil to a depth of four to five feet. It is made by soil scientists who walk over the land. With the use of a probe they inventory the different properties of the soil. Some of the properties they look for are: color, texture, structure and erosion. They separate and draw the different soils on an serial photograph.

From the physical properties of the soils, the soil scientists determine the drainage properties, the available water holding capacity, the shrink-sweell potential, the yield capabilities and many other items of information. In fact soil survey information can be useful to anyone who uses land for any purpose.

Farmer can use it when planning drainage or erosion control practices, home builders ror home buyers can use it to determine whether the building foundation might crack or leak due to shrinking and swelling of the soil. The soil survey would also indicate whether an area might be prone to flooding. In fact the potential uses of the soil survey are almost unlimited.

Soil surveys can be one of our most valuable tools. Why not use them?

For more information concerning soil surveys, contact you local Soil Conservation Service office.

Animals' frigid sleep is researched

COLUMBIA--Man has always been a little envious of hibernating animals. When cold winter begins browning the leaves, these fortunate creatures simply store up layers of fat, curl up and rest until spring. They don't have to shovel snow or slip on ice; they just pass winter away in a sleepy, torpid state.

For years, biologists have been fascinated with all aspects of hibernation nand have devised various methods to study animals hibernating.

In 1966, researchers at the University of Missouri-Columbia, led by Dr. X. J. Musacchia, found they could artificially induce a state of hibernation in animals who do not hibernate in nature. The process of inducing this state of reduced metabolism in animals came to be known as the helium-cold methold of hypothermia.

Hypothermia means simply "low temperature." Hibernating animals are naturally placed in this state through low external temperatures and the puzzling mechanism of hibernation which zoologists do not yet comprehend. In non-hibernating animals, like man, hypothermia can cause death as a result of the body's inability to respire enough oxygen under the stressfully cold temperatures.

When Musacchia discovered he could lower non-hibernating animals' temperatures to as low as 40 degrees Farenheit and then slowly bring them back to normal temperatures without any side effects, the research world sat up and took notice.

The method he used involved the replacement of nitrogen gas in normal atmospheres with helium. Instead of the 20 per cent oxygen, 80 per cent nitrogen gas mixture we all breathe, Musacchia arranged a special mixture for his test animals with 20 per cent oxygen, 80 per cent helium.

Like many other discoveries in science, the technique was stumbled upon accidentally. A graduate student, Dr. Barbara Fisher, was experimenting with various combinations of gases on laboratory animals when the animals appeared to have died. Later, one of the animals was found on the lab shelf very much alive.

"This is a much less stressful method for making animals hypothermic," said Musacchia, who serves as director of the university's Dalton Research Center and as associate dean of the UMC graduate school. In the past, researchers would subject the animals to cold baths or plunges into ice buckets.

In the method developed by Musacchia, animals are placed in glass jars sealed except for intake and exhaust tubes linked to the helium-oxygen mixture. As the animals begin to breathe the gas, the temperature is slowly dropped. After a period of hours, the animal's temperature reaches about 47 degrees Fahrenheit, close to the lowest level the animal can maintain and still survive.

In this nearly frigid state, the animal's regular functions enter a sort of slow motion which can be studied and ueused for various tests. After the testing period, the temperature of the jar is slowly raised and the animal returns to normal functioning.

"We found that in almost every aspect, the helium-cold method of hypothermia and hibernation produce the same physiological results in animals," Musacchia said.

With the discovery of this technique, researchers at UMC's Dalton Research Center were able to continue with other studies of hibernation and depressed metabolism. Much attention has been focused on the resistance of hibernating animals to high levels of rdiation, on ways of extending the period of hypothermia, and on the functions of body tissues at low temperatures.

Recently, Musacchia has found that glucose, a simple but important body sugar, is the essential element is sustaining the period of hypothermia. With a constant injection of glucose, animals can extend their period of reduced metabolism from three or fur hours to three or four days.

Some animals were also found better suited for the stressful ordeal of induced hypothermia than others. After working with several kinds of laboratory mammals, the golden hamster was selected as the most adaptable for the experiments, because of its relative ease of handling and its common use by other researchers.

The Dalton Research Center now raises go!den hamsters for the many hypothermia experiments conducted in various labs around the country.

Other researchers have used the helium-cold method of hypothermia in different ways to further their research. Dr. Vojin Popovic at Emory University in Atlanta has developed a technique for cancer therapy called "differential hypothermia".

The technique uses cytotoxic or cell-killing agents to kill cancers in localized areas while keeping the rest of the body safe from the agents by inducing hypothermia. The technique has been successful in some animals.

The big question is, ot course, can man use techniques like differential hypothermia to combat cancer ? Looking even further to the future, can man use helium-induced hypothermia for long periods of dormancy for space travel in the way the movie "2001" portrayed?

As yet, no one has experimented with extended hypothermia on humans, and no one has wanted to try. "There are too many ethical problems," Musacchia said. Nevertheless, many researchers see fascinating possibilities with the sophistication of hypothermia techniques.

To Have and Have Not

The world's "have not" nations are growing much faster than the "haves," The Conference Board reports. Only 30 per cent of the world's four billion people live in developed countries. The other 70 per cent are in developing countries. Population in the "have not" countries is growing 2.6 per cent a year, compared with about 1 per cent in the "have" nations. By the year 2000, 82 per cent of the world's 8 billion population will live in 'have not" countries.

Nearly 15,000 species of insect life, 80 per cent of the world's total, have been found and classified in the Amazon River Basin.

More than 700,000 kinds of insects — representing almost every conceivable form, function, and habit — live on the earth.

Seed company posts second quarter gain

PARKERSBURG, Iowa--O's Gold Seed Co., hybrid seed firm, posted a 70 per cent increase in second quarter profits for the 12 months ending March 31.

Due to the highly seasonal nature of the agricultural seed industry, the company's quarterly financial reports are based on 12-month periods ending with the most recent fiscal quarter.

Net income for the 12-month period ending March 31 jumped to $1,216,535, or 24 cents a share, from $713,308 or 16 cents a share in the same period in the previous year. Net sales rose 67 per cent to $11,555. 557, compared to $6,905,933 in the prior period.

The sales growth is attributed to increases in unit sales and unit prices, according to president Wayne C. Dudley.

"Our company is experiencing earlier than normal delivery of seed in line with the early spring," said Dudley. "We continue to look forward to completing thfiscal year 1976 with record levels in sales and profits."

O's Gold currently markets hybrid seed in 22 states and recently completed a three-for-one stock split. The split shares were issued March 15.

Dianne Hahs:

By ANN O'LEARY

It's difficult at first to distinguish the teacher from her students. Dianne Hahs is only 29, and no more than half a head taller than some of the fourth and fifth grade students at Southwest Elementary School.

But students turning toward her for guidance and the way she directs clean-up after a pottery lesson identify her as the one in charge.

Mrs. Hahs is both artist and teacher this semester for fourth and fifth graders in the Sikeston elementary schools. The artist-in-residence program is sponsored by the Missouri Council on the Arts, the Sikeston Public Schools, the Sikeston Council on Arts and Education, and the Sikeston Art League.

Although funds were provided for a semester this year, Harriet Jones, art supervisor for the Sikeston Public Schools, says she hopes that a year-long program can be obtained next year.

"This town's pretty special for art," says Miss Jones. "There are a lot of people here who like to get things going."

"People who like to get things going" have given students a rare opportunity this semester—a chance to work with a "real live" artist.

Mrs. Hahs gives the students a lesson in pottery, a project which classroom teachers have neither the time nor facilities to handle. She also helps them make brightly painted parachutes from old sheets. Milk cartons are used as molds for the pottery.

"I like the ecology part of that," she says.

Another project, "machines the world needs," gives the student a chance to brainstorm and come up with his version of an invention. Example: an arm with the Midas touch-it sucks carrots up out of the ground and then turns them into gold.

But the artist says the students are not the only ones who have benefitted from the program.

"I've learned from them, too," she says. "My paintings have become more simple and childlike."

Mrs. Hahs alternates between teaching at the elementary schools and painting in her studio-a house on Ingram Street owned by the Sikeston Public Schools.

She has painted in the realistic tradition, and describes some of her drawings as "sentimental." But her current work is impressionistic. She paints in oil and acrylic on canvases she builds herself. The colors are bold, and much of the inspiration behind the work comes from the Bible.

"What dainty morsels rumors are. They are eaten with great relish." This is the title of one of her paintings and quotes Proverbs 18:8, the Living Bible. It depicts two women gossipping-and eating.

"I'm going to hang that one in my kitchen," she says "to remind me not to gossip. I made them (the women) grotesque because when women gossip, they really are grotesque. That includes me."

She gazes wistfully around the spacious studio.

"I wish I had a house like this. Usually I paint in my kitchen. Sometimes we have paint for supper instead of food."

She is married to Craig Hahs, and they have a daughter, Allison, who will be 3 in August. Dianne says she and her daughter often work with clay together.

"But I can't have anyone around when I paint. I have to be alone."

Sometimes she begins a painting with one idea, and then her thought changes. The result is a painting with one or two others beneath it on the canvas.

She and Miss Jones had a joint art show last fall, but Mrs. Hahs is anxious to contact some galleries and market her work.

Mrs. Hahs kiddingly describes herself as a "Navy brat." When she had a home base it was in Louisiana. She did her undergraduate work at Northwestern Louisiana University in Natchitoches. She is currently doing graduate work at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau.

She and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dickerson of Sikeston, moved here in 1964. Mr. Dickerson teaches electronics at the Senior High School.

Mrs. Hahs taught in the Sikeston Public Schools for five years, and was named Outstanding Young Educator of the Year by the Sikeston Jaycees in 1973.

Art is a way of life for Dianne Hahs, but teaching has its rewards too.

One day she told the students taking a lesson in pottery that it was an art that had been handed down from generation to generation for centuries. One boy solemnly told a teacher's aide, "I'm making something I'm going to hand down to my children's children."

"The thing I like most about elementary-age kids is their enthusiasm," says Mrs. Hahs.

Is it their enthusiasm-or a reflection of her own?

Mrs. Dianne Hahs demonstrates a brush stoke on one of her completed paintings in the studio owned by the school on Ingram Street. She spends half of each day in the studio working on her art projects and the other half teaching one of the Sikeston elementary schools.

Fifth - grader Beth Webber applies glaze to her pottery. All the pottery is fired twice, once before the glaze is applied and once afterwards. Dianne does the firing in a kiln at the studio on Ingram Street. Beth, daughter of Mrs. Peggy Webber, 222 Collins Drive, is taught by Mrs. Malone.

Lori Shanks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shanks, 304 Greer, drops her parachute to see whether the ball of clay attached is the proper weight to make the parachute drop slowly. The students made the parachutes from old sheets and painted designs on them. Lori is a fifth grader at Southwest Elementary and her teacher is Mrs. Neel.

Dianne Hahs:

By ANN O'LEARY

It's difficult at first to distinguish the teacher from her students. Dianne Hahs is only 29, and no more than half a head taller than some of the fourth and fifth grade students at Southwest Elementary School.

But students turning toward her for guidance and the way she directs clean-up after a pottery lesson identify her as the one in charge.

Mrs. Hahs is both artist and teacher this semester for fourth and fifth graders in the Sikeston elementary schools. The artist-in-residence program is sponsored by the Missouri Council on the Arts, the Sikeston Public Schools, the Sikeston Council on Arts and Education, and the Sikeston Art League.

Although funds were provided for a semester this year, Harriet Jones, art supervisor for the Sikeston Public Schools, says she hopes that a year-long program can be obtained next year.

"This town's pretty special for art," says Miss Jones. "There are a lot of people here who like to get things going."

"People who like to get things going" have given students a rare opportunity this semester—a chance to work with a "real live" artist.

Mrs. Hahs gives the students a lesson in pottery, a project which classroom teachers have neither the time nor facilities to handle. She also helps them make brightly painted parachutes from old sheets. Milk cartons are used as molds for the pottery.

"I like the ecology part of that," she says.

Another project, "machines the world needs," gives the student a chance to brainstorm and come up with his version of an invention. Example: an arm with the Midas touch-it sucks carrots up out of the ground and then turns them into gold.

But the artist says the students are not the only ones who have benefitted from the program.

"I've learned from them, too," she says. "My paintings have become more simple and childlike."

Area woman enters final race

NEW MADRID — Mrs. Carol Edwards will be participating in the 29th and final Powder Puff Derby race as a co-pilot with Mrs. Lois Fiegenbaum of Carbondale, Ill., pilot.

At 9 a.m. July 9, the starter's flag will drop to begin the final all-woman transcontinental air race or Powder Puff Derby.

In rapid sequence, throttle to the wall, 200 planes, piloted by women of all ages and varied vocations, will roar off Sacramento, California's Executive Airport and south on course toward the first refueling stop at Candler Airport in Fresno.

The world's longest speed race for light aircraft will continue to 2,916 miles in straight-line segments between the airports designated for refueling and-or overnight stops that include Riverside, Calif., scene of the 1975 start; Grand Canyon, Ariz., named for the majestic sight nearby; Santa Fe, N.M. in Navajo country; Lubbock, Tex., one of the select Bicentennial cities of the nation; Oklahoma City, Okla., location of the chic new Ninety-Nines' headquarters; Little Rock, Ark., with its striking new terminal; the Grand Ole Opry city of Nashville, Tenn., and Parkersburg, W. Va., last stop before the terminus at Greater Wilmington Airport in Wilmington, Del.

Mrs. Fiegenbaum is an experienced pilot with 2,700 hours and her ratings include instructor and ATR (Airline Transport Rating). She is presently serving as vice president of the Ninety-Nines Inc.

Mrs. Edwards, wife of John H. Edwards Jr., is a new pilot with 100 hours. She is active in the Cape Girardeau chapter of the Ninety-Nines.

The airplane which the two will fly in the race is a 1975 Cessna Skyhawk II. It is owned by Mrs. Edwards' father-in-law, John H. Edwards Sr. of New Madrid. The team's race number is 111.

The race is flown in daylight hours under visual flight rules, adhering to Federal Aviation Administration regulations. It's safety record is unparalled in that, in the 28-year history, there has never been a fatality.

Due to the current economic and energy crunches, the Powder Puff Derby will be discontinued at the conclusion of the 1976 Bicentennial run.

By 5 p.m. Pacific Daylight Time on July 5, all racing aircraft must be in the impound area at Sacramento. Inspectors will verify that the planes are stock model, 145-450 horsepower and conform to safety regulations.

Contestants wax their planes to slick brilliance, and finalize the precision charting and flight planning necessary to compete for any of the $22,000 in cash prizes.

Each make and model aircraft is handicapped, and the pilot making the best ground-speed above her handicap will win first prize of $10,000.

The Powder Puff Derby is the only race endorsed by the International Organization of Licensed Women Pilots, or Ninety-Nines. Working with civic and aviation officials, the Ninety-Nines form the ground crews at each stop, timing, arranging for availability of rapid refueling, radio and engine repair, transportation, meals and overnight accomodations.

As each plane arrives in Wilmington, it will again be impounded for inspection, and judges will begin reviewing scores. Winners are not known until the pilot de-briefing on the morning of July 14. That night, at a formal banquet, trophies and prize money will be awarded.

The name of the 1976 first-place winner will be the last on the perpetual trophy at the Smithsonian Institute, and the trademark name Power Puff Derby will be retired to the annals of aviation.

Mrs. Carol Edwards of New Madrid, foreground, and Mrs. Lois Fiegenbaum of Carbondale, Ill. review flight charts as they prepare to participate in the 29th Powder Puff Derby that begins July 9 in Sacramento, Calif. Ribbons Tie a Room Together

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If the economy has stymied your fall decorating plans, consider what might be done with "a couple of pints of paint and a little fabric." That suggestion is offered by designer Bobbi Stuart, 28, known for her innovative ideas.

Six years ago, after college, she became a specialist in crafts and home sewing on a teen-age girls magazine in New York. Now she and another decorator, Abbey Darer, style rooms for homefurnishings clients and others.

"Inexperienced decorators can put a pretty room together by choosing a fabric and using colors in its pattern to set the room color scheme. There are gorgeous inexpensive chintzes that are as good as the $20 a yard kind."

The nursery of her 16-month-old son, Peter, is an example. Three walls are covered in orange and white polka dot fabric; a fourth wall has a nursery rhyme on its orange and blue cotton. A little trunk for storage is covered in orange gingham which she also used to cover some big 27-inch pillows that are used for seating on the blue carpet.

Inexpensive used furniture can be stained, painted, wallpapered or covered with fabric, she insists, and "anything goes" in choosing colors if you start out with basic white on walls. She likes white deck paint on floors, "great with area rugs."

She and her husband wallpapered her old six-drawer college bureau — plain Danish modern — with a clover-pattern white wallpaper and use it in their bedroom. They painted the top rims of drawers white. An old steamer trunk was painted white with green hinges. It is used at the foot of the bed for blankets, quilts and so on. The window shade has the clover paper laminated to it. White sheer curtains are at the window, walls are white and carpet is white.

A blue and white breakfast nook consists of a church pew, a white high chair and ice-cream chairs purchased at a flea market. Cushions on pew and chairs are ruffled blue and white calico, pillows on the pew are blue gingham, which is also used as a tablecloth and for curtains.

"The bathroom was really the most disastrous room in the house. It had a sink on legs and terrible black floor tiles which I epoxied white. The sink on legs was skirted in white which hid the plumbing and provided storage. The motif on the wallpaper — red and white flowers in white pots — was appliqued on the shade. A red and white ribbon was used across the bottom of the shade and was also used as a tie on the white shower curtain. Red towels and other accessories completed the color scheme. Decorating the room was less expensive than tearing out the things we didn't like."

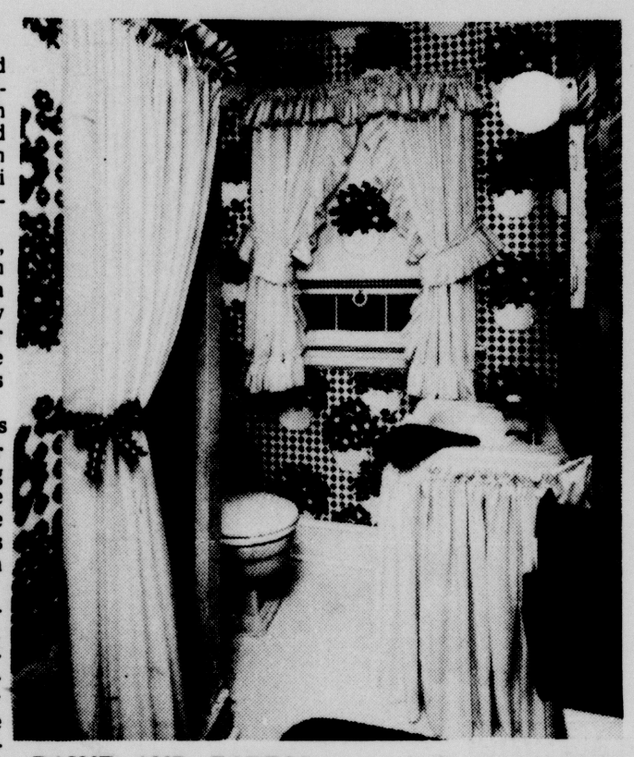
She makes skirted tables by placing round plywood over three-legged milking stools, and her husband has turned an old-fashioned icebox into a bar after staining it and rebrassing the hinges. Old wicker chairs that cost 50 cents were painted white and are used on the porch of their "darling cottage." The two work as a team and recently whitewashed the outside of the little red brick house in Darien, Conn.

Any room should have something made by the owners to provide the decorating with warmth, she maintains. And every house should have a room for hobbies, ironing, sewing or whatever. She didn't want to do "anything fancy" so she drew supergraphics on the wall — green and brown stripes at different levels on the white walls. Door panels were painted brown or green with the alternate color used as an outline.



PAINT AND FABRIC go a long way toward perking up a bathroom. A striking wallpaper has its red and white motif repeated on a window shade. Ribbon accent goes to the white shade and shower sheet. A skirt covers old sink legs. Red accessories liven the scene.

SAUSAGE SORCERY

• If spring fever is keeping you out in the yard and away from the stove, then try Hurry-Up Hash; it takes just 15 minutes. In 2 tablespoons of fat, cook 1 medium onion sliced. Add ¾ pound diced bologna, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 teaspoon prepared horseradish, ½ teaspoon sugar and ½ teaspoon caraway seeds. Cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add 1½ cups canned potatoes, diced and 1 cup finely shredded cabbage. Heat thoroughly and season with salt and pepper to taste. Makes 3 to 4 servings.

• We all need at least 18 milligrams of iron per day for healthy blood. Liver sausage and braunschweiger are good sources of iron. For a portion of your daily requirement, try a liver sausage and tomato sandwich on whole wheat!

A Child's Castle

Use your imagination — and that of your children — when decorating the youngsters' rooms. That's the advice of Kenn Miller, Editor of Encyclopedia of Home Designs. "Whether it's the circus-and-striped-candy motif of the nursery, or the fancy frills or football-mural walls of the teenager's hideaway, or the determinedly serious mien of the college student's quarters, your child's room is his castle and a very important part of the growing process," says Miller. "The atmosphere that you provide will have lasting effects." For more home planning information, write Encyclopedia of Home Designs, 89 East Jericho Turnpike, Mineola, N. Y. 11501.

Bath Building Economy

The most expensive room in your home per square foot is the bath, when you figure the cost of fixtures, plumbing lines and tile surfaces, but resale evidence shows that the extra bath is well worth it when you consider family convenience and the increasing need for not only the second, but the third bath or lavatory, according to the Homes for Living house plan service. For additional information on home plans, write Homes for Living, Dept. FN, 107-40 Queens Boulevard, Forest Hills, New York 11375.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old boy with a problem. I don't want to have a major hassle over this, but if you say I'm right I will fight to the bitter end. The question is this: My parents will not let me keep my bedroom door closed unless I am dressing or undressing.

I think I should be allowed to have some privacy when I am reading, doing homework or having kids over. One more thing, should a 14-year-old be allowed to have a lock on his door so he can lock it from the inside?-- Un-Privately Frustrated

Dear U.P.: I see no reason why a 14-year-old boy should not be permitted to keep his bedroom door closed, except when he is entertaining a member of the opposite sex.

As for a lock on the door, the answer is no. A closed door means you want privacy. Anyone who wishes to enter should knock first.

Dear Ann Landers: Rob and I have been going together for two years. Our engagement has been off and on so many times I've lost count. My ring has gone back and forth like a yo-yo.

We argue about what movie to see, which channel to watch, whether we're going to eat Chinese, American, Japanese, or Italian. We can't agree on whether or not to have a family either. Rob isn't especially fond of kids. I want at least three.

We can't get along WITH each other or WITHOUT each other. When I don't see him for three days I get depressed.

Rob says after we're married we'll get along better because we'll have more time to settle things. It makes sense to me. Do you agree? -- San Diego

Dear San: No. There will also be more time to argue, which is probably what you'll be doing. The basis for a good marriage is friendship. When two people bicker and disagree continually, they aren't friends. If Rob has the ring now let him keep it. If YOU have it, give it back to him.

Dera Ann Landers: I've been boiling ever since I read the complaints from people who have to wait in doctors' offices. May a receptionist have the last word?

It means as much to us as it does to the patients to run appointments on time. Working an additional two or three hours is no fun. But -- and here's the kicker:

You wouldn't believe how many people walk in without appointments and demand that the doctor see them. I realize emergencies come up, but you'd think they could at least call before they leave home. Then there are the frantic drop-ins who are "leaving town tomorrow." Add the pain-in-the-neck who waltzes in an hour late. (Car trouble, bus trouble, watch was an hour slow -- excuses galore.) Worst of all are the clods who call on the phone and INSIST on talking to the doctor even though he's with another patient. When you tell them he's busy, better hold the phone away from your ear. Those "call-backs" can take an hour. The doctor can't get them off the horn.

So, please, folks, try to see it from the other person's point of view. Do you believe any doctor or receptionist enjoys running two hours late? And how do you think the doctor 's wife likes it? -- From Michigan

Dear Mich: Glad to give you equal time. I'm with you and the doc on this one.

SAUSAGE SORCERY

• If spring fever is keeping you out in the yard and away from the stove, then try Hurry-Up Hash; it takes just 15 minutes. In 2 tablespoons of fat, cook 1 medium onion sliced. Add ¾ pound diced bologna, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 teaspoon prepared horseradish, ½ teaspoon sugar and ½ teaspoon caraway seeds. Cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add 1½ cups canned potatoes, diced and 1 cup finely shredded cabbage. Heat thoroughly and season with salt and pepper to taste. Makes 3 to 4 servings.

• We all need at least 18 milligrams of iron per day for healthy blood. Liver sausage and braunschweiger are good sources of iron. For a portion of your daily requirement, try a liver sausage and tomato sandwich on whole wheat!

Ann Landers

14-year old wants privacy

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old boy with a problem. I don't want to have a major hassle over this, but if you say I'm right I will fight to the bitter end. The question is this: My parents will not let me keep my bedroom door closed unless I am dressing or undressing.

I think I should be allowed to have some privacy when I am reading, doing homework or having kids over. One more thing, should a 14-year-old be allowed to have a lock on his door so he can lock it from the inside?-- Un-Privately Frustrated

Dear U.P.: I see no reason why a 14-year-old boy should not be permitted to keep his bedroom door closed, except when he is entertaining a member of the opposite sex.

As for a lock on the door, the answer is no. A closed door means you want privacy. Anyone who wishes to enter should knock first.

Dear Ann Landers: Rob and I have been going together for two years. Our engagement has been off and on so many times I've lost count. My ring has gone back and forth like a yo-yo.

We argue about what movie to see, which channel to watch, whether we're going to eat Chinese, American, Japanese, or Italian. We can't agree on whether or not to have a family either. Rob isn't especially fond of kids. I want at least three.

We can't get along WITH each other or WITHOUT each other. When I don't see him for three days I get depressed.

Rob says after we're married we'll get along better because we'll have more time to settle things. It makes sense to me. Do you agree? -- San Diego

Dear San: No. There will also be more time to argue, which is probably what you'll be doing. The basis for a good marriage is friendship. When two people bicker and disagree continually, they aren't friends. If Rob has the ring now let him keep it. If YOU have it, give it back to him.

Dera Ann Landers: I've been boiling ever since I read the complaints from people who have to wait in doctors' offices. May a receptionist have the last word?

It means as much to us as it does to the patients to run appointments on time. Working an additional two or three hours is no fun. But -- and here's the kicker:

You wouldn't believe how many people walk in without appointments and demand that the doctor see them. I realize emergencies come up, but you'd think they could at least call before they leave home. Then there are the frantic drop-ins who are "leaving town tomorrow." Add the pain-in-the-neck who waltzes in an hour late. (Car trouble, bus trouble, watch was an hour slow -- excuses galore.) Worst of all are the clods who call on the phone and INSIST on talking to the doctor even though he's with another patient. When you tell them he's busy, better hold the phone away from your ear. Those "call-backs" can take an hour. The doctor can't get them off the horn.

So, please, folks, try to see it from the other person's point of view. Do you believe any doctor or receptionist enjoys running two hours late? And how do you think the doctor 's wife likes it? -- From Michigan

Dear Mich: Glad to give you equal time. I'm with you and the doc on this one.

Reroofing ends leaks

There are two reasons to reroof: (1) your present roof leaks, or (2) you've determined that a new roof will improve the appearance of your home.

Both reasons are valid. In the case of No. 1, repair or replacement is mandatory if you place any value on the home and its contents. No. 2 is discretionary, but is gaining ground as people become more aware of how an attractive, good quality roof can improve the appearance and increase the value of a home.

If the roof leaks, it should be taken care of immediately. It's best to call in a professional roofer to conduct an on-the-the-roof inspection. He can determine whether minor repairs are called for or a complete reroofing job is needed.

If the roof is of standard shingles and at least 15 years old, repairs may serve only temporarily and reroofing should be considered. Other signs of a worn-out roof are curled or crumbling shingles.

Whether reroofing to replace a worn-out roof or to improve the looks of your home, be sure to consult the roofer. He can provide useful information on such things as material and labor costs and how to use color and texture to advantage. One topic of discussion is whether the new roof can be installed over the old one. In many cases it can, thus eliminating the cost of tearing off the old roof.

Another is the material to be used. New, heavy-textured or dimensional asphalt shingles, for example, are designed to last up to 25 years. Based on the cost per year of use basis, these shingles may be more economical because the cost of labor for installation is amortized over a longer period of time.

Besides long-lasting, low-maintenance protection, heavy-textured asphalt shingles are available in a variety of popular earthtone colors that help relate a home to its environment. The textured look of these shingles creates attractive, deep shadow lines that give a roof added dimension.

Whatever the reason for reroofing, heavy-textured asphalt shingles will improve your home's appearance and help maintain its resale value.

Clean Up A Home For Sale

Probably the first step in the process of selling your home is to establish the price you want for it. A fair guideline is to determine the actual selling price of similar homes in the neighborhood.

The National Association of Realtors advises homeowners about to sell their homes to remember that first impressions are the best. The association suggests these points:

Outdoors, the landscaping and lawn should be neat and trim; the sidewalk and entryway clean, the windows washed and shutters, siding and the roof should be well-maintained.

Indoors, conventional colors are best to appeal to the widest audience; bedrooms, kitchens and baths should be clean; all junk should be removed from the basement and attic; leaky faucets and loose doorknobs fixed; drapes or curtains should be open; if the interior is still dark, turn on lights; and turn off the radio and TV.

A major home improvement recently completed can also help sell a house. Be sure to discuss it with a prospective buyer. You might also consider an improvement project to improve a home's appearance before putting it up for sale.

Reroofing, for instance, could help the home's curb appeal considerably, especially if your present roof shows signs of age. A new roof of heavy-textured asphalt shingles in a dramatic earthtone color will set your home apart from its neighbors.

You can also point out to a potential buyer that he will be free from roof replacement worries for many years to come.

Questions about food

This column is a service from Cooperative Extension Nutritionists at Lincoln University and the University of Missouri. Questions from readers about food and diet are welcomed. Letters should be addressed to: Dr. James W. Nordstrom, Nutrition Extension, Lincoln University, Jefferson City, MO 65101.

Q. I would like some information about plants that grow wild in Missouri which can be eaten as greens.

A. A list of the better known wild greens found in Missouri includes dandelion, nettles, dock, lambsquarter, mustard, plantain, pokeweed, water cress and prickly lettuce. They grow in many diverse places such as lawns, gardens, fence rows, roadsides, pastures and vacant lots. If picked at the right time and properly prepared they can add interesting flavors and important nutrients to meals.

Dark green plants are characteristically rich in vitamin A value, a nutrient lacking in many American diets. Vitamin C is also usually abundant. Two minerals found in greens that are often deficient in our daily meals are calcium and iron.

Dandelion and plantain are two edible weeds that grow on nearly every lawn in Missouri. Most people are familiar with dandelions, but plantains are equally common. The plants tend to be similar in size to the dandelion and the leaves, like those of the dandelion, grow in a rosette pattern. Two varieties common to Missouri are Rugel's plantain with egg-shaped leaves, and Buckhorn plantain, which has long, narrow leaves.

Lambsquarter is a common garden weed that can be found in many places such as vacant lots, fence rows, etc. The leaves are a dark green with a silver frost on the underside.

The succulent top shoots of this plant are deliciously mild throughout the growing season, from spring to autumn frost. Dandelion and plantain, on the other hand, are best harvested in the spring. The leaves of dandelion tend to become tough and bitter after the plant flowers.

Q. How can wild greens be used in meals?

A. The new growth of tender leaves and shoots that develop in the spring are generally best for succulence and mild flavor. They should be washed thoroughly in cold water before they are used.

The young leaves of many green plants can be eaten raw in fresh salads or as garnishes on various foods. They can also be cooked like spinach and other regular garden greens. Remember that greens can be ruined by improper cooking just like other vegetables.

Americans spend more on home improvement

The National Home Improvement Council estimates home modernization will be a $35-billion industry by 1980.

If the industry lives up to that forecast, it will mean that home remodeling volume will have just about doubled since 1972. In that year, residential property owners spent $17.5-billion on maintenance and improvements according to U.S. Census Bureau figures.

The NHIC also cites:

— Latest Census Bureau data that show residential property owners spent $25.5-billion at a seasonally-adjusted annual rate in the 1975 third quarter on maintenance, additions, and improvements, compared with a $21.4-billion rate in the comparable 1974 quarter and $18.4-billion in 1973.

Among the factors responsible for the expansion in home modernization according to a study by brokerage house, Tucker Anthony & R. L. Day, are rapid growth in the 25-39 age group, new family formations, rising family incomes, product innovations, increasing costs for new housing and an aging housing stock that demands additional maintenance.

The rising cost of new housing alone is enough to convince many home owners to stay put and improve their properties. The U. S. Department of Commerce reports the average home price in 1974 was $38,900, up from $35,500 in 1973. The cost of land is another aspect of rising new home costs. The Commerce Department notes a typical improved lot cost $6500 in 1974, or about 17 percent of the cost of a new home.

The homeowner who decides to modernize already owns the land so he only has to pay the cost of labor and materials. He also saves on the cost of moving, which housing experts estimate generally runs to about 10 percent of the cost of a new home.

Product innovations are other reasons homeowners are choosing to remodel. New building materials that look good and are easy to care for are much in demand by homeowners who value their leisure time. Modern asphalt shingles are an example.

The Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association reports the recent introduction and growing popularity of thicker, dimensional, heavy-textured asphalt shingles in earthtone hues figured prominently in the heavy reroofing activity by homeowners in 1975. The boom in reroofing kept roofing manufacturers busy despite the slack in new home construction.

It's the summer of '76
and we're celebrating with savings.

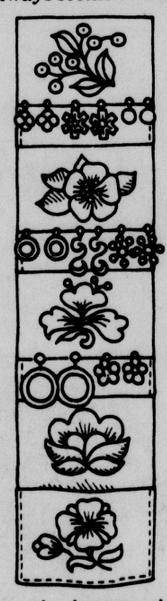
Joy of Stitching

by ELSA WILLIAMS

THE JEWEL-KEEP BELLPULL

One of the most unusual pieces of embroidery I own is the miniature bellpull in which I keep my costume jewelry. Though it's been a long time since bellpulls were used to summon servants, the shape of this wall hanging makes it a perennial favorite with embroiderers because it's such a perfect way to fill a narrow wall space.

My mini-bellpull jewel-keep hangs near my dressing table. Four or five inches wide, 18 inches long and gaily embroidered, it's punctuated at regular intervals by ribbon strips. On these I keep my earrings, neatly paired, blessedly visible and so unlike a conventional jewel box in which the second earring of a pair always seems to disappear.



Across the bottom there's a full-width pocket which I use to hold bangle bracelets.

If you'd like to design a jewel-keep for yourself, I suggest you make a list of the things you'd plan to keep in it. For instance, if you wear clip-on earrings you might want to double and stiffen the ribbon straps so your earrings would easily snap into place. Slightly wider ribbons would accommodate pins and brooches. As to color, a monochromatic scheme — pale green embroidery on deep green linen — would make a background against which jewels would sparkle.

A new illustrated leaflet on Bargello is available FREE. For yours, write to Elsa Williams, Box 3788, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

A jewel-keep makes an unusual gift and can be personalized by embroidering it in the favorite colors of the person you're making ti for, or perhaps even with her/his name or an actual signature embroidered on it. It's by no means a For Women Only gift. An even smaller jewel-keep can be designed in a handsome geometric to hold a man's cufflinks and tie tacks.

For a teen-ager with pierced ears, thinner ribbons should be used so the earrings can be fastened securely right through the ribbon. The pocket at the bottom would be ideal for the many rings which are so "in" now and a collection of those "little nothing" chains could be fastened to one of the lower ribbons.

You may want to make several of these beguiling jewel-keeps as birthday or Christmas gifts. One thing you can be sure of, they'll be one-of-a-kind!

Dear Elsa,

When I shop for needlepoint canvas, I sometimes see patterned canvas, usually in tan and white. Is this for pillows or chair seats?

Dear S.R.L.,

There's certainly no reason why you can't make pillows or chair seats on pattern-weave canvas which is usually designed in small all-over patterns. But you can also use these canvases to make elegant vests, belts, bags and many other fashion accessories.

Medical Assistants Aid in Health Care

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

LANGHORNE, Pa. (AP) — Ruth Logan checks the squiggly lines with a previous electrocardiogram and decides the patient's heart is okay.

"Doesn't look like anything's changed," she tells Dr. Earl Connors of Langhorne, who concurs in the diagnosis.

It's another of the supervised medical decisions by a physician's assistant that have enabled her boss, Connors, to expand his busy family practice by 30 per cent.

Medical and osteopathic physicians in Pennsylvania and elsewhere around the nation are increasingly taking on assistants, sometimes also called a Medex, as a major effort to help improve and increase health care. It's giving the overworked doctor a second set of medical hands.

"I would recommend it to all physicians," said Connors. "This program allows us to spend more time with our patients, and give them better attention. You're not rushing them out in order to clear your waiting room."

In Western Pennsylvania, Dr. Philip Riley of Uniontown has had a medical-school trained assistant for four years, twice as long as Connors. He claims he's now delivering better care to his rural patients than when he worked alone.

"We see people simultaneously," said Riley of his assistant, Thomas Deadman, a 29-year-old Marine medic who saw battlefield service in Vietnam in 1969-70. "We discuss the difficult cases. We provide a more complete checkup. That's the beauty of it."

And Connors added: "It smooths out a practice, and gives a physician's office a trained backup. And patient acceptance is tremendous. I get no resistance. Some patients come in and specifically request Mrs. Logan, and that's fine."

It is estimated there are 60 ongoing physician's assistant programs in America today, with two of them in Pennsylvania — at the Hershey Medical Center outside Harrisburg and the Hahnemann Medical College in Philadelphia.

Approximately 2,000 PA graduates are now working in physician's offices in the U.S. and another 1,500 are in training.

Medex offers a 15-month course, with the first five months devoted to classroom work in the basic and clinical sciences, and the last 10 on-the-job in a doctor's office. Applicants must have at least three years' experience in direct patient care.

Dr. Thomas Leaman, chairman of Hershey's Department of Family and Community Medicine, said the physician's assistant increases the interest in and importance of general practice, now making a slow comeback at the expense of specialties.

"In a family practice today lots of services are provided that never were provided before, like patient education and preventive medicine," Leaman said. "We find that an assistant can do this better than a physician.

"Take a person with a dietary problem. The assistant can sit down and talk with a patient and spend a lot more time than I could. It is a form of patient education that a solo physician can't handle as well by himself.

"A physician's assistant also takes the pressure from a doctor's shoulder on trivial complaints or a patient problem that just needs a conforting word. Patients who are terminally ill stay at home, and an assistant can go out and visit and report back on what's going on. It's like having another pair of eyes and ears."

Hahnemann has graduated 52 physician's assistants since 1973. It offers a two-year course with an associate degree. Applicants need have no prior medical experience, and can enter right out of high school.

"We think it is doing well," said Dr. Geoffrey Lefferts, director of Hahnemann's program. "All our graduates are employed. Two-thirds are working in Pennsylvania with half of them in rural areas."

Of Hershey's PA's 78, or 83 per cent, are in a family practice setup, and 10 others are associated with physicians specializing in internal medicine. Nearly 70 per cent are working in towns with less than 20,000 population.

For the sweet and sour, mix ¾ cup brown sugar, ¼ cup white sugar and 1 small bottle (12 oz.) ketchup in sauce pan and heat for 10 minutes. Or, if you prefer a tart taste, mix ⅓ cup prepared mustard with ½ cup currant jelly and heat in sauce pan for 10 minutes. Provide toothpicks and appropriate thrist-quenchers!

Americans spend more on home improvement

The National Home Improvement Council estimates home modernization will be a $35-billion industry by 1980.

If the industry lives up to that forecast, it will mean that home remodeling volume will have just about doubled since 1972. In that year, residential property owners spent $17.5-billion on maintenance and improvements according to U.S. Census Bureau figures.

The NHIC also cites:

— Latest Census Bureau data that show residential property owners spent $25.5-billion at a seasonally-adjusted annual rate in the 1975 third quarter on maintenance, additions, and improvements, compared with a $21.4-billion rate in the comparable 1974 quarter and $18.4-billion in 1973.

Among the factors responsible for the expansion in home modernization according to a study by brokerage house, Tucker Anthony & R. L. Day, are rapid growth in the 25-39 age group, new family formations, rising family incomes, product innovations, increasing costs for new housing and an aging housing stock that demands additional maintenance.

The rising cost of new housing alone is enough to convince many home owners to stay put and improve their properties. The U. S. Department of Commerce reports the average home price in 1974 was $38,900, up from $35,500 in 1973. The cost of land is another aspect of rising new home costs. The Commerce Department notes a typical improved lot cost $6500 in 1974, or about 17 percent of the cost of a new home.

The homeowner who decides to modernize already owns the land so he only has to pay the cost of labor and materials. He also saves on the cost of moving, which housing experts estimate generally runs to about 10 percent of the cost of a new home.

Product innovations are other reasons homeowners are choosing to remodel. New building materials that look good and are easy to care for are much in demand by homeowners who value their leisure time. Modern asphalt shingles are an example.

The Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association reports the recent introduction and growing popularity of thicker, dimensional, heavy-textured asphalt shingles in earthtone hues figured prominently in the heavy reroofing activity by homeowners in 1975. The boom in reroofing kept roofing manufacturers busy despite the slack in new home construction.

It's the summer of '76
and we're celebrating with savings.

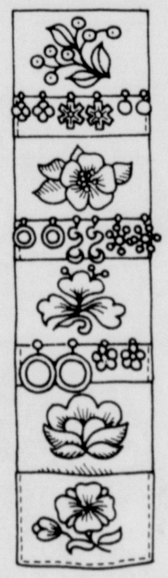
THE JEWEL-KEEP BELLPULL

One of the most unusual pieces of embroidery I own is the miniature bellpull in which I keep my costume jewelry. Though it's been a long time since bellpulls were used to summon servants, the shape of this wall hanging makes it a perennial favorite with embroiderers because it's such a perfect way to fill a narrow wall space.

My mini-bellpull jewel-keep hangs near my dressing table. Four or five inches wide, 18 inches long and gaily embroidered, it's punctuated at regular intervals by ribbon strips. On these I keep my earrings, neatly paired, blessedly visible and so unlike a conventional jewel box in which the second earring of a pair always seems to disappear.



Across the bottom there's a full-width pocket which I use to hold bangle bracelets.

If you'd like to design a jewel-keep for yourself, I suggest you make a list of the things you'd plan to keep in it. For instance, if you wear clip-on earrings you might want to double and stiffen the ribbon straps so your earrings would easily snap into place. Slightly wider ribbons would accommodate pins and brooches. As to color, a monochromatic scheme — pale green embroidery on deep green linen — would make a background against which jewels would sparkle.

A jewel-keep makes an unusual gift and can be personalized by embroidering it in the favorite colors of the person you're making ti for, or perhaps even with her/his name or an actual signature embroidered on it. It's by no means a For Women Only gift. An even smaller jewel-keep can be designed in a handsome geometric to hold a man's cufflinks and tie tacks.

For a teen-ager with pierced ears, thinner ribbons should be used so the earrings can be fastened securely right through the ribbon. The pocket at the bottom would be ideal for the many rings which are so "in" now and a collection of those "little nothing" chains could be fastened to one of the lower ribbons.

You may want to make several of these beguiling jewel-keeps as birthday or Christmas gifts. One thing you can be sure of, they'll be one-of-a-kind!

Dear Elsa,

When I shop for needlepoint canvas, I sometimes see patterned canvas, usually in tan and white. Is this for pillows or chair seats?

Dear S.R.L.,

There's certainly no reason why you can't make pillows or chair seats on pattern-weave canvas which is usually designed in small all-over patterns. But you can also use these canvases to make elegant vests, belts, bags and many other fashion accessories.

Medical Assistants Aid in Health Care

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

It's another of the supervised medical decisions by a physician's assistant that have enabled her boss, Connors, to expand his busy family practice by 30 per cent.

Medical and osteopathic physicians in Pennsylvania and elsewhere around the nation are increasingly taking on assistants, sometimes also called a Medex, as a major effort to help improve and increase health care. It's giving the overworked doctor a second set of medical hands.

"I would recommend it to all physicians," said Connors. "This program allows us to spend more time with our patients, and give them better attention. You're not rushing them out in order to clear your waiting room."

In Western Pennsylvania, Dr. Philip Riley of Uniontown has had a medical-school trained assistant for four years, twice as long as Connors. He claims he's now delivering better care to his rural patients than when he worked alone.

"We see people simultaneously," said Riley of his assistant, Thomas Deadman, a 29-year-old Marine medic who saw battlefield service in Vietnam in 1969-70. "We discuss the difficult cases. We provide a more complete checkup. That's the beauty of it."

And Connors added: "It smooths out a practice, and gives a physician's office a trained backup. And patient acceptance is tremendous. I get no resistance. Some patients come in and specifically request Mrs. Logan, and that's fine."

It is estimated there are 60 ongoing physician's assistant programs in America today, with two of them in Pennsylvania — at the Hershey Medical Center outside Harrisburg and the Hahnemann Medical College in Philadelphia.

Approximately 2,000 PA graduates are now working in physician's offices in the U.S. and another 1,500 are in training.

Medex offers a 15-month course, with the first five months devoted to classroom work in the basic and clinical sciences, and the last 10 on-the-job in a doctor's office. Applicants must have at least three years' experience in direct patient care.

Dr. Thomas Leaman, chairman of Hershey's Department of Family and Community Medicine, said the physician's assistant increases the interest in and importance of general practice, now making a slow comeback at the expense of specialties.

"In a family practice today lots of services are provided that never were provided before, like patient education and preventive medicine," Leaman said. "We find that an assistant can do this better than a physician.

"Take a person with a dietary problem. The assistant can sit down and talk with a patient and spend a lot more time than I could. It is a form of patient education that a solo physician can't handle as well by himself.

"A physician's assistant also takes the pressure from a doctor's shoulder on trivial complaints or a patient problem that just needs a conforting word. Patients who are terminally ill stay at home, and an assistant can go out and visit and report back on what's going on. It's like having another pair of eyes and ears."

Hahnemann has graduated 52 physician's assistants since 1973. It offers a two-year course with an associate degree. Applicants need have no prior medical experience, and can enter right out of high school.

"We think it is doing well," said Dr. Geoffrey Lefferts, director of Hahnemann's program. "All our graduates are employed. Two-thirds are working in Pennsylvania with half of them in rural areas."

Of Hershey's PA's 78, or 83 per cent, are in a family practice setup, and 10 others are associated with physicians specializing in internal medicine. Nearly 70 per cent are working in towns with less than 20,000 population.

When God created mothers

When God Created Mothers...

When the Good Lord was creating Mothers he was into his sixth day of "overtime" when the angel appeared and said, "You're doing a lot of fiddling around on this one."

And the Lord said, "Have you read the spec on this order?"

She has to be completely washable, but not plastic.

Have 180 moveable parts...all replaceable.

Run on black coffee and leftovers.

Have a lap that disappears when she stands up.

And six pairs of hands.

The angel shook her head slowly and said, "Six pairs of hands...no way."

"It's not the hands that are causing me problems," said the Lord. "It's the three pairs of eves that Mothers have to have."

"That's on the standard model?" asked the angel.

The Lord nodded. "One pair that sees through closed doors when she asks, 'What are you kids doing in there?' when she already knows. Another here in the back of her head that sees what she shouldn't but what she has to know, and of course the ones here in front that can look at a child when he goofs up and say, 'I understand and I love you' without so much as uttering a word."

"I can't," said the Lord, "I'm so close to creating something so close to myself. Already I have one who heals herself when she is sick...can feed a family of six on one pound of hamburger...and can get a nine-year-old to stand under a shower."

The angel circled the model of a Mother very slowly. "It's too soft," she sighed.

"But tough!" said the Lord excitedly. "You cannot imagine what this Mother can do or endure."

"Can it think?"

"Not only think, but it can reason and compromise," said the Creator.

Finally, the angel bent over and ran her finger across the cheek. "There's a leak," she pronounced.

"I told you you were trying to put too much into this model."

"It's not a leak," said the Lord, "it's a tear."

"What's it for?"

"It's for joy, sadness, disappointment, pain, loneliness and pride."

"You are a genius," said the angel.

The Lord looked somber. "I didn't put it there."

Girl uses paper to find pen pal

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mona Snallfot lives in Kiruna, a town of 30,000 in Sweden above the Arctic Circle. She wanted a pen pal, so she wrote "To a newspaper in USA" on the envelope with her letter.

Her letter arrived Wednesday at the Indianapolis Star.

"My name is Mona and I am 15 years old and I want penfriends in USA, both girls and boys from 15 to 20 years," she wrote.

Francis Fox, manager of of the mail facility at Indianapolis' Weir Cook Airport, said nine-tenths of the mail from overseas is separated by states in the country of origin. He said Mona's letter probably was sent to Indianapolis by a postal worker in Kiruna.

HANDY GUIDE TO THE CARE AND FEEDING OF HARDWOOD FLOORS

Many of my readers have written to me requesting information on how to maintain their hardwood floors. I must say I was quite surprised that so few women realize how simple it is to keep wood floors looking fresh and new.

Keeping your hardwood floors in top-notch condition is actually quite simple. Of course, like any high-quality product, wood floors do need some periodic special attention. But when you think of all the advantages a hardwood floor provides as opposed to some of the synthetic substitutes on the market, it's fairly clear that a dash of extra trouble may very well be worth the additional effort. Not only do hardwood floors, (floors made of oak, maple, teak, pecan, cherry, etc.) increase the value of a house, but they have many decorative bonuses to boot.

To look their beautiful best, hardwood floors should always be kept dust and dirt free and polished to a gleamingly high luster. Here's how to do it:

• Vacuum clean or dry mop the floor with the wood grain to clean away normal dust and dirt. An oil-base dust and grime remover used on the mop will facilitate cleaning.

• Two or three times yearly remove surface dirt and old floor wax. A cleaner-wax with a solvent base is best for this purpose. Spread cleaner-wax with a cloth or fine steel wool; then rub gently to remove grime and old wax. Let dry for 20 minutes, then buff. A second coat of this wax will increase durability.

• Regular waxing should be done two or three times a year if a cleaner-wax isn't used. Between waxing, buffing the floor will help restore luster. Vacuum or dry-mop first, then remove discolored or soiled wax with mineral spirits or naphtha. A wax with a mineral spirits or naphtha base will also help to loosen dirt if used instead. Follow manufacturer's directions to apply new wax. Use two thin coats instead of one heavy one. Let dry, then buff the floor, moving with the wood grain.

1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

On wax paper stir together the flour, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg. Pare yams and grate coarsely — there should be 4 cups not packed down or 3 cups firmly packed. In a medium mixing bowl stir together the yams and butter. With a spoon, beat in the egg well; then, beating well with the spoon after each addition, add the sugar, molasses, milk, vanilla and flour mixture. Bake in an ungreased 1½-quart souffle dish (7½ by 2½ inches) or similar utensil, uncovered, in a preheated 325 degree oven for 1 hour, stirring several times; continue baking until potatoes are tender and caramelized around edges — 1 hour longer. With a small spatula at once loosen edges. Serve warm topped with vanilla ice cream in Indian Pudding style. Makes 6 delicious servings.

Most families love fresh, home baked yeast bread. And yeast breads love a warm place during their rising period. The problem can be solved by placing your bowl of dough in a pan of warm water or in the oven with a pan of hot water on the rack below. Baking yeast bread with enriched or whole grain flours also insures they add a healthful measure of the B-vitamins — niacin, thiamine and riboflavin — plus the mineral, iron.

POPPYSEED HONEY CAKE
2-3rds cup poppyseed
1-3rd cup honey
¼ cup water
2½ cups flour, stir to aerate before measuring
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
1½ cups sugar
4 large eggs, separated
1 cup commercial sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Grease and flour a 10-inch angelcake pan.

In a small saucepan simmer together for 5 minutes, stirring often, the poppyseed, honey and water; cool.

On wax paper thoroughly stir together the flour, baking soda and salt.

In the large bowl of an electric mixer cream butter and sugar; beat in poppyseed mixture. At moderate speed, thoroughly beat in the egg yolks, one at a time; add sour cream and vanilla and beat until blended. At lowest speed, gradually beat in the flour mixture.

With a clean beater, in a small mixing bowl, beat egg whites until they form stiff straight peaks when the beater is slowly withdrawn; fold into batter. Turn into prepared pan.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 55 minutes. Let stand on a wire rack for 5 minutes. With a small metal spatula, loosen edges and around tube and turn out on rack; cool completely. Serve as is or spread top with vanilla-flavor confectioners' sugar frosting, letting some of it drip down sides; sprinkle top with extra poppyseed.

For Budget Steak Look for Blade Cut

A shopper caught in the spiral of rising prices may be in a steak dilemma. Although there are often really good buys in sirloin and Porterhouse, the budget may say—"Reserve for special occasions." Yet the desire for steak grows throughout the grill season.

To satisfy the family's steak appetite, many smart shoppers buy economical beef blade steaks and marinate them in a tangy barbecue sauce for broiling, points out Reba Staggs, National Live Stock and Meat Board home economist.

Bar-B-Q Steak

1 beef blade steak, cut ½ to ¾ inch thick
¼ cup catsup
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons water
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt

Combine catsup, vinegar, water, Worcestershire sauce and salt. Place steak in utility dish or plastic bag and pour marinade over it, turning to coat. Cover dish or tie bag securely and place in pan. Marinate in refrigerator 6 hours or overnight, turning at least once. Remove steak from marinade and place on rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is 4 inches from heat. Broil 7 to 10 minutes on each side, depending upon degree of doneness desired

1½ cups sugar
4 large eggs, separated
1 cup commercial sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Grease and flour a 10-inch angelcake pan.

In a small saucepan simmer together for 5 minutes, stirring often, the poppyseed, honey and water; cool.

On wax paper thoroughly stir together the flour, baking soda and salt.

In the large bowl of an electric mixer cream butter and sugar; beat in poppyseed mixture. At moderate speed, thoroughly beat in the egg yolks, one at a time; add sour cream and vanilla and beat until blended. At lowest speed, gradually beat in the flour mixture.

With a clean beater, in a small mixing bowl, beat egg whites until they form stiff straight peaks when the beater is slowly withdrawn; fold into batter. Turn into prepared pan.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 55 minutes. Let stand on a wire rack for 5 minutes. With a small metal spatula, loosen edges and around tube and turn out on rack; cool completely. Serve as is or spread top with vanilla-flavor confectioners' sugar frosting, letting some of it drip down sides; sprinkle top with extra poppyseed.

For Budget Steak Look for Blade Cut

A shopper caught in the spiral of rising prices may be in a steak dilemma. Although there are often really good buys in sirloin and Porterhouse, the budget may say—"Reserve for special occasions." Yet the desire for steak grows throughout the grill season.

To satisfy the family's steak appetite, many smart shoppers buy economical beef blade steaks and marinate them in a tangy barbecue sauce for broiling, points out Reba Staggs, National Live Stock and Meat Board home economist.

Bar-B-Q Steak

1 beef blade steak, cut ½ to ¾ inch thick
¼ cup catsup
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons water
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt

Combine catsup, vinegar, water, Worcestershire sauce and salt. Place steak in utility dish or plastic bag and pour marinade over it, turning to coat. Cover dish or tie bag securely and place in pan. Marinate in refrigerator 6 hours or overnight, turning at least once. Remove steak from marinade and place on rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is 4 inches from heat. Broil 7 to 10 minutes on each side, depending upon degree of doneness desired

Colonial Charm and Contemporary Comfort

MODEL C1438

HOME DESIGN
by Larry Farnsworth

Note first its beautiful exterior. Even the garage, designed to be entered from the side, presents a pretty, non-utilitarian looking face to the street. And on the side away from the street, which is not illustrated here, a first floor, house length veranda and corresponding second story deck add extra charm and living potential.

Now cross the pillared portico and step into the central entry. To the left a huge living room stretches from the front of the house to the charming veranda beyond sliding glass doors at the back.

On the other side of the stairs, at the front of the house, a good sized room for traditional dining is separated from the kitchen by a counter arrangement which allows for fast meal service too and also adds a feeling of spaciousness to both rooms.

Note the kitchen's many appealing features. Its L-shaped work area leaves plenty of space for informal dining and other activities. It has a nice big storage closet and a convenient downstairs bathroom also. And do not overlook the handy access to the laundry facilities in the big double garage and just a step through it to the rear yard and veranda.

Three bedrooms and two baths are found on the second story. Note the huge closets too, especially the cleverly designed dressing room-closet combination between the master bedroom and its private bath. Both baths have outside windows and are back to back for plumbing economy. Note too the bedroom doorway to the wide, luxurious sun deck.

Beautiful You

By Marti Robinson

GIRLS WHO WEAR GLASSES: Some women prefer to go around squinting and barely recognizing friends on the street rather than wear corrective glasses because they believe glasses are unbecoming. Yet I've seen women wearing glasses with no harm to their egos or their good looks. That's because they've learned how to choose frames most flattering to their faces and — most important — how to make up their eyes so that they remain a major beauty feature.

Women who wear glasses should use all the eye makeup items available: eyeliner, mascara, extra lashes and eyeshadow. Remember, your eyes are covered — but not hidden — by glasses. Proper choice of eye makeup will make your eyes just as alluring as they would be without glasses. But "proper choice" is the key phrase, followed by "correct application." Here's what to do.

Buy a stand-up magnifying mirror and position it on your shelf or vanity table so you're comfortable as you sit before it. Applying makeup might take a little longer if you have to keep putting on your glasses to check the results as you go along. But it's worth the time.

Intensity of color is important. Choose intense shades of eyeshadow. That does not mean bright shades such as royal blue or emerald green. But just avoid shades that are too pale. Instead of light green or blue, choose instead a hunter green or a deep or even navy blue. These colors are muted, but intense. And keep in mind, for a balanced look, that other color on your face should be compatible. For instance, you could use with hunter green eyeshadow coral lip-coloring such as Persian Melon or Connecticut Coral in the Merle Norman Cosmetics line.

There are ways to wear extra lashes without the problem of the lashes hitting the lenses. It is a mistake to choose short, stubby lashes as a solution, because these are not flattering. Rather, choose extra lashes that sweep upwards. Also, your frames can be adjusted. By having your eye doctor bend the earpieces slightly, or by building a slightly thicker nosepiece, the glasses will not be so close to your face. If you wear a sweeping extra lash, you should consider an extra lower lash also, again for balance. If you feel your lower lashes are thick enough and long enough, go without the extra lower lash. But, of course, don't ever skip mascara, either on upper or lower lashes. A brown-black mascara is right for most women. Black is for very dark-haired women.

Eyeliner goes on as close as possible to the base of the upper and lower lashes in a soft, almost smudged way. Do not draw on a thick hard line. Using light strokes, you will learn to do what I call "feathering on" your liner.

In choosing a frame for eyeglasses, it is best to have the upper part follow the natural line of your brow. If the top part of the frame falls above or below the brow, it gives the appearance of two sets of brows, a most unflattering look. Do not select a frame that matches the natural shape of your face. Do the opposite. Angular faces need curving or roundness in the frames, just as round faces look better with square or angular shaped frames.

THE RYATTS by Jack Elrod

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, May 9, the 130th day of 1976. There are 236 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1936, Italy annexed the African country of Ethiopia, and King Victor Emmanuel was proclaimed emperor.

On this date:

In 1754, the first newspaper cartoon in America was published by Benjamin Franklin in his Pennsylvana Gazette.

In 1944, durig World War II, the Soviets recaptured the Black Sea naval base of Sevastopol.

In 1970, the Nixon Administration announced that an American and South Vietnamese drive into Cambodia had been a success, with the capture of major enemy ammunition supplies.

In 1974, the House Judiciary Committee began a formal inquiry into the conduct of President Richard Nixon.

Ten years ago: Communist China reported its third nuclear test.

Five years ago: West Germany announced that the German mark would be permitted to fluctuate on the international money market.

One year ago: the South Vietnamese refugee population on the American island of Guam continued to swell as three merchant ships arrived with more than 8,000 people who had fled as Communists took over South Vietnam.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, May 9, the 130th day of 1976. There are 236 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1936, Italy annexed the African country of Ethiopia, and King Victor Emmanuel was proclaimed emperor.

On this date:

In 1754, the first newspaper cartoon in America was published by Benjamin Franklin in his Pennsylvania Gazette.

In 1944, durig World War II, the Soviets recaptured the Black Sea naval base of Sevastopol.

In 1970, the Nixon Administration announced that an American and South Vietnamese drive into Cambodia had been a success, with the capture of major enemy ammunition supplies.

In 1974, the House Judiciary Committee began a formal inquiry into the conduct of President Richard Nixon.

Ten years ago: Communist China reported its third nuclear test.

Five years ago: West Germany announced that the German mark would be permitted to fluctuate on the international money market.

One year ago: the South Vietnamese refugee population on the American island of Guam continued to swell as three merchant ships arrived with more than 8,000 people who had fled as Communists took over South Vietnam.

Unusual Chocolate Cake Recipe

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: Would you mind my asking for a recipe? I have tried and tried to find one for a chocolate pound-type loaf. I would like a very dark cake and also one that is moist. — CAKE BAKE.

DEAR CAKE BAKE: The following recipe, from "The Family Circle Cookbook" (Quadrangle), produces a dark, pound-type cake that is on the moist side. It's made by an unusual method that may engage you as much as it did me. The recipes in "The Family Circle Cookbook" are reliable and written in an extremely clear style; its editors deserve a vote of thanks for that because so many cookbooks present material in much less detailed fashion. The recipes in "The Family Circle Cookbook" are designed for a wide audience — cooks who enjoy preparing meals from scratch and those who welcome dishes using packaged foods. — C.B.

POUND CAKE
BRETON CHOCOLATE

5 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 and 1-3rd cups water
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine
3 eggs
1 teaspoon aromatic bitters
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 teaspoons baking powder
Chocolate Glaze (recipe follows)

Grease a 9-inch (8 cup) fancy tube pan or a 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan well; dust lightly with unsweetened cocoa powder; tap out any excess.

Combine chocolate and water in a small saucepan. Heat, stirring constantly, until chocolate melts; cool until lukewarm.

BRETON CHOCOLATE POUND CAKE—It may be baked in a fluted tube pan or as a loaf.

Sift flour, sugar and salt into large bowl of electric mixer; cut in butter or margarine with a pastry blender or fork to make a crumbly mixture.

Return bowl to mixer. Beat at medium speed 1 minute. Add eggs, 1 at a time, beating 1 minute after each addition. Add aromatic bitters and vanilla and beat 2 minutes. Add baking powder and beat for 2 minutes more. Pour into pan.

Bake in slow oven (300 degrees) 1 hour and 45 minutes, or until a wooden pick inserted in the center comes out clean. Cool cake in its pan on wire rack 10 minutes; loosen around edges with a knife. Turn out onto wire rack and cool completely.

Frost with Chocolate Glaze; garnish with sliced almonds, if you wish.

Chocolate Glaze: Break up 1 package (4 ounces) of sweet cooking chocolate; heat with 1 tablespoon of butter or margarine and 3 tablespoons water over moderate heat, stirring until melted. Remove from heat; beat in 1 cup sifted 10X (confectioners' powdered) sugar, a pinch of salt and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Makes ½ cup.

Gourmet Chef Shows How To Guard Weight

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The head chef at one of America's best known resorts gave me some interesting tips the other day on how one can eat well and at the same time hold the weight line. In fact, you might even lose a little.

The ideas were put forth at a luncheon with Sture Olof Andersson, executive chef at the noted Pinehurst resort in North Carolina. Andersson himself has managed to keep a trim waistline despite his close and constant association with gourmet dishes.

Andersson believes it is imperative for a chef to adapt himself to the culinary tastes of the country and region in which he is cooking. Needless to say he has become aware of how sensitive most Americans are about their poundage

Andersson, who is 38, began working in hotels in his native Sweden at the age of 14. "I have always liked cooking," he said. "I started school at 14 so I could enter culinary apprenticeship."

Diligence paid off. Andersson is one of 11 chefs selected for the United States team which will go to Frankfurt, Germany, to represent this country in the 1976 Culinary Olympics.

Another intriguing specialty that has found favor among Andersson's customers is a highly spiced marinated shrimp dish that comes to 70 calories a serving. Here is the recipe for that one.

16 medium shrimps, cooked
1 garlic clove crushed and finely chopped
1¾ tablespoons red wine vinegar
Tabasco to taste
¾ tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon fresh grated horseradish
10 medium sized raw mushrooms, sliced
½ tablespoon finely chopped anchovy (optional)

Mix chili sauce with all other ingredients except mushrooms and pour over shrimp. Marinate 8 hours in refrigerator. Arrange on lettuce leaf and decorate with sliced mushrooms. Serves 4. Good with chilled dry white wine.

Make drab kitchens come alive

If you're dissatisfied with your kitchen, you can make it more functional, more attractive and more livable — without spending a small fortune.

Is it dark and drab? The two easiest ways to handle that situation are with new paint and new lighting. Use semi-gloss enamel rather than a flat paint for the cabinets and woodwork — it's much easier to keep clean. For lighting you may well need nothing more than to replace the bulb fixture with a fluorescent illumination. This creates a softer, more even light with much less glare, if any.

Are the cabinets outdated and tacky? Probably just the doors give that appearance, so it's not necessary to replace the entire cabinets, which could be costly. If the doors have lip overhangs, cut them down to fit flush in the cabinet frames and change the hardware to metal or ceramic.

What about the floor? Is it covered with old linoleum that's stained and beginning to curl and crack? Replace it with a no-wax floor.

Are the work surfaces in your kitchen covered with knife cuts, scratchy and hard to clean? Build or buy a chopping block counter top, and do all your cutting, dicing and pounding on that. A laminated surface on the rest of your counters will last for years without looking old and worn.

BRETON CHOCOLATE POUND CAKE—It may be baked in a fluted tube pan or as a loaf.

POUND CAKE
BRETON CHOCOLATE

- 5 squares unsweetened chocolate
- 1 and 1-3rd cups water
- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine
- 3 eggs
- 1 teaspoon aromatic bitters
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- Chocolate Glaze (recipe follows)

Grease a 9-inch (8 cup) fancy tube pan or a 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan well; dust lightly with unsweetened cocoa powder; tap out any excess.

Combine chocolate and water in a small saucepan. Heat, stirring constantly, until chocolate melts; cool until lukewarm.

Sift flour, sugar and salt into large bowl of electric mixer; cut in butter or margarine with a pastry blender or fork to make a crumbly mixture.

Return bowl to mixer. Beat at medium speed 1 minute. Add eggs, 1 at a time, beating 1 minute after each addition. Add aromatic bitters and vanilla and beat 2 minutes. Add baking powder and beat for 2 minutes more. Pour into pan.

Bake in slow oven (300 degrees) 1 hour and 45 minutes, or until a wooden pick inserted in the center comes out clean. Cool cake in its pan on wire rack 10 minutes; loosen around edges with a knife. Turn out onto wire rack and cool completely.

Frost with Chocolate Glaze; garnish with sliced almonds, if you wish.

Chocolate Glaze: Break up 1 package (4 ounces) of sweet cooking chocolate; heat with 1 tablespoon of butter or margarine and 3 tablespoons water over moderate heat, stirring until melted. Remove from heat; beat in 1 cup sifted 10X (confectioners' powdered) sugar, a pinch of salt and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Makes ½ cup.

It's time to save.

A savings account has always been the best way to build for the future. When you make plans for the things you want in life, saving regularly brings you closer and closer to those goals.

But a savings account is great for the present, too. It's a cushion between you and the financial bumps that come along in everyone's life.

You're never too old to hear better.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. — A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement. Try it to see how it is worn in the privacy of your own home without cost or obligation of any kind. It's yours to keep, free. It weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, one unit. No wires lead from body to head.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Call 334-4200 for information or Write Beltone Hearing Aid Center, 1901 Broadway, Cape Girardeau, Mo. 63701.

AN INVITATION

We're pleased to invite you to see the brand new advertising for Coca-Cola! It will be shown tonight, May 11, for the very first time. Tune in to "M.A.S.H." or the first half-hour of "Police Woman" or "S.W.A.T."

We're proud of our new commercials, and hope you'll be watching as they are introduced on these programs tonight!

AN INVITATION

We're pleased to invite you to see the brand new advertising for Coca-Cola! It will be shown tonight, May 11, for the very first time. Tune in to "M.A.S.H." or the first half-hour of "Police Woman" or "S.W.A.T."

We're proud of our new commercials, and hope you'll be watching as they are introduced on these programs tonight!

Prince Valiant

BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: WHEN PRINCE VALIANT'S EYES GET ACCUSTOMED TO THE GLOOM OF THE CAVE, HE NOTICES THE NICHES CARVED IN THE WALL, AND DIGS OUT SOME OF THE DIRT-ENCRUSTED CONTENTS.

"HERE, ZILLA, EXAMINE THIS. WE HAVE EITHER FOUND THE TREASURE VAULT OR A STINKING BAT ROOST!"

THE PIECE IS ENCRUSTED WITH BLACK MUD, BUT ZILLA GOES TO WORK WITH HIS KNIFE SCRAPING, SCRAPING, UNTIL AT LAST COMES THE DULL GLEAM OF GOLD!

"SO YOU HAVE FOUND THE TREASURE!" THEY LOOK UP, STARTLED. IT IS THE OLD WATCHER-ON-THE-HILL. "SHERIF KARMISH HAS GROWN SUSPICIOUS OF YOU AND HAS SENT ME AS A SPY. HE IS NO LONGER SATISFIED WITH THE TRINKETS I PLACED TO KEEP HIM BUSY.

"ONLY THIS MORNING HE FLEW INTO A RAGE: 'IF THAT FOREIGN KNIGHT AND HIS FRIEND FIND IT BEFORE YOU DO, I WILL HAND YOU OVER TO MY TORTURER! NOW GO AND SPY ON THEM!'"

IN THE DARK OF NIGHT THE CREW COMES TO THE CAVE TO DIG OUT THE TREASURE. THERE IS NO GLEAM OF GOLD OR SPARKLE OF JEWELS, JUST TARNISHED LUMPS ENCRUSTED WITH MUD.

Heloise's Hints

DEAR HELOISE:

A large cereal box was in the trash can. Hmmm — why couldn't that be used for a filing folder? So I flattened the box, cut off the flaps and presto — a folder.

Split one side of the box, cut off an inch on the side or cut for a tab, and it holds more than regular folders due to the square side. Now I have one more thing to save!

Of course, my filing falls behind and sometimes requires a carton for a later date, or when I have sleepless nights. Then I just cut and file until my eyes won't stay open. Beats sleeping pills all the time.

Audrey

That's using your old noggin! Best part of all is that the boxes are absolutely free. So why not put them to use?

Heloise

NO SOFT SOAP!

DEAR HELOISE:

A nice and appropriate gift for a child in the hospital would be a washcloth with sculptured soap wrapped inside and tied with a ribbon.

For a boy, a blue cloth with blue ribbon, blue soap sculptured into a football, horse, etc. For a girl, a pink cloth, with pink ribbon and a cat, owl, bird or other shaped soap. Or a flowered cloth, matching ribbon and soap sculptured like an appropriately colored flower.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

A HINT ON LINT

DEAR HELOISE:

It all started when I washed a chenille bedspread for the first time and was wearing a pair of corduroy slacks.

You can imagine the lint! Well, I just vacuumed myself off with the wand of my vacuum cleaner and the corduroy looked better than when I started.

Then I got out my husband's socks, slipped them over my hose wand and vacuumed away.

Now, if only I could have back all the time that I have spent wrapping my hand in cellophane tape to remove lint!

Judy

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

DEAR HELOISE:

With prices going up, there is a way cake decorations can be more useful than just decorations.

For very young children I parade animal cookies around the top edge of the cake. For older boys, either tiny cars, horses or cowboys can be used and tiny tea sets for little girls.

The toys can be washed off and added to their toy boxes, and the cookies can be eaten.

A Grandma

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

Once when peeling and chopping many onions for some quantity cooking, I discovered a child's diving mask and snorkel protected my eyes and nose from "onion tears."

Can't figure out how to use the fins though!

Helen Krathwohl

What a funny sight you must have been standing by your sink in your mask and snorkel!

Could your fins be used to wade through your family's tears of laughter?

Heloise

CUT THIS OUT!

DEAR HELOISE:

To get blood out of material, dampen the spot and lay it on paper towels. Sprinkle with unseasoned meat tenderizer. Let it set a few moments and then take an old brush, such as a toothbrush, and brush the material until the blood disappears into the paper towel. Wash the garment as usual.

I have never had this fail if the garment has not been washed first.

Marilyn Padilla

Be sure to use only unseasoned meat tenderizer and, of course, be sure the garment is washable. But it sure does work. I tested it.

Heloise

CHICKEN SPECIAL

DEAR HELOISE:

I thought perhaps this hint would be good at this time when we are trying to save as much as we can.

When I brown chicken, I shake it in a bag with flour and seasonings. I make up a big batch and put it in double plastic bags. When I'm finished, I put a wire twistem on the bag and put it in the freezer.

If I use flour for flouring the board, for kneading bread, etc., I add what's left over to the bag.

I have a perpetual bag of coating and it doesn't spoil or get rancid.

H.E.

BIG SHAKE-UP

DEAR HELOISE:

The great-grand children enjoyed their surprise breakfast the other morning. I had put different flavors of gelatin in shaker-top bottles and, after buttering the hot toast, sprinkled some on it. We also used it on hot cereal.

It makes a hit with the young ones and no need to use sugar.

Sonnie Cutter

NO SLIP UPS!

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a hint that I have for slip or bra straps that fall down from my shoulders.

Put a small safety pin on blouse or dress seam and put your straps in and close the pin. They'll never fall down again.

Mrs. Mary Wangang

TASTY AND TRUE!

DEAR HELOISE:

When I turn pancakes over, I put a pat of butter on each.

When the butter melts fully, it is time to serve and the pancakes are delicious.

Francis Rathjen

FRENCH TOAST TIP

DEAR HELOISE:

Sometimes when I'm fixing French toast for my family's breakfast, I purposely fix some extra and pop it in the freezer.

Then we pop the French toast in the toaster and have instant French toast when we want a snack.

You could also use up bread that may be getting stale.

DEAR HELOISE:
I thought perhaps this hint would be good at this time when we are trying to save as much as we can.

When I brown chicken, I shake it in a bag with flour and seasonings. I make up a big batch and put it in double plastic bags. When I'm finished, I put a wire twistem on the bag and put it in the freezer.

If I use flour for flouring the board, for kneading bread, etc., I add what's left over to the bag.

I have a perpetual bag of coating and it doesn't spoil or get rancid.

H.E.

BIG SHAKE-UP

DEAR HELOISE:
The great-grand children enjoyed their surprise breakfast the other morning. I had put different flavors of gelatin in shaker-top bottles and, after buttering the hot toast, sprinkled some on it. We also used it on hot cereal.

It makes a hit with the young ones and no need to use sugar.

NO SLIP UPS!

DEAR HELOISE:
Here's a hint that I have for slip or bra straps that fall down from my shoulders.

Put a small safety pin on blouse or dress seam and put your straps in and close the pin. They'll never fall down again.

Mrs. Mary Wangang

TASTY AND TRUE!

DEAR HELOISE:
When I turn pancakes over, I put a pat of butter on each.

When the butter melts fully, it is time to serve and the pancakes are delicious.

FRENCH TOAST TIP

DEAR HELOISE:
Sometimes when I'm fixing French toast for my family's breakfast, I purposely fix some extra and pop it in the freezer.

Then we pop the French toast in the toaster and have instant French toast when we want a snack.

You could also use up bread that may be getting stale.

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Tree trunk is different. 2. Hair is different. 3. Plane is missing. 4. Frog is missing. 5. Girl's arm is repositioned. 6. Jar is repositioned.

Hal Kaufman's JUNIOR WHIRL®

BULLETIN BOARD

●KEY WORD! "Some are kissing mothers and some are scolding mothers, but it is ____ just the same, and most mothers kiss and scold together." —Pearl S. Buck. Fill blank.

The missing word is "love."

●Shuffle letters for names of three U.S. capital cities: 1. AL EMS. 2. ED VERN. 3. STU AGUA. Hint: No. 1 is in the Far West.

1. Salem, Ore. 2. Denver, Col. 3. Augusta, Me.

●Diminish any two-digit number by the sum of its digits and the result will always be divisible by nine. Try it.

●Riddle-me-this, if you can: What stands there when it's cold and runs when it's warm? Give up? A refrigerator.

THREE coins of any size are required to perform this amusing trick. Place two coins on a flat surface, side by side. Designate them A and B. Challenge bystanders to insert a third coin, C, between them, without touching coin A by hand and without moving coin B.

How it's done: Place an index finger atop coin B (Remember, the rules say coin A cannot be touched; coin B cannot be moved). Place your other index finger atop coin C. Now, slide C against B, causing B to strike A, moving it aside for the subsequent insertion of third coin, C.
